PREFACE.

The fifth book of Lucretius contains some of his finest work and also, being less technical and dry than any of the other books, is best suited to serve as an introduction to the study of the De Rerum Natura. This edition has been prepared with that object in view: it aims both at explaining this one book in detail for beginners and at smoothing the way to the comprehension of other and more difficult parts of the poem.

My obligations are very great, in all parts of my book, to Munro's famous edition. In the Introduction, I have also made considerable use of Professor Sellar's sympathetic and felicitous criticism in his two volumes on the Roman poets; and much of my fourth section is abridged from Zeller. For the astronomical section I have to thank the dexterity and kindness of Mr H. L. Callendar, Fellow of Trinity College. It may be worth saying here that the astronomical theories of Lucretius are simple enough, so long as they are purely fanciful, and difficult only when they approximate to the truth. Consequently the information here given is only a simplification of what may be found in the ordinary astronomical text-books.
PREFACE.

The text is in the main that of Munro’s last edition; but I have admitted a few conjectures of Madvig and more recent writers. All such deviations from Munro’s text are indicated.

In writing the notes I have constantly consulted Munro’s commentary, and I have also kept before me the editions of Professor Kelsey (Boston 1884) and of MM. Benoist and Lantoine (Paris 1884), both of which are based on Munro but contain some original matter. But, owing to the class of students whom I had in view, it was impossible for me to follow any of these closely; and the notes are for the most part of my own writing. Finally I have to thank Dr J. P. Postgate, Fellow of Trinity College, who most kindly offered to read over the notes and made many suggestive criticisms.

INTRODUCTION.

I. LIFE OF LUCRETIUS.

† Nec vixit male qui natus moriensque secellit.

Horace Ep. i 17 10.

The chronicle of Hieronymus or St Jerome, compiled about 400 A.D., has a record to the following effect: 'the poet Titus Lucretius Carus was born in 94 B.C.; he lost his reason in consequence of drinking a love-philtre and died by his own hand in his forty-fourth year, after composing in his lucid intervals several books which Cicero afterwards corrected.' The date of his death would thus be 50 B.C. But Donatus, who is more generally followed, in his life of Virgil mentions as a remarkable coincidence that Lucretius died (nothing is said of madness or suicide) on October 15th, 55 B.C., the day on which Virgil, being just fifteen, assumed the toga virilis.

We may then assume with fair probability that Lucretius was born in 99 B.C., and died in the autumn of 55. The other statements made by St Jerome are even more doubtful than his chronology. For first, with regard to the alleged madness and suicide, it is very strange that such a tragical ending of a great genius is nowhere mentioned by any subsequent Latin writer. And on the other hand the story was just such a pious fiction as was likely to be invented by a posterity shocked by the heterodoxy of Lucretius. It is worth noticing that a similar end was invented for Lucian, another Epicurean heretic: he is said by Suidas to have been torn to pieces by dogs. Again it seems highly improbable that the poem was written in the lucid intervals of a madman: the argument is severely logical, the arrangement masterly, in those parts of the poem which are not obviously unfinished. The last statement of the chronicle, that Cicero corrected the books, implies one fact which is certainly true, that Lucretius left his poem unfinished and that it was given to the world after his death by some other hand. But we do not know what kind or amount of 'correction' the editor supplied, or even which Cicero was the editor, Marcus Tullius or his brother Quintus. Lucretius is mentioned once by the orator in a letter written from Rome to his brother Quintus, in January, 54 B.C., four months after the poet's death; but unfortunately the text of the passage is corrupt and throws no light on either of these questions; it is impossible even to gather how far the writer admired the poem, and on what grounds.

These scanty and unsatisfactory details are all we are told by the writers of antiquity about the personal history of Lucretius. He is mentioned occasionally by both poets and prose-writers, sometimes quoted and sometimes criticised; but no particulars of his life or death are anywhere else recorded. It is possible to add a very little to this meagre account from the internal evidence of his poem, though some of his editors have pushed conjecture far beyond reasonable limits.

In the first place it is tolerably certain that he was a Roman of good family and fortune. His gentile name is that of a very old patrician house; and the terms of absolute equality in which he addresses Memmius, a very distinguished figure at Rome in those days, point to the same conclusion. A modern writer has called Lucretius 'the aristocrat with a mission'; and it is true that the whole tone of his poem is that of a man in easy circumstances and familiar with the luxury of which he disapproves.

It is still more certain that his life was that of a recluse. Political activity was always distasteful to the Epicureans; and at Rome just at this time civil war was impending, and the political out-look was very dark. Lucretius is never more inspired than when he is denouncing ambition. Nor again could the immense literary activity of the time bring him into contact with other men, as the literature he loved belonged entirely to the past. He was before all things a student. Much of his time must have been spent in study of the Greek philosophers and poets: he tells us himself that the absorbing pursuit of his life, which he carried on through ‘the clear nights’ and which haunted him even in sleep, was the study of the philosophers and the exposition in his poem of their ‘glorious discoveries.’ According to tradition, his master Epicurus himself left three hundred rolls, ‘golden words,’ says Lucretius, ‘on which I feed like a bee among the flowers.’ And besides Epicurus there are many other abstruse and voluminous writers whose authority he acknowledges or whose dogmas he refutes; Empedocles and Democritus are conspicuous among the first, Heraclitus and Anaxagoras among the second. He also translates from or imitates the following Greek authors: Homer, Hesiod, Euripides, Thucydides, Hippocrates, and perhaps Aristophanes and Plato. Among Latin writers, we can trace imitation of Ennius and his nephew Pacuvius, the chief epic poet and the chief tragedian of early Latin literature.

Finally, from the truth and evident pleasure with which he describes all manner of natural objects and illustrates his arguments by them, we may infer that his life was spent for the most part in the country. We may think of Lucretius in some quiet place, away from ‘the smoke and wealth and noise of Rome’; we may fancy him watching the clouds on the hills or the waves on the shore with the delight of a poet and the keen interest of a philosopher, or poring over the scrolls of Epicurus, and studying how he might best transfer their precious contents to his own immortal poem.

II. Poem of Lucretius.

Docti furor arduus Lucreti.

Statius Silv. ii 7 76.

The De Rerum Natura is a didactic poem: it professes to expound systematically a particular subject. The Works and

Days of Hesiod, the Georgics of Virgil, the Essay on Man of Pope, all belong to this class of poetry. The subject which the poem of Lucretius is intended to explain is the philosophical system of Epicurus or part of it. A short account is given below of such Epicurean doctrines as are explained or alluded to in the fifth book of Lucretius.

The form and title of the poem are derived from Empedocles of Agrigentum, who lived in the fifth century B.C. and wrote a famous treatise in hexameter verse, 'περὶ φύσεως,' of which some fragments are extant. The poem is dedicated to Gaius Memmius, prominent as an orator and statesman of the senatorial party, but a worthless and unprincipled man; why Lucretius thought him worthy of this distinction, we cannot tell. No other contemporary is mentioned in the poem, though some editors have thought they could trace allusions to Clodius and to Caesar.

The first two books are devoted to a very full account of atoms and void, these being, according to Democritus and Epicurus, the two great factors of the universe; here too the rival systems of other philosophers are stated and refuted. There is less evidence of incompleteness in these books than in the others. The third book is mainly taken up in proving that the soul is a material part of man, made up of atoms as the body is, and dying with the body. This theory is of the highest importance in the eyes of Lucretius and is therefore proved at great length. The fourth book explains the Epicurean theory of sight and the other senses; the fifth gives an account of the origin of the world, of life, and of human society; of this book a fuller analysis is given below. The last book is miscellaneous in its contents. It begins by discussing the nature of thunder and lightning and other celestial phenomena; it then deals with various natural curiosities, such as magnetic attraction, and ends with a description, taken from Thucydides, of the plague of Athens. It is obviously more confused and less complete than any of the other books.

Thus it will be seen that Lucretius begins by laying down the first principles of the atomic philosophy, and then discusses in his last four books some special applications of that doctrine, which formed part of the system of Epicurus. The aim of the poet throughout is not so much purely scientific as practical and moral. His main object, as he tells us again and again, is to free men's minds from the yoke of superstitious fears by displaying to them the aspect and the laws of nature; and this is why he argues with such passionate earnestness against the immortality of the soul and the interference of the gods in human affairs. Thus the purpose of the fifth book is to show that the world and all that it contains were not created by divine power, and that all progress is the result of natural experience, not of divine guidance. And on the whole it appears that Lucretius lived long enough to complete in outline the whole task he had set before himself, though the latter part of the poem is far from complete in artistic finish and arrangement of materials.

With regard to the diction and metre of the poem, Lucretius deliberately adopted a style which must have seemed archaic to his contemporaries. This may be seen by comparing the De Rerum Natura with the Peleus and Thetis of Catullus, which was certainly written at nearly the same time. Just as Greek epic verse continued to the end to imitate the forms and vocabulary of Homer, so Lucretius thought fit to take for his model the Annales of Ennius, the only great epic which the language possessed, though two centuries had passed since it was written. At the beginning of his own poem he makes honourable mention of Ennius\(^1\), and constantly imitates even the few hundred lines of fragments which we possess. It is probable too that his archaism was intended as a protest against the tendency of contemporary Latin literature. For just at this time there was great literary activity among the Romans. Any educated man could, as Mommsen says, turn off his five hundred hexameters at a sitting; Quintus Cicero wrote four tragedies in a fortnight to beguile the dulness of winter-quarters in Gaul. But all these poems were worthless imitations of bad models,—of Callimachus and the other learned poets of Alexandria. The pure taste of Lucretius revolted from the predominant fashion and attached itself to Ennius, and, through him, to the classical Greek literature. Thus his philosophical creed and his literary taste alike led him to discard all such antiquarian and mythological lore as we see in the Coma Berenices of Catullus, translated from Callimachus. The mythology he resolutely refused to believe, and the only learning he valued was that which had power to purify the hearts of men and make their lives happy.

His archaism is seen both in the language and in the style. He uses many old words and forms, from which Virgil selects with discrimination; and he also coins many new words which no writer used after him. He prefers to use a significant Greek word in place of a feeble or obscure Latin equivalent. He is fond of the artifices of alliteration and assonance, which seem so congenial to early Latin and occur so constantly in Ennius and still more in Plautus; here again Virgil decidedly restricts the practice of his predecessors. His sentences are often excessively long and loosely constructed; he is indifferent to ambiguities which his Augustan successors would not have tolerated; and his order of words is often perplexing to those who are not familiar with his style. Again his metre, though more refined than that of Ennius, itself is wanting in harmony and especially in variety, when compared with the perfect rhythm of Virgil.

The difficulty of Lucretius, which even the ancients felt, is partly due to his fondness for archaism, but also to the inadequacy of the language as an instrument for expressing abstruse thought. Ennius had been able with rude vigour to depict the early history of Rome, to lay down a model of heroic verse for his successors, and to bequeath them a considerable vocabulary. But the language was still, as Lucretius thrice over complains, a very imperfect vehicle for the discussion of political, moral, and metaphysical ideas. The great measure of success which he attains must have been the result of immense labour.

1 Quintil. Inst. x i 87.
2 i 136, i 830, iii 258.
Many have thought that Lucretius was singularly unfortunate in his choice of a subject. A great poet has said that poetry should be simple, sensuous, impassioned; and it would be difficult for any poem, consisting mainly of the exposition of a philosophical system, to satisfy these conditions. This is especially true of the Epicurean philosophy, which, at least on its metaphysical side, is of all systems the least lofty and the least profound.

Yet, in spite of his unattractive subject, his archaism, and his monotonous verse, the poem of Lucretius is immortal. The greatness is in the man rather than in the theme. In the doctrine of atoms there is much that is wonderful and striking to the imagination; but after all it is the personality and poetic power of Lucretius that make his work a possession for ever—his noble enthusiasm, his profound pathos, his intellectual seriousness, and his descriptive genius. In our own age his poem excites peculiar interest, because of its scientific spirit, and because it discusses the very same problems of religion, science, and anthropology which we are engaged in discussing over again. To his great qualities there is no lack of testimony. Few have known ancient and modern literature as Macaulay did; and he says of Lucretius: 'In energy, perspicuity, variety of illustration, knowledge of life and manners, talent for description, sense of the beauty of the external world, and elevation and dignity of moral feeling, Lucretius had hardly ever an equal.' Munro too, as competent a judge as any man who ever lived, sums up his opinion thus: 'It would hardly perhaps do violence to the taste of the present age to call Lucretius the greatest of extant Latin poets. Like the rest of his countrymen, he is not a great creative genius; we find in him many echoes even of the scanty fragments which we yet possess of the old tragic and epic poets, Accius, Pacuvius, and, above all, Ennius. He owes still more to the Greeks, especially Empedocles, so far as regards the form of his poem....From the splendid eulogies which in his first book he passes on Ennius and Empedocles, we may feel sure that he did not wish to conceal his obligations,

but, like other Latin poets, thought he had a right to make what use he pleased of his Greek and Roman predecessors. And he has merits of his own unsurpassed in the whole compass of Latin poetry. It has often struck me that his genius is akin to that of Milton. He displays a wonderful depth and fervour of thought, expressed in language of singular force and beauty; an admirable faculty of clear and vigorous and well-sustained philosophical reasoning; and a style equal in its purity and correctness to that of Terence, Caesar or Cicero, and superior to that of any writer of the Augustan age.

III. LUCRETIUS AND VIRGIL.

Non verba autem sola sed versus prope totos et locos quoque
Lucreti plurimos sectatum esse Vergilium videmus.

Aulus Gellius i 21 7.

When the poem of Lucretius was published, Virgil was fifteen years of age. ‘At such an age therefore the style and manner of Lucretius were able to impress themselves fully on the younger poet’s susceptible mind; and perhaps the highest eulogy which has ever been passed on the former is that constant imitation of his language and thought which pervades Virgil’s works from one end to the other.’ It may be added that this influence was at its height at the time when the Georgics, and especially the second, were written.

Virgil never mentions Lucretius directly; but this is not surprising when we remember that he does not mention Theocritus once in the Eclogues, nor Hesiod by name in the Georgics, nor Homer at all in the Aeneid. There is however one passage which is unmistakably intended to carry an allusion to Lucretius. The lines are as follows:

Felix, qui potuit rerum cognoscere causas,
Atque metus omnes et inexorabile fatum
Subiecit pedibus strepitumque Acherontis avari.

1 Journal of Sacred and Classical Philology i p. 21.
2 Munro, II p. 19.
Fortunatus et ille, deos qui novit agrestes,
Panaque Silvanumque senem Nymphasque sorores¹.

It is evident that in these and the preceding lines Virgil is instituting a comparison, to his own disadvantage, between Lucretius, who had ventured to explain the laws of nature, and himself, who was content with loving and describing her external aspects. We may compare the similar contrast drawn by Matthew Arnold between Goethe and Wordsworth, in which Virgil's words are thus applied to Goethe:

And he was happy, if to know
Causes of things, and far below
His feet to see the lurid flow
Of terror, and insane distress,
And headlong fate, be happiness.

Virgil was a most modest man and no doubt sincerely believed that Lucretius was a greater genius than himself. But if he did so, he stood almost alone among his countrymen. The Arma virumque, as the Roman poets love to call the Aeneid², entirely eclipsed the Aeneadum genetrix with the Roman public, if indeed the latter ever had any vogue at all; and even the few, who ventured to disparage Virgil³, do not seem to have set up Lucretius as a rival object of admiration. It was reserved for our own century to extol the earlier poet at the expense of the later. Johnson maintained with accustomed vigour against Burke the superiority of Homer to Virgil; but if any rash member of the Club had substituted Lucretius for Homer, it is probable that Johnson and Burke would have made common cause against so novel a paradox. During the present century, however, the comparison has often been made; and the verdict of the learned has gone, on the whole, in favour of Lucretius. This is not the place to enter on a discussion of such wide range and doubtful value; but, if it be admitted that a nation is competent to judge its own literature, it should also be remembered that the Romans were practically unanimous in ranking Virgil as the peer of Homer and far above all other Latin poets. It is very improbable that they would have allowed even the proximi honores to Lucretius. We are not entitled to settle such a question absolutely, by our own standards and our own preferences; how should we feel ourselves, if a highly educated Hindoo asked us to take his word for it, that Marlowe was a greater poet than Shakespeare, or Wordsworth than Milton?

³ Ov. Remed. 367; Suet. Gaius 34.

It is interesting to notice that the relation between the two poets is by no means one of unmixed sympathy. When we consider the religious and almost mystical temperament of Virgil, his respect for tradition, and the difference of his political and social surroundings, we cannot wonder that he is repelled as well as attracted by the genius for which he expresses an almost despairing admiration. 'Virgil is no mere disciple of Lucretius, either as regards his philosophy or his art. Though his imagination pays homage to that of the older poet; though he acknowledges his contemplative elevation; though he has a strong affinity with the deep humanity of his nature; yet in his profoundest convictions and aspirations he proclaims his revolt from him.'

It will be observed that in many of the passages of Virgil where we find an echo of Lucretius, the sense is quite different though the words are like or even identical. This is most easily accounted for, by supposing that his mind was so saturated with the writings of his predecessor, that he reproduced the cadences and even words without being conscious of it. An example may be taken from another pair of Latin poets. Every reader of Martial is struck by the number of allusions to Catullus and imitations of him. But there are also resemblances of a subtler kind. For instance, Catullus in one of his poems reproaches Calvus for sending him a present of some bad poetry, and vows to take revenge by sending him a similar present in return:

1 Quintil. Inst. xi 85. 2 Sellar, Virgil p. 197.
INTRODUCTION.

Now Martial, addressing his fourth book, advises it to gain the approval of Apollinaris, and tells it, if condemned, to be off to the trunk-makers':

si damnaverit, ad salariorum
curras scrinia protinus licebit2.

The words are almost exactly those of Catullus; the meaning is entirely different. There can be no stronger proof of ingrained familiarity than such unconscious imitation.

Georgics which are most obviously imitated from the fifth book

IV. SOME DOCTRINES OF EPICURUS. 342-270 B.C.

Cicero De Fin. ii 49.

Epicurus was born at Samos in 342 B.C. He went to Athens when he was thirty-five years old and there founded a school of his own, in which he taught until his death in 270 B.C. He was almost worshipped by his disciples and was by all accounts a most amiable and excellent man, and not at all an Epicurean in our sense of the term. Before 200 B.C. his system had found many supporters at Rome, though it was not so congenial to the gravitas of the Roman character as the rival system of the Stoics. The doctrines of Epicurus, which are explained or mentioned by Lucretius in his fifth book, must be briefly noticed here. These are,

1. the theory of atoms and void;
2. the nature of the soul;
3. the nature of knowledge;
4. the existence and nature of the gods;
5. the theory of celestial phenomena.

1. ATOMS AND VOID. Epicurus adopted in its entirety the atomic theory of Democritus, born in 460 B.C. According to this theory the whole universe consists of two things, body (σῶμα, corpus), and void (τὸ κενὸν, ingane). The existence of body or matter is proved by the evidence of our senses, the existence of void partly by the possibility of motion, as bodies could not move if there were no void or empty space for them to move in, and partly by the unequal weight of bodies equal in bulk: a ball of lead is heavier than a ball of wool only because it contains less void. All body, which we may call matter, is composed of atoms, to which Lucretius gives the names principia, primordia rerum, corpora materiae. These atoms differ in size, shape, and weight, and are unlimited in number. They have existed from everlasting and can never be split up or destroyed in any way, because they are solid and indivisible, containing no void. They are in constant motion, being impelled downwards by their own weight and sideways by the blows of other atoms; they are so small that our sight cannot perceive them. Void also is unlimited in extent; and so the universe, which is made up of these two constituents, is also unlimited. A finite world such as ours, including earth, sea, and sky, is formed whenever a concourse of atoms, after many fruitless experiments, have assumed positions which enable them to move for a time without separating from one another. But a world so formed, as it had a beginning, will also have an end; and the liberated atoms will then continue their race through void and take part in future combinations. All these operations are the result of chance, not of design.

It was certainly a happy intuition that induced Epicurus, indifferent as he was to science in general, to adopt this scientific theory. His contemporaries thought it ridiculous, but modern science has accepted it as true in the main. 'The propositions in which Lucretius has stated his atomic theory anticipate some recent discoveries in both chemistry and physics in a most marvellous way. Science has now proved that his propositions as to the constitution of matter are either certainly true, or else foreshadow the truth.'

(2) The Soul. The psychology of Epicurus is strictly materialistic, and admits no difference between mind and matter. Just as the body is made up of atoms, so is the soul or vital principle (ψυχή, anima), and the mind or rational principle (λόγος, animus). The only difference is that the soul and mind consist of the smallest and lightest atoms; this is proved by the speed of thought and by the fact that the body, when life has ceased, is not diminished in size and weight. The vital principle is diffused over the whole body; the rational principle has its seat in the breast. The soul, under which both anima and animus may be included, cannot exist apart from the body; it was born together with it and will die with it. Death therefore is nothing to us, as sensation cannot survive for a moment the separation of body and soul.

Lucretius brings forward no less than twenty-seven arguments against the immortality of the soul. He is anxious to leave no doubt on the point, as he believes that the unhappiness of men is mainly due to their fear of punishment in a future life.

(3) Perceptions and Conceptions. All knowledge, according to Epicurus, depends on the senses. Their evidence is unimpeachable: when we get a wrong impression of some object we see, the blame rests, not with our sensation, but with our judgment of the sensation, i.e. with the mind, not with the eyes. By a repetition of the same perception there arises a conception or notion (προτήρια), which is called by Lucretius notities, and more accurately by Cicero anticipatio. This notion is a general picture, retained in the mind, of what has been perceived. The origin of perceptions is explained in the following way. Exceedingly fine films (εἴδωλα, simulacra) are constantly being discharged from the surface of all bodies, bearing the exact likeness of the body itself. These films move with infinite speed through void and are conveyed to the soul by the various organs of sense. When we see a horse, an image has come from the horse and passed through our eyes into the soul. Taste, hearing, and smell are explained in just the same way; only the atoms of smells travel slower than the atoms of sounds, and the atoms of sounds slower than the atoms of visible things. Thought also is excited entirely by material images; if we think of a Centaur, our thought is due to an image of a horse which has got mixed up with the image of a man. Lucretius goes so far as to say that when we dream of dead friends, our dream is due to a material image of them; but it seems impossible to explain how anything that no longer exists can discharge an image. Finally to images is ascribed the origin of belief in the gods; but here too there is some inconsistency.

1 See note to l. 1170.
(4) The Gods. Epicurus taught that the gods are immortal and perfectly happy. But this happiness would be perturbed if they sympathised with the sorrows of men. Therefore he held that they were absolutely regardless of human affairs and indifferent to our merits or demerits. Their body consists of atoms so fine as to be invisible to our senses; they live in spaces between worlds (μετακόσμω, intermundia), where no storms ever come. It is certain from the evil in the world that the gods had no hand in making it.

This theory is beset with difficulties, which might perhaps have been removed if Lucretius had fulfilled his intention of explaining it at large. But in fact the gods are quite out of place in the system of Epicurus. Their place is occupied by Nature, which is conceived, at all events by Lucretius, as an omnipotent and omnipresent force, governing the universe by fixed laws. If the Epicurean gods are included in the universe and are formed of atoms, as we are told, how can they escape the general law that all combinations of atoms had a beginning and must have an end? To give a satisfactory answer, Epicurus must have sacrificed the unity of his system.

(5) The Heavenly Bodies. His theory of knowledge led Epicurus to strange conclusions in his astronomy. Everything, he said, which can be tested by the senses and is confirmed by them, is true; again, opinions which cannot be brought to this test and at the same time are not contradicted by it, are all equally true. Thus it is a certain truth that the sun is really about the same size as it appears to us to be, because a fire on earth, so long as it is visible, does not diminish in size. But to say that the stars and the sun must move from some one controlling cause, or that eclipses admit of only one explanation, is a vain unphilosophical assumption. For these things are beyond our powers of observation, and there are many ways of explaining them, none of which is contradicted by the evidence of the senses, and each of which must be true, if not for our world, for some one of the countless worlds contained in the universe.

INTRODUCTION.

It will be noticed that Lucretius often gives the right explanation together with a variety of wrong ones, in dealing with these matters. The astronomers of his time did not understand the nature of attraction; and as they believed that the sun revolved round the earth, they therefore took his apparent motions to be real; but they had some idea of the size of the heavenly bodies, and they explained correctly the motion of the moon round the earth and the cause of eclipses.

V. THE CELESTIAL SPHERE.

Nec, si rationem siderum ignores, poetas intellegas.

Quintilian Inst. Or. i. 4.

The common celestial globe is a device for mapping the apparent place of the stars in the sky, just as places on the earth are shown on the terrestrial globe; with this difference, that to see the constellations as they actually appear, the observer must imagine himself at the centre O of the sphere. In the accompanying figure, which represents the celestial sphere as seen in latitude 60° N., the places of the stars are not shown, but only some imaginary circles to which their positions are referred.

The observer's Horizon is represented by the circle NESW. The half, NLP'S, below the horizon, is of course invisible to the observer.

The Axis, POP', is the direction of the earth's axis of rotation, round which, in consequence of the earth's rotation, the starry sphere appears to turn. The ancients believed that the earth was really at rest in the centre of the universe and that the stars were fixed to an invisible frame-work which revolved round the earth.

The Poles P, P', are the points in which the axis meets the sphere; they are called the North and South Poles respectively.

The Equator EQWR is an imaginary circle midway between the poles. It meets the horizon in the East and West points, E and W.

The sun has two apparent motions, which are both really due to motions of the earth. The rotation of the earth on its axis makes him appear to rise and set every day; while the revolution of the earth in its orbit round the sun makes him appear to travel round the sky once a year.

The Ecliptic, ECWL, is the apparent annual path of the sun among the stars. The celestial sphere appears to turn from East to West; but the sun, in his annual path, appears to travel in the contrary direction.

The Zodiac, so named from the animals (ζώδια) by which the constellations are represented, is a narrow belt of sky on either side of the ecliptic. It is divided into twelve equal portions called the Signs of the Zodiac, which are named after the constellations they contain.

The Nodes or Equinoxes are the points in which the ecliptic cuts the equator. The sun in his course along the ecliptic from West to East crosses the equator from South to North at the time of the vernal equinox (March 21st) in the sign of the Ram (see l. 687). His daily course in the sky then coincides exactly with the equator EQWR, exactly half of which is above the horizon, so that the lengths of day and night are equal. In the figure the node or point of intersection is for convenience represented as just setting at W; the ecliptic is shown in the position which it would occupy at 6 p.m. on March 21st. The sun crosses the equator again from North to South at the time of the autumnal equinox, in the sign of the Scales; rising at E at 6 a.m. on Sept. 23rd.

The Solstices are the points C and L of the sun's annual path at which he is furthest from the equator. The sun is at C and due south at noon on June 22nd. On that day his daily course is the circle CG, the greater half of which is above the horizon, so that the day is longer than the night. The sun is at L at midnight on Dec. 21st; the greater half of his daily course LK, is then below the horizon (see ll. 682—686).

These points are called Solstices because the sun, after moving away from the equator, appears to stop and turn back. They are also called Tropics, i.e. turning points. The summer solstice C is in the sign of Cancer (the Crab), the winter solstice L in that of Capricorn (the Goat); see ll. 615—617.

Eclipses. The moon completes the circuit of the Zodiac once a month. Her orbit is slightly inclined to the ecliptic; if it coincided with the ecliptic, it is evident that the moon would pass between the earth and the sun every month, causing an eclipse. As it is, eclipses can only occur when the moon happens to be near one of the nodes of her orbit, i.e. those points where her orbit intersects the ecliptic. An eclipse of the sun can only occur at new moon, when the moon is between the sun and the earth; an eclipse of the moon, at full moon, when the moon is on the side of the earth opposite to the sun, and passes through the cone of the earth's shadow (see l. 764).
ANALYSIS.

The fifth book of Lucretius is a kind of philosophical epic with man for a hero, and describes the origin of the world, of life, and of human society. This description is not irrelevant to the main purpose of the work; on the contrary, the exposition would be incomplete, if it were not shown that the world and its inhabitants came into being and continue to exist from purely natural causes. The book falls into two main divisions of nearly equal length, the first of which relates the creation of the world, the second the history of man.

After a panegyric on Epicurus (I—54), the subjects to be treated of are enumerated. These are:

i. "The mortal nature of the world.
ii. "The formation of the world.
iii. "The kinds of animals which sprang from the earth.
vi. "The movements of the heavenly bodies.

The first subject is then begun, 91—109; but here a long digression is inserted in which it is proved that the world is not divine, and that the gods had nothing to do with the making of it. The argument is resumed at 235 and ended at 415. The formation of the world is next described, 416—563; but here too there is a digression, 509—533, about the motion of the stars. The rest of the first half of the book, 564—770, is taken up by a very full discussion of the sun and moon, their size, motions, and eclipses.

The second half begins with an account of the growth of vegetation first and then of animals and men, 770—836. It is next pointed out that in the struggle for existence many kinds of animals became extinct; but no such animals as a Centaur or Scylla can at any time have existed, 837—924.

The rest of the book describes the development of man in civilisation, and may be divided as follows:
ANALYSIS.

1. The condition of primitive man. 925—1010
2. The beginnings of civilisation. 1011—1027
3. The origin of speech. 1028—1090
4. The discovery of fire. 1091—1104
5. The beginnings of political life. 1105—1160
6. The origin of religion. 1161—1240
7. The discovery of the metals. 1241—1280
8. The methods of early warfare. 1281—1349
9. The invention of weaving. 1350—1360
10. The beginnings of agriculture. 1361—1378
11. The invention of music. 1379—1435
12. Complete civilisation. 1436—1457

Thus Lucretius discusses all the subjects he had promised to discuss, and others as well; but not in their original order. So the account of the sun and moon, instead of coming last, is given immediately after the account of the world's formation. It is also clear that certain paragraphs did not form part of the original sketch but were added subsequently. Thus at 1091 the first discovery of fire is related, but, at 1011, it was already in general use. These inconsistent paragraphs are indicated in the notes, as they occur.
Quis potis est dignum pollenti pectore carmen
Condere pro rerum maiestate hisque repertis?
Quisve valet verbis tantum qui fingere laudes
Pro meritis eius possit qui talia nobis

Quod procul a nobis flectat fortuna gubernans,
Et ratio potius quam res persuadeat ipsa
Succidere horrisono posse omnia victa fraore.

Qua prius adgrediar quam de re fundere fata
Sanctius et multo certa ratione magis quam
Pythia quae tripode a Phoebi lauroque profatur,
Multa tibi expediam doctis solacia dictis;
Religione refrenatus ne forte rearis
Terras et solem et caelum, mare sidera lunam,
Corpore divino debere aeterna manere,
Proptereaque putes ritu par esse Gigantum
Pendere eos poenas inmani pro scelere omnes
Qui ratione sua disturbent moenia mundi
Praeclarumque velint caeli restinguere solem,
Inmortalia mortali sermone notantes;
Quae procul usque adeo divino a numine distant,
Inque deum numero quae sint indigna videntur,
Notitiam potius praebere ut posse putentur
Quid sit vitali motu sensuque remotum.
Quippe etenim non est, cum quovis corpore ut esse
Posse animi natura putetur consiliumque;
Sicut in aethere non arbor, non aequore salso
Nubes esse quenque pisces vivere in arvis
Nec crur in lignis neque saxis sucus inesse.
Certum ac dispositumst ubi quicquid crescat et insit.
Sic animi natura nequit sine corpore oriri
Sola neque a nervis et sanguine longiter esse.
Quod si (posset enim multo prius) ipsa animi vis
In capite aut umeris aut imis calcibus esse
Posset et innasci quavis in parte, soleret
Tandem in eodem homine atque in eodem vase manere.
Quod quoniam nostro quoque constat corpore certum
Dispositumque videtur ubi esse et crescere possit
Seorsum anima atque animus, tanto magis insidiantum
Totum posse extra corpus formamque animalem
Putribus in glebis terrarum aut solis in igni
Aut in aqua durare aut altis aetheris ois.
Haud igitur constant divino praedita sensu,
Quandoquidem nequeunt vitaliter esse animata.
Illud item non est ut possis credere, sedes
Esse deum sanctas in mundi partibus ullis.
Tenuis enim natura deum longeque remota
Sensibus ab nostris animi vix mente videtur;
Quae quoniam manuum tactum suffugit et ictum,
Tactile nil nobis quod sit contingere debet.
Tangere enim non quit quod tangi non licet ipsum.
Quare etiam sedes quoque nostris sedibus esse
Dissimiles debent, tenues de corpore eorum;
Quae tibi posteriorius largo sermone probabo.
Dicere porro hominum causa voluisse parare
Praeclaram mundi naturam proptereaque
Adlaudabile opus divom laudare decere
Aeternunque putare atque inmortalis futurum,
Nec fas esse, deum quod sit ratione vetusta:
Gentibus humanis fundatum perpetuo aevo,
Sollicitare suis ulla vi ex sedibus umquam
Nec verbis vexare et ab imo evertere summa,
Cetera de genere hoc adstringere et addere, Memmi,
Desiperest. Quid enim inmortalibus atque beatis
Gratia nostra queat largirier emolumenti,
Ut nostra quicquam causa gerere adgrediantur?
Quidve novit potuit tanto post ante quietos
Inlicere ut cuperent vitam mutare priorem?
Nam gaudere novis rebus debere videtur
Cui veteres obsunt; sed cui nil accidit aegri
Tempore in anteacto, cum pulchre degeret aevum,
Quid potuit novitatis amorem accendere tali?
At, credo, in tenebris vita ac maerore iacebat,
Donec diluxit rerum genitalis origo.
Quidve mali fuerat nobis non esse creatis?
Natus enim debet quicumque est velle manere
In vita, donec retinebit blanda voluptas.
Qui numquam vero vitae gustavit amorem
Nec fuit in numero, quid obest non esse creatum?
Exemplum porro gignundis rebus et ipsa
Notitiae divis hominum unde est insita primum,
Quid vellent facere ut scirent animoque viderent?
Quoque modest umquam vis cognita principiorum
Quidquid inter se permutato ordine possent,
Si non ipsa dedit specimen natura creandi?
Namque ita multa modis multis primordia rerum
Ex infinito iam tempore percita plagis
Ponderibusque suis consuerunt concita ferri
Omnimodisque coire atque omnia pertemptare,
Quaecumque inter se possent, congressa creare,
Ut non sit mirum si in tales disposituras
Deciderunt quoque et in tales venere meas,
Qualibvs haec rerum geritur nunc summa novando.

*Quod si iam rerum ignorem primordia quae sint,
Hoc tamen ex ipsis caeli rationibus ausim
Confirmare alisque ex rebus reddere multis,
Nequaquam nobis divinitus esse paratam
Naturam rerum; tanta stat praedita culpa.
Principio quantum caeli tegit impetus ingens,
Inde avidi partem montes silvaeque ferarum
Possedere, tenent rupes vastaeque paludes
Et mare quod late terrarum distinctet oras.
Inde duas prope partes fervidus arbor
Adsiduusque gels casus mortalibus aufert.
Quod superest arvi, tamen id natura sua vi
Sentibus obducat, ni vis humana resistat
Vitai causa valido consueta bidenti
Ingemere et terram pressis proscindere aratris.

Si non fecundas vertentes vomere glebas
Terraque solum subigentes cimus ad ortus,
Sponte sua nequeant liquidas existere in auras,
Et tamen interdum magno quaesita labore
Cum iam per terras frondent atque omnia florent,
Aut nimiiis torret fervoribus aetherius sol
Aut subiti peremunt imbres gelidaeque pruinæ, Flabraque ventorum violento turbine vexant.

*and what they could effect by a change in their mutual

Praeterea genus horriferum natura ferarum
Humanae genti infestum terraque marique
Cur alit atque auget? cur anni tempora morbos
Adportant? quare mors inmatura vagatur?
Tum porro puer, ut saevis proiectus ab undis
Navita, nudus humi iacet, insans, indigus omni
Vitali auxilio, cum primum in luminis ora
Nixibus ex alvo matris natura profudit,
Vagitucque locum lugubri complet, ut aequumst
Cui tantum in vita restet transire malorum.
At variae crescent pecudes armenta feraeque
Nec crepitacillis opus est nec cuquam adhibendast
Almae nutricis blanda atque infracta loquella
Nec varias quarerunt vestes pro tempore caeli,
Denique non armis opus est, non moenibus altis,
Qui sua tutentur, quando omnibus omnia large
Tellus ipsa parit naturaque daedala rerum.

Principio quoniam terrai corpus et umor
Aurarumque leves animae calidique vaporens,
E quibus haec rerum consistere summa videtur,
Omnia nativo ac mortali corpore constant,
Debet eadem omnis mundi natura putari.
Quippe etenim quorum partes et membra videmus
Corpore nativo ac mortalibus esse figuris,
Haec eadem ferme mortalia cernimus esse
Et nativa simul. Quapropter maxima mundi
Cum videam membra ac partes consumpta regnii,
Scire licet caeli quoque item terraeque suisse
Principiale aliquod tempus clademque futuram.

Illud in his rebus ne corripuisse rearis
Me mihi, quod terram atque ignem mortalia sumpsi
Esse neque umorem dubitavi aurasque perire
Atque eadem gigni fursusque augescere dixi,
Principio pars terrai nonnulla, perusta
Solibus adsiduis, multa pulsata pedum vi,
Pulveris exhalat nebulam nubesque volantes
Quas validi toto dispergunt aere venti.
Pars etiam glebarum ad\' diluviem revocatur
Imbribus et ripas radentina flumina rodunt.
Praeterea pro parte sua, quodcumque alid auget,
Redditur; et quoniam dubio procul esse videtur
Omniparens eadem rerum commune sepulcrum,
Ergo terra tibi libatur et aucta recrescit.
Quod superest, umore novo mare flumina fontes
Semper abundare et latices manare perennes
Nil opus est verbis: magnus decursus aquarum
Undique declarat. Sed primum quicquid aquai
Tollitur in summaque fit ut nil umor abundet,
Partim quod validi verrentes aequora venti
Diminuunt radiisque retexens aetherius sol,
Partim quod subter per terras diditur omnes.
Percolatur enim virus retroque remanat
Materies umoris et ad caput amnibus omnis
Convenit, inde super terras fluit agmine dulci
Qua via secta semel liquido pede detulit undas.
Aera nunc igitur dicam qui corpore toto
Innumerabiliter priyas mutatur in horas.
Semper enim, quodcumque fluit de rebus, id omne
Aeris in magnum furtur mare; qui nisi contra Corpora retribuat rebus recreetque fluentes,
Omnia iam resoluta forent et in aera versa.
Haud igitur cessat gigni de rebus et in res
Reccidere, adsidue quoniam fluere omnia constat.
Largus item liquidi fons luminis, aetherius sol,
Inrigat adsidue caelum candore recenti
Suppeditatque novo confestim lumine lumen.

Ignis enim superare potest ubi materiai
Ex infinito sunt corpora plura coorta;
Inde cadunt vires aliqua ratione revictae,
Aut percunt res existae torrentibus aus.
Umor item quondam coepit superare coortus,
Ut fama est, hominum multas quando obruit urbes.
Inde ubi vis aliqua ratione aversa recessit,
Ex infinito fuerat quaecumque coorta,
Constiterunt imbres et flumina vim minuerunt.

DE RERUM NATURA

Sed quibus ille modis conjectus materia
Fundarit terram et caelum pontique profunda,
Solis lunai cursus, ex ordine ponam.

Nam certe neque consilio primordia rerum
Ordine se suo quaque sagaci mente locarunt
Nec quos quaque darent motus pepigere profecto,
Sed quia multa modis multis primordia rerum
Ex infinito iam tempore percita plagis
Ponderibusque suis consuerunt concita ferri
Omnimodisque coire atque omnia pertemptare,
Quaecumque inter se possent congressa creare,
Propterera fit uti magnum volgata per aevum
Omne genus coetus et motus experiundo
Tandem conventian ea quae convecta repente
Magnarum rerum fiunt exordia saepe,
Terrai maris et caeli generisque animantum.

Hic neque tum solis rota cerni lumine largo
Altivolans poterat nec magni sidera mundi
Nec mare nec caelum nec denique terra neque aer
Nec similis nostris rebus res ulla videri.

Sed nova tempestas quaedam molesque coorta
Omne genus de principiis, discordia quorum
Intervalla vias conexus pondera plagas
Concursus motus turbabat proelia miscens,
Propter dissimiles formas variasque figuras
Quod non omnia sic poterant coniuncta manere
Nec motus inter se dare convenientes.
Diffugere inde loci partes coepere paresque
Cum paribus Iungi res et discludere mundum
Membraque dividere et magnas disponere partes,
Hoc est, a terris altum secernere caelum,
Et sorsus mare uti secreto umore pateret,
Seorsus item puri secretique aetheris ignes.
Quippe etenim primum terrai corpora quaeque,
Propterea quod erant gravia et perplexa, coibant 450
In medio atque imas capiebant omnia sedes;
Quae quanto magis inter se perplexa coibant,
Tam magis expressere ea quae mare sidera solem
Lunamque efficerent et magni moenia mundi.
Omnia enim magis haec e levibus atque rotundis
Seminibus multoque minoribus sunt elementis
Quam tellus. Ideo, per rara foramina, terrae
Partibus erumpens primus se sustulit aether
Ignifer et multos secum levis abstulit ignes;
Non alia longe ratione ac saepe videmus,
Aurea cum primum gemmantes rore per herbas
Matutina rubent radiati lumina solis
Exhalantque lacus nebulam fluviique perennes,
Ipsaque ut interdum tellus fumare videtur;
Omnia quae sursum cum conciliantur, in alto
Corpore concreto subtexunt nubila caelum.
Sic igitur tum se levis ac diffusilis aether
Corpore concreto circumdatus undique flexit
Et late diffusus in omnes undique partes
Omnia sic avido complexu cetera saepsit. 460
Hunc exordia sunt solis lunaeque secuta,
Interutrasque globi quorum vertuntur in auris;
Quae neque terra sibi adscivit nec maximus aether,
Quod neque tam fuerunt gravia ut depressa sederent,
Nec levia ut possent per summas labier oras,
Et tamen interutrasque ita sunt ut corpora viva
Versent et partes ut mundi totius extent;
Quod genus in nobis quaedam licet in statione
Membra manere, tamen cum sint ea quae moveantur.
His igitur rebus retractis terra repente,
Maxuma qua nunc se ponti plaga caerula tendit,
Succidit et salso suffudit gurgite fossas.
Inque dies quanto circum magis aetheris aestūs
Et radii solis cogeabant undique terram
Verberibus crebris extrema ad limina in artum,
In medio ut propulsa suo condensa coiret,
Tam magis expressus salus de corpore sudor
Augebat mare manando camposque natantes,
Et tanto magis illa foras elapsa volabant
Corpora multa vaporis et aeris altaque caeli
Densebant procul a terris fulgentia templā.
Sidebant campi, crescebant montibus altis
Ascensus; neque enim poterant subsidere saxa
Nec pariter tantundem omnes succumbere partes.
   Sic igitur terrae concreto corpore pondus
Constitit atque omnis mundi quasi limus in imum
Confluxit gravis et subsedit funditus ut faex;
Inde mare inde aer inde aether ignifer ipse
Corporibus liquidis sunt omnia pura relictā,
   Et levis atque alius alia, et liquidissimus aether
Atque levisimus aeras super influit auras,
Nec liquidum corpus turbantibus aeras auris
Commiscet; sinit haec violentis omnia verti
Turbinibus, sinit incertis turbare procellis,
Ipsī suos ignes certo fert impete labens.
Nam modice fluere atque uno posse aethera nīsu
Significat Pontos, mare certo quod fluit aestu
Unum labendi conservans usque tenorem.
   Motibus astrorum nunc quae sit causa canamus.
Principio magnus caeli si vertitur orbīs,
Ex utraque polum partī premere aera nobis
Dicendum est extraque tenere et claudere utrimque;
Inde alium supra fluere atque intendere eodem
Quo volvenda micant aeterni siderā mundi;
Aut alium subter, contra qui subvehat orbem,
Ut fluvios versare rotas atque hausta videmus.
Est etiam quoque uti possit caelum omne manere
In statione tamen cum lucida signa serantur;
Sive quod inclusi rapidi sunt aetheris aestus
Quaerentesque viam circum versantur et ignes
Passim per caeli volvunt Summania templae;
Sive aliunde fluens alicunde extrinsecus aer
Versat agens ignes; sive ipsi serpere possunt
Quo cuiusque cibus vocat atque invitat euntes,
Flammea per caelum pascentes corpora passim.
Nam quid in hoc mundo sit eorum ponere certum
Difficile est; sed quid possit fiatque per omne
In variis mundis varia ratione creatis,
Id doceo pluresque sequor disponere causas,
Motibus astrorum quae possint esse per omne;
E quibus una tamen sit in hoc quoque causa necessest
Quae vegeat motum signis; sed quae sit earum
Praecipere haudquaquamst pedetemptim progredientis.
Terrae ut in media mundi regione quiescat,
Evanescere paulatim et decrescere pondus
Convenit, atque aliam naturam subter habere
Ex ineunte aevo coniunctam atque uniter aptam
Partibus aeris mundi quibus insita vivit.
Propterea non est oneri neque deprimit auras;
Ut sua cuique homini nullo sunt pondere membra
Nec caput est oneri collo nec denique totum
Corporis in pedibus pondus sentimus inesse;
At quaecumque foris veniunt impostaque nobis
Pondera sunt laedunt, permulto saepe minora.
Usque adeo magni refert quid quaeque obeat res.
Sic igitur tellus non est aliena repente
Allata atque auris aliunde obiecta alienis,
Sed pariter prima concepta ab origine mundi certaque pars eius, quasi nobis membra videntur.
Praeterea grandi tonitru concussa repente terra supra quae se sunt concutit omnia motu;
quod facere haud ulla posset ratione, nisi esset partibus aeris mundi caeloque revincta.
Nam communibus inter se radicibus haerent
ex ineunte aevo coniuncta atque uniter apta.
Nonne vides etiam quam magno pondere nobis sustineat corpus tenuissima vis animai propter quia tam coniuncta atque uniter apta est?
denique iam saltu pernici tollere corpus quid potis est nisi vis animi quae membra gubernat?
iamne vides quantum tenuis natura valere possit, ubi est coniuncta gravi cum corpore, ut aer coniunctus terris et nobis est animi vis?

nec nimio solis maior rota nec minor ardor esse potest, nostri quam sensibus esse videtur.
Nam quibus e'spatiis cumque ignes lumina possunt adiciere et calidum membris adflare vaporem, nil illa his intervallis de corpore libant flammarum, nil ad speciem est contractior ignis.
proinde, calor quoniam solis lumenque profusum perveniunt nostros ad sensus et loca mulcent, forma quoque hinc solis debet filumque videri, nil adeo ut possis plus aut minus addere, vere.
lunaque sive notho fertur loca lumine lustrans sive suam proprio iactat de corpore lucem, quidquid id est, nilo fertur maiore figura
quam, nostri oculis qua cernimus, esse videtur.

Nam prius omnia, quae longe semota tuemur aera per multum, specie confusa videntur quam minui filum. quaapropter luna necesse est,
Quandoquidem claram speciem certamque figuram
Praebet, ut est oris extremis cumque notata
Quantaque quantast hinc nobis videatur in alto.
Postremo quoscumque vides hinc aetheris ignes; 585
Quandoquidem quoscumque in terris cernimus ignes,
Dum tremor est clarus, dum cernitur ardor eorum,
Perparyum quiddam interdum mutare videtur
Alteram utram in partem filum, quo longius absunt;
Scire licet perquam pauxillo posse minores
Esse vel exigua maiores parte brevique.
Illud item non est mirandum, qua ratione
Tantulus ille queat tantum sol mittere lumen,
Quod maria ac terras omnes caelumque rigando
Compleat et calido perfundat cuncta vapore.
Nam licet hinc mundi patefactum totius unum
Largifluum fontem scatere atque erumpere lumen,
Ex omni mundo quia sic elementa vaporis
Undique conveniunt et sic coniectus eorum
Confluit, ex uno capite hic ut profluat ardom.
Nonne vides etiam quam late parvus aquai
Prata riget fons interdum campisque redundet?
Est etiam quoque uti non magno solis ab igni
Aera percipiat calidis fervoribus ardor,
Opportunus ita est si forte et idoneus aer,
Ut queat accendi parvis ardoribus ictus;
Quod genus interdum segetes stipulamque videmus
Accidere ex una scintilla incendia passim.
Forsitan et rosea sol alite lampade lucens
Possideat multum caecis fervoribus ignem
Circum se, nullo qui sit fulgore notatus,
Aestifer ut tantum radiorum exaugeat ictum.
Nec ratio solis simplex et certa patescit,
Quo pacto aestivis e partibus aegocerotis 615
DE RERUM NATURA

Brumales adeat flexus atque inde revertens
Cancri se ut vertat metas ad solstitialia,
Lunaque mensibus id spatium videatur obire,
Annua sol in quo consumit tempora cursu.
Non, inquam, simplex his rebus reddita causast.
Nam fieri vel cum primis id posse videtur,
Democriti quod sancta viri sententia ponit,
Quanto quaeque magis sint terram sidera propter,
Tanto posse minus cum caeli turbine ferri.

Evanescere enim rapidas illius et acres
Imminui subter vires, ideoque relinqui
Paulatim solem cum posterioribus signis,
Inferior nam multo quod sit quam fervida signa.

Et magis hoc lunam: quanto demissior eius
Cursus abest procul a caelo terrisque propinquat,
Tanto posse minus cum signis tendere cursum.
Flaccidiore etenim quanto iam turbine fertur
Inferior quam sol, tanto magis omnia signa

Hanc adipiscuntur circum praeterque feruntur.
Propteret fit ut haec ad signum quodque reverti
Mobilius videatur, ad hanc quia signa revisunt.

Fit quoque ut e mundi transversis partibus aer
Alternis certo fluere alter tempore possit,
Qui queat aestivis solem detrudere signis

Brumales usque ad flexus gelidumque rigorem,
Et qui reiciat gelidis a frigoris umbris
Aestiferas usque in partes et fervida signa.

Et ratione pari lunam stellasque putandum st,
Quae volvunt magnos in magnis orbibus annos,
Aeribus posse alternis e partibus ire.

Nonne vides etiam diversis nubila ventis
Diversas ire in partes inferna supernis?
Qui minus illa queant per magnos aetheris orbes
Aestibus inter se diversis sidera ferri?
At nox obruit ingenti caligine terras,
Aut ubi de longo cursu sol ultima caeli
Impulit atque suos efflavit languidus ignes
Concussos itere et labes factos aere multo,
Aut quia sub terras cursum convertere cogit
Vis eadem, supra quae terras pertulit orbem.

Tempore item certo roseam Matuta per oras
Aetheris auroram differt et lumina pandit,
Aut quia sol idem, sub terras ille revertens,
Anticipat caelum radiis accendere temptans,
Aut quia conveniunt ignes et semina multa
Confluere ardoris consuerunt tempore certo,
Quae faciunt solis nova semper lumina gigni;
Quod genus Idaeis fama est e montibus altis
Dispersos ignes oriente lumine cerni,
Inde coire globum quasi in unum et conficere orbem.

Nec tamen illud in his rebus mirabile debet
Esse, quod haec ignis tam certo tempore possunt
Semina confluere et solis reparare nitorem.
Multa videmus enim, certo quae tempore fiunt
Omnibus in rebus. Florescunt tempore certo
Arbusta et certo dimittunt tempore florem.
Nec minus in certo dentes cadere imperat aetas
Tempore et impubem molli pubescere veste
Et pariter mollem malis demittere barbam.
Fulmina postremo nix imbres nubila venti
Non nimis incertis fiunt in partibus anni.
Namque ubi sic fuerunt causarum exordia prima,
Atque ita res mundi cecidere ab origine prima,
Consequé quoque iam redeunt ex ordine certo.

Crescere itemque dies licet et tabescere noctes,
Et minui luces cum sumant augmina noctes,
Aut quia sol idem sub terras atque superne
Imparibus currens amfractibus aetheris oras
Partit et in partes non aequas dividit orbem,
Et quod ab alterutra detraxit parte, reponit 685
Eius in adversa tanto plus parte relatus,
Donec ad id signum caeli pervenit, ubi anni
Nodus nocturnas exaequat lucibus umbras.
Nam, medio cursu flatus aquilonis et aëstri,
Distinet aequato caelum discrimine metas
Propter signiferi posituram totius orbis,
Annua sol in quo concludit tempora serpens,
Obliquo terras et caelum lumine lustrans,
Ut ratio declarat eorum qui loca caeli
Omnia dispositis signis ornata notarunt. 695
Aut quia crassior est certis in partibus aer,
Sub terris ideo tremulum iubar haesitat ignis
Nec penetrare potest facile atque emergere ad ortus.
Propterere noctes hiberno tempore longae
Cessant, dum veniat radiatum insigne diei. 700
Aut etiam, quia sic alternis partibus anni
Tardius et citius consuerunt confluere ignes
Qui faciunt solem certa desurgere parte,
Proptererea fit uti videantur dicere verum
Qui faciunt solis semper nova lumina gigni.
Luna potest solis radiis percussa nitere 705
Inque dies magis id lumen convertere nobis
Ad speciem, quantum solis secedit ab orbi,
Donique eum contra pleno bene lumine fulsit
Atque oriens obitus eius super edita vidit;
Inde minutatim retro quasi condere lumen
Debet item, quanto propius iam solis ad ignem
Labitur ex alia signorum parte per orbem;
Ut faciunt, lunam qui fingunt esse pilai
Consimilem cursusque viam sub sole tenere.
Est etiam quare proprio cum lumine possit
Volvier et varias splendoris reddere formas.
Corpus enim licet esse aliud quod fertur et una Labitur omnimodis occursans officiensque
Nec potis est cerni, quia cassum lumine fertur.
Versarique potest, globus ut, si forte, pilai
Dimidia ex parti candenti lumine tinctus,
Versandoque globum variantes edere formas,
Donique eam partem, quaecumque est ignibus aucta,
Ad speciem vertit nobis oculosque patentes;
Inde minutatim retro contorquet et aufert
Luciferam partem glomeraminis atque pilai;
Ut Babylonica Chaldaeum doctrina refutans
Astrologorum artem contra convincere tendit,
Proinde quasi id fieri nequeat quod pugnat uterque
Aut minus hoc illo sit cur amplectier ausis.
Denique cur nequeat semper nova luna creari
Ordine formarum certo certisque figuris
Inque dies privos aborisci quaeque creata
Atque alia illius reparari in parte locoque,
Difficilest ratione docere et vincere verbis,
Ordine cum possint tam certo multa creari.
It ver et Venus, et Veneris praenuntius ante
Pennatus graditur, zephyri vestigia propter
Flora quibus mater praespargens ante viai
Cuncta coloribus egregiis et odoribus opplet.
Inde loci sequitur calor aridus et comes una Pulverulenta Ceres et etesia flabra aquilonum.
Inde autumnus adit, graditur simul Euhius Euan.
Inde aliae tempestates ventique sequuntur,
Altitonans Volturnus et auster fulmine pollens.
Tandem bruma nives adfert pigrumque rigorem
Reddit: hiemps sequitur crepitans hanc dentibus algu.
Quo minus est mirum si certo tempore luna
Gignitur et certo deletur tempore rusus,
Cum fieri possint tam certo tempore multa.

Solis item quoque defectus lunaeque latebras
Pluribus e causis fieri tibi posse putandumst.
Nam cur luna queat terram secludere solis
Lumine et a terris altum caput obstruere ei,
Obiciens caecum radiis ardentibus orbem;
Tempore eodem aliud facere id non posse putetur
Corpus quod cassum labatur lumine semper?
Solque suos etiam dimittere languidus ignes
Tempore cur certo nequeat recreareque lumen,
Cum loca praeteriit flammis infesta per auras,
Quae faciunt ignes interstingui atque perire?
Et cur terra queat lunam spoliare vicissim
Lumine et oppressum solem super ipsa tenere,
Menstrua dum rigidas coni perlabitur umbras;
Tempore eodem aliud nequeat succurrere lunae
Corpus vel supra solis perlabier orbem,
Quod radios interrumpat lumenque profusum?
Et tamen ipsa suo si fulget luna nitore,
Cur nequeat certa mundi languescere parte,
Dum loca luminibus propriis inimica per exit?

Quod superest, quoniam magni per caerula mundi
Qua fieri quicquid posset ratione resolvi,
Solis uti varios cursus lunaeque meatus
Noscere possemus quae vis et causa cieret,
Quove modo possent effecto lumine obire
Et neque opinantes tenebris obducere terras,
Cum quasi conivent et aperto lumine rursum
Omnia convisunt clara loca candida luce;
Nunc redeo ad mundi novitatem et mollia terrae.
Arva, novo fetu quid primum in luminis oras
Tollere et incertis crerint committere ventis.

Principio genus herbarum viridemque nitorem
Terra dedit circum colles camposque per omnes;
Florida fulserunt viridanti prata colore,
Arboribusque datum variis exinde per auras
Crescendi magnum inmissis certamen habenis.

Ut pluma atque pili primum saetaeque creantur
Quadripedum membris et corpore pennipotentum,
Sic nova tum tellus herbas virgultaque primum
Sustulit, inde loci mortalia saecla creavit
Multa modis multis varia ratione coorta.
Nam neque de caelo cecidisse animalia possunt
Nec terrestria de salsis exisse lacunis.
Linquitur ut merito maternum nomen adepta
Terra sit, et terra quoniam sunt cuncta creat.
Multaque nunc etiam existunt animalia terris
Imbribus et calido solis concreta vapore;
Quo minus est mirum si tum sunt plura coorta
Et maiora, nova tellure atque aethere adulta.

Principio genus alituum variaeque volucre
Ova relinquebant exclusae tempore verno,
Folliculos ut nunc teretes aestate cicadae
Linquunt sponte sua victum vitamque petentes.
Tum tibi terra dedit primum mortalia saecla.

Multus enim calor atque umor superabat in arvis.
Hoc ubi quaeque loci regio opportuna dabatur,
Crescebant uteri terram radicibus apti;
Quos ubi tempore maturo patefecerat aestus
Infantum fugiens umorem aurasque petessens,
Convertebat ibi natura foramina terrae
Et sucum venis cogebat fundere apertis
Consimilem lactis, sicut nunc femina quaeque
DE RERUM NATURA

Cum peperit, dulci repletur lacte, quod omnis
Impetus in mammas convertitur ille alimenti. 815
Terra cibum pueris, vestem vapor, herba cubile
Praebebat multa et molli lanugine abundans.
At novitas mundi nec frigora dura ciebat
Nec nimios aestus nec magnis viribus auras.
Omnia enim pariter crescunt et robora sumunt.

Quare etiam atque etiam maternum nomen adepta
Terra tenet merito, quoniam genus ipsa creavit
Humanum atque animal prope certo tempore fudit
Omne quod in magnis bacchatur montibu' passim,
Aeriasque simul volucres variantibu' formis. 825
Sed quia finem aliquam pariendi debet habere,
Destitit, ut mulier spatio defessa vetusto.
Mutat enim mundi naturam totius aetas,
Ex alioque alius status excipere omnia debet,
Nec manet ulla sui similis res: omnia migrant,
Omnia commutat natura et vertere cogit.
Namque aliud putrescit et aevo debile languet,
Porro aliud clarescit et e contemptibus exit.
Sic igitur mundi naturam totius aetas
Mutat et ex alio terram status excipit alter:
Quod potuit nequit, ut possit quod non tuit ante.

Multaque tum tellus etiam portenta creare
Conatast mira facie membrisque coorta,
Androgynum, interutrasque nec utrum, utrimque remotum,
Orba pedum partim, manuum viduata vicissim, 830
Muta sine ore etiam, sine voltu caeca reperta,
Vinctaetque membrorum per totum corpus adhaesu,
Nec facere ut possent quicquam nec cedere quoquam
Nec vitare malum nec sumere quod foret usus.
Cetera de genere hoc monstra ac portenta creabat;
Nequiquam, quoniam natura absterruit auctum
Nec potuere cupitum aetatis tangere florem
Nec reperire cibum nec iungi per Veneris res.
Multa videmus enim rebus concurrere debere,
Ut propagando possint procudere saeca.

Multaque tum interiisse animantium saeca necesset
Nec potuisse propagando procudere prolem.
Nam quaecumque vides vesci vitalibus auris,
Aut dolus aut virtus aut denique mobilitas est
Ex ineunte aevo genus id tutata reservans.

Multaque sunt, nobis ex utilitate sua quae
Commendata manent, tutelae tradita nostrae.
Principio genus acre leonum saevaque saeca
Tutatast virtus, volpes dolus et fuga cervos.

At levisomna canum fido cum pectore corda

Et genus omne quod est veterino semine partum
Lanigeraeque simul pecudes et bucera saeca
Omnia sunt hominum tutelae tradita, Memmi.

Nam cupide fugere feras pacemque secuta
Sunt et larga suo sine pabula parta labore,
Quae damus utilitatis eorum praemia causa.

At quis nil horum tribuit natura, nec ipsa
Sponte sua possent ut vivere nec dare nobis
Utilitatem aliquam quare pateremur eorum

Praesidio nostro pasci genus esseque tutum,
Scilicet haec aliis praedae lucroque iacebant
Indupedita suis fatalibus omnia vinculis,
Donec ad interitum genus id natura redegit.

Sed neque Centauri fuerunt, nec tempore inullo

Esse queunt duplici natura et corpore bino
Ex alienigenis membris compacta, potestas

Quae neque florescunt pariter nec robora sumunt 895
Corporibus neque proiciunt aetate senecta
Nec simili Venere ardescunt nec moribus unis
Conveniunt, neque sunt eadem iucunda per artus.
Quippe videre licet pinguescere saepe cicuta
Barbigeras pecudes, homini quae est acre venenum. 900
Flamma quidem vero cum corpora fulva leonum
Tam soleat torrere atque urere quam genus omne
Visceris in terris quodcumque et sanguinis extet,
Qui fieri potuit, triplex cum corpore ut una,
Prima leo, postrema draco, media ipsa, Chimaera
Ore foras acrem flaret de corpore flammam?
Quare etiam tellure nova caeloque recenti
Talia qui fingit potuisse animalia gigni,
Nixus in hoc uno novitatis nomine inani,
Multa licet simili ratione effutiát ore, 910
Aurea tum dicat per terras flumina vulgo
Fluxisse et gemmis florere arbusta suèsse
Aut hominem tanto membrorum esse impete natum,
Trans maria alta pedum nisus ut ponere posset
Et manibus totum circum se vertere caelum.
Nam quod multa fuere in terris semina rerum
Tempore quo primum tellus animalia fudit,
Nil tamen est signi mixtas potuisse creari
Inter se pecudes compactaque membra animantum,
Propterea quia quae de terris nunc quoque abundant
Herbarum genera ac fruges arbustaque laeta
Non tamen inter se possunt complexa creari,
Sed res quaeque suo ritu procedit et omnes
Foedere naturae certo discrimina servant.

At genus humanum multo fuit illud in arvis
Durius, ut decuit, tellus quod dura creasset,
Et maioribus et solidis magis ossibus intus
Fundatum, validis aptum per viscera nervis,
Nec facile ex aëstu nec frigore quod caperetur
Nec novitate cibi nec labi corporis uella,
Multaque per caelum solis volventia lustra
Volgivago vitam tractabant more ferarum.

Nec robustus erat curvi moderator aratri
Quisquam, nec scibat ferro molirier arva
Nec nova defodere in terram virgulta neque altis
Arboribus veteres decidere falcibus ramos.
Quod sol atque imbres dederant, quod terra crearat
Sponte sua, satis id placabat pectora donum.
Glandiferas inter curabant corpora quercus Plerumque; et quae nunc hiberno tempore cernis
Arbita puniceo fieri matura colore,
Plurima tum tellus etiam majora ferebat.
Multaque praeterea novitas tum florida mundi
Pabula dura tulit, miseris mortalibus ampla.

At sedare sitim fluvii fontesque vocabant,
Ut nunc montibus e magnis decursus aquai
Claru' citat late sitientia sæcla ferarum.

Denique nota vagi silvestria templa tenebant
Nympharum, quibus e scibant umori' fluenta
Lubrica proluvie larga lavere umida saxa, Umida saxa, super viridi stillantia musco,
Et partim plano scatere atque erumpere campo.
Necdum res igni scibant tractare neque uti
Pellibus et spoliis corpus vestire ferarum,
Sed nemora atque cavos montes silvasque colebant
Et frutices inter condebant squalida membra
Verbera ventorum vitare imbresque coacti.
Nec commune bonum poterant spectare neque ullis
Moribus inter se scibant nec legibus uti.
Quod cuique obtulerat praedae fortuna, ferebat
Sponte sua sibi quisque valere et vivere doctus.
Et Venus in silvis iungebat corpora amantum;
Conciliabat enim vel mutua quamque cupido
Vel pretium, glandes atque arbita vel pira lecta.
Et manuum mira virtute pedumque
Consectabantur silvestria saecla ferarum
Missilibus saxis et magno pondere clavae;
Multaque vincebant, vitabant paucar latebris;
Saetigerisque pares subu sic silvestria membra
Nuda dabant terrae nocturno tempore capti,
Circum se foliis ac frondibus involventes.
Nec plangore diem magno solemque per agros
Quaerebant pavid palantes noctis in umbris,
Sed taciti respectabant somnoque sepulti,
Dum rosea face sol inferret lumina caelo.
A parvis quod enim consuerant cernere semper
Alterno tenebras et lucem tempore gigni,
Non erat ut fieri posset mirarier umquam
Nec diffidere ne terras aeterna teneret
Nox in perpetuum detracto lumine solis.
Sed magis illud erat curae, quod saecla ferarum
Infestam miseris faciebant saepe quietem.

Quo sic sunt erant, just as they were?
Eiectique domo fugiebant saxeae tecta
Spumigeri suis adventu validique leonis
Atque intempesta cedebant nocte paventes
Hospitibus saevis instrata cubilia fronde.

Nec nimio tum plus quam nunc mortalia saecla
Dulcia lincebant labentiis lumina vitae.

DE RERUM NATURA

Non ita iam possent caeli sub tegmine ferre,
Et Venus inminuit vires puerique parentum
Blanditiis facile ingenium fregere superbum.
Tunc et amicitiam coeperunt iungere avertentes
Finitimi inter se nec laedere nec violari,
Et pueros commendarunt muliebreque saeculum;
Vocibus et gestu cum balbe significarent
Imbecillorum esse aequum misererier omnes.

Nec tamen omnimodis poterat concordia gigni,
Sed bona magna pars servabat foedera castæ;
Aut genus humanum iam tum foret omne peremptum
Nec potuisset adhuc perduere saecla propago.

At varios linguae sonitus natura subegit
Mittere et utilitas expressit nomina rerum,
Non alia longe ratione atque ipsa videtur
Protrahere ad gestum pueros infantiae linguae.
Cum facit ut digito quae sint praesentia monstrant.
Sentit enim vim quisque suam quoad possit abuti.

Cornua nata prius vitulo quam frontibus extent,
Illis iratus petit atque infestus inurget.

At catuli pantherarum scymnique leonum
Unguibus ac pedibus iam tum morsuque repugnant,
Vix etiam cum sunt dentes unguæque creati.

Alituum porro genus alis omne videmus
Fidere et a pinnis tremulum petere auxiliatum.

Proinde putare aliquem tum nomina distribuisse
Rebus et inde homines didicisse vocabula prima, Desiperest. Nam cur hic posset cuncta notare
Vocibus et varios sonitus emittere linguae,
Tempore eodem alii facere id non quise putentur?

Praeterea si non alii quoque vocibus usi
Inter se fuerant, unde insita notitiae est
Utilitatis et unde data est huic prima potestas,
LIBER QUINTUS.

Quid vellet facere ut sciret animoque videret?
Cogere item plures unus victosque domare
Non poterat, rerum ut perdisere nomina vellent.
Nec ratione docere ulla suadereque surdis,
Quid sit opus facto, facilest; neque enim paterentur
Nec ratione ulla sibi ferrent amplius aures
Vocis inauditos sonitus obtundere frustra.
Postremo quid in hac mirabile tantoperest re,
Si genus humanum cui vox et lingua vigeret,
Pro vario sensu varia res voce notaret?
Cum pecudes mutae, cum denique saecla ferarum
Dissimiles soleant voces variasque ciere,
Cum metus aut dolor est et cum iam gaudia gliscunt.
Quijpe etenim licet id rebus cognoscere apertis.
Inritata canum cum primum magna Molossum
Mollia ricta fremunt duros nudantia dentes,
Longe alio sonitu rabie restricta minantur,
Et cum iam latrant et vocibus omnia complent.
Et catulos blande cum lingua lambere temptant
Aut ubi eos iactant pedibus morsuque petentes
Suspensis teneros imitantur dentibus haustus,
Longe alio pacto gannitu vocis adulant,
Et cum deserti baubantur in aedibus aut cum
Plorantes fugiunt summisso corpore plagas.
Denique non hinnitus item differre videtur,
Inter equas ubi equus florenti aetate iuvencus
Pinnigeri saevit calcarius ictus amoris,
Et fremitum patulis ubi naribus edit ad arma,
Et cum sic alias concussis artibus hinnit?
Postremo genus alituum variaeque volucres,
Accipitres atque ossifragae mergique marinis
Fluctibus in salso victum vitamque petentes,
Longe alias alio iaciunt in tempore voces,
DE RERUM NATURA

Et quom de victu certant praedaeque repugnant.
Et partim mutant cum tempestatibus una
Raucisonos cantus, cornicum ut saecla-vetusta
Corvorumque greges ubi aquam dicuntur et imbres 1085
Poscere et interdum ventos aurasque vocare.
Ergo si vari sensus animalia cogunt,
Muta tamen cum sint, varias emittere voces,
Quanto mortales magis aequumst tum potuisse
Dissimiles alia atque alia res voce notare!

Illud in his rebus tacitus ne forte requiras,
Fulmen detulit in terram mortalibus ignem
Primitus, inde omnis flammarum diditur aëdor.
Multa videmus enim caelestibus inllta flammis
Fulgere, cum caeli donavit plaga vapore.
Et ramosa tamen cum ventis pulsa vacillans
Aestuat in ramos incumbens arboris arbor,
Exprimitur validis extritus viribus ignis
Et micat interdum flammai fervidus aëdor,
Mutua dum inter se rami stirpesque teruntur.

Quorum utrumque dedisse potest mortalibus ignem.
Inde cibum coquire ac flammae mollire vapore
Sol docuit, quoniam mitescere multa videbant
Verheribus radiorum atque aestu victa per agros.

Inque dies magis hi victum vitamque priorem
Commutare noysis monstrabant reby benigni,
Ingenio qui praestabat et corde vigebant.
Condere coeperunt urbes arcemque locare
Praesidium reges ipsi sibi perfugiumque,
Et pecus atque agros divisere atque dedere
Pro facie cuiusque et viribus ingenioque;
Nam facies multum valuit viresque vigentes.
Posterius res inventast aurumque repertum,
Quod facile et validis et pulchris dempsit honorem;

pro: in proportionis.
Liber Quintus.

Divitioris enim sectam plerumque sequuntur
Quam lubet et fortiss et pulchro corpore creti.
Quod si quis vera vitam ratione gubernet,
Divitiae grandes homini sunt vivere parce
Aequo animo; neque enim est umquam penuria parvi.
At claros homines voluerunt se atque potentiss,
Ut fundamentum stabilis fortuna maneret
Et placidam possent opulentis degere vitam;
Nequiquam, quoniam ad summum succedere honorem
Certantes iter infestum fecerint vial,
Et tamen e summo, quasi fulmen, decit ictus
Invidia interdum contemptim in Tartara taetra;
Invidia quoniam, ceu fulmine, summa vaporant
Plerumque et quae sunt aliis magis edita cumque;
Ut satius multo iam sit parere quietum
Quam regere imperio res velle et regna tenere.
Proinde sine incassum defessi sanguine sudent,
Angustum per iter luctantes ambitionis;
Quandoquidem sapiunt alieno ex ore petuntque
Res ex auditis potius quam sensibus ipsis,
Nec magis id nunc est neque erit mox quam fuit ante.

Ergo regibus occisis subversa iacebat
Pristina maiestas soliorum et sceptrum superba,
Et capitis summi praeciprum insigne cruentum
Sub pedibus vulgi magnum lugebat honorem;
Nam cupide conculcatur nimis ante metum.
Res itaque ad summam faecem turbasque redibat,
Imperium sibi cum ac summatum quisque petebat.
Inde magistratum partim docuere creare
Iuraque constituisse, ut vellent legibus uti.
Nam genus humanum, defessum vi colere aevum,
Ex inimicitia lungebat; quo magis ipsum
Sponte sua cecidit sub leges et artaque iura.

a fixed our with a life of brute force.
Acrius ex ira quod enim se quisque parabat
Ulcisci quam nunc concessumst legibus aequis,
Hanc ob rem est homines vertaeum vi colere aevom. 1150
Inde metus maculat poenam praemia vitae.
Circumretit enim vis atque iniuria quemque
Atque, unde exortast, ad eum plerumque revertit,
Nec facilest placidam ac pacatam degere vitam
Qui violat factis communia foedera pacis.
Etsi fallit enim divum genus humanumque,
Perpetuo tamen id fore clam diffidere debet;
Quippe ubi se multi per somnia saepe loquentes
Aut morbo delirantes protraxer serantur
Et celata mala in medium et peccata dedisse.
Nunc quae causa deum per magnas numina gentes
Pervulgarit et ararum compleverit urbes
Suscipiendaque curarit sollemnia sacra,
Quae nunc in magnis florent sacra rebu locisque,
Unde etiam nunc est mortalibus insitus horror
Qui delubra deum nova toto suscitat orbī
Terrarum et festis cogit celebrare diebus,
Non ita difficultest rationem reddere verbis.
Quippe etenim iam tum divum mortalia saecla
Egregias animo facies vigilante videbant
Et magis in somnis mirando corporis auctu.
His igitur sensum tribuebant propterea quod
Membra movere videbant vocesque superbas
Mittere pro facie praeclara et viribus amplis.
Aeternamque dabant vitam, quia semper eorum
Suppeditabatur facies et forma manebat,
Et tamen omnino quod tantis viribus auctos
Non temere ulla vi convinci posse putabant.
Fortunisque ideo longe praestare putabant,
Quod mortis timor haud quemquam vexaret eorum, 1180
Et simul in somnis quia multa et mira videbant
Efficere et nullum capere ipsos inde laborem.
Praeterea caeli rationes ordine certo
Et varia annorum cernebant tempora verti
Nec poterant quibus id fieret cognoscere causis.
Ergo perfugium sibi habeabant omnia divis
Tradere et illorum nutu facere omnia flecti.
In caeloque deum sedes et templum locarunt,
Per caelum volvi quia nox et luna videtur,
Luna dies et nox et noctis signa severa
Noctivagaeque faces caeli flammaeque volantes,
Nubila sol imbrices nix venti fulmina grando
Et rapidi tremitus et murmura magna minarum.
O genus infelix humanum, talia divis
Cum tribuit facta atque iras adiunxit acerbas!
Quantos tum gemitus ipsi sibi, quantaque nobis
Volnera, quas lacrimas peperere minoribus nostris!
Nec pietas ullast velatum saepe videri
Vertier ad lapidem atque omnes accedere ad aras
Nec procumbere humi prostratum et pandere palmas
Ante deum delubra nec aras sanguine multo
Spargere quadrupedum nec votis nectere vota,
Sed mage pacata posse omnia mente tueri.
Nam cum suspicimus magni cælestia mundi
Templa, super stellisque micantibus aethera fixum,
Et venit in mentem solis lunaeque viarum,
Tunc alis oppressa malis in pectora cura
Illa quoque exerget factum caput erigere inquit,
Nequae forte deum nobis inmensa potestas
Sit, vario motu quae candida sidera verset.
Temptat enim dubiam mentem rationis egestas,
Ecquaenam fuerit mundi genitalis origo,
Et simul ecquae sit finis, quoad moenia mundi
Solliciti motus hunc possint ferre laborem,
An divinitus acerna donata salute
Perpetuo possint aeui labentia tractu
Inmensi validas aevi contemnere vires.
Praeterea cui non animus formidine divum
Contrahitur, cui non correpunt membra pavore,
Fulminis horribili cum plaga torrida tellus
Contremi et magnum percurrunt murmura caelum?
Non populi gentesque tremunt, regesque superbi
Corripiunt divum percussi membra timore,
Nequid ob admissum foede dictumve superbe
Poenarum grave sit solvendi tempus adulum?
Summa etiam cum vis violenti per mare venti
Induperatorem classis super aequora verrit
Cum validis pariter legionibus atque elephantis,
Non divum pacem votis adit ac prece quaesit
Ventorum pavidus paces animasque secundas?
Nequiquam, quoniam violento turbine saepe
Corruptus nilo fertur minus ad vada leti.
Usque adeo res humanas vis abdita quaedam
Obterit et pulchros fasces saevasque secures Procululcere ac ludibrio sibi habere videtur.
Denique sub pedibus tellus cum tota vacillat
Concussaeque cadunt urbes dubiaeque minantur,
Quid mirum si se temnunt mortalia saecla
Atque potestates magnas mirasque relinquunt
In rebus vires divum, quae cuncta gubernent?
Quod superest, aes atque aurum ferrumque repertumst
Et simul argenti pondus plumbique potestas,
Ignis ubi ingentes silvas ardore cremarat
Montibus in magnis, seu caeli fulmine misso,
Sive quod inter se bellum silvestre gerentes
Hostibus intulerant ignem formidinis ergo,
Sive quod inducti terrae bonitate volebant
Pandere agros pingues et pascua reddere rura,
Sive feras interficere et ditesca praedae.
Nam fovea atque igni prius est, venarier ortum
Quam saepere plagi saltum canibusque xiere.
Quidquid est, quacumque e causa flammeus ardor
Horribili sonitu silvas exederat altis
Ab radicibus et terram percozerat igni,
Manabat venis ferventibus in loca terrae
Concava conveniens argenti rivus et auri,
Aeris item et plumbi. Quae cum concreta videbant
Posterius claro in terra splendere colore,
Tollebant nitido capi leviqve lepore,
Et similis formati videbant esse figura
Atque lacunarum fuerant vestigia cuique.
Tum penetrabat eos posse haec liquefacta calore
Quamlibet in formam et faciem decurrere rerum
Et prorsum quamvis in acuta ac tenuia posse
Mucronum duci fastigia procedendo,
Ut sibi tela darent, silvasque ut caedere possent
Materiemque dolare et levia radere tigna
Et terere etiam ac pertundere perque forare.
Nec minus argento facere haec auroque parabant
Quam validi primum violentis viribus aeris;
Nequiquam, quoniam cedere victa potestas
Nec poterat pariter durum sufferre laborom.
Tum fuit in pretio magis aequum iacebat
Propter inutilitatem hebeti mucrone retugum.
Nunc iacet aes, aurum in summum successit honorem.
Sic volvenda aetas commutat temporarum rerum.
Quod fuit in pretio, fit nullo denique honore;
Porro aliud succedit et e contemptibus exit
Inque dies magis adpetitur floretque repertum.
Laudibus et miro est mortales inter honore. 1280
Nunc tibi quo pacto ferri natura reperta
Sit facilest ipsi per te cognoscere, Memmi.
Arma antiqua manus unguis dentesque fuerunt
Et lapides et item silvarum fragmina rami,
Et flamma atque ignes, postquam sunt cognita primum. 1285
Posterius ferri vis est aerisque reperta.
Et prior aeris erat quam ferri cognitus usus,
Quo facilis magis est natura et copia maior.
Aere solum terrae tractabant, aereque belli
Miscebant fluctus et vulnera vasta serebant
Et pecus atque agros adimebant; nam facile ollis
Omnia cedebant armatis nuda et inerma.
Inde minutatim processit ferreus ensis
Versaque in opprobrium species est falcis aenae,
Et ferro coepere solum proscindere terrae
Exaequataque sunt creperi certamina belli.
Et prius est armatum in equi conscendere costas
Et moderarier hunc frenis dextraque vigere
Quam biiugo curru belli temptare p licla.
Et biiugos prius est quam bis coniungere binos
Et quam falciferos armatum descendere currus.
Inde boves Lucas turrito corpore, taetras,
Anguimanus, belli docuerunt volnera Poeni
Sufferre et magnas Martis turbare catervas.
Sic alid ex alio peperit discordia tristis,
Horrible humanis quod gentibus esset in armis,
Inque dies belli terroribus addidit augmen.
Temptarunt etiam tauros in munere belli
Expertique suas saevos sunt mittere in hostes.
Et validos partim prae se misere leones
Cum doctoribus armatis saevisque magistris
Qui moderarier his possent vincisque tenere;
Nequiquam, quoniam permixta caede calentes
Turbabant saevi nullo discrimine turmas,
Terrificas capitum quatientes undique cristas,
Nec poterant equites fremitu perterrita equorum
Pectora mulcere et frenis convertere in hostes.
Inritata leae iaciebant corpora saltu
Undique et adversum venientibus ora pelebant
Et nec opinantes a tergo deripiebant
Deplexaeque dabant in terram volnere victos;
Morsibus adfixae validis atque unguibus uncis.
Iactabantque suos tauri pedibusque terebant
Et latera ac ventres hauribant subter equorum
Cornibus et terram mimitanti fronte ruebant.
Et validis socios caedebant dentibus apri
Tela infracta suo tinguentes sanguine saevi,
In se fracta suo tinguentes sanguine tela,
Permixtasque dabant equitum peditumque ruinas.
Nam transversa feros exibant dentis adactus
Iumenta aut pedibus ventos erecta petebant;
Nequiquam, quoniam ab nervis succisa videres
Concidere atque gravi terram consternere casu.
Siquos ante domi domitos satis esse putabant,
Et fervescere cernebant in rebus agundis
Volneribus clamore fuga terrore tumultu,
Nec poterant ullam partem redducere eorum;
Diffugiebat enim varium genus omne ferarum;
Ut nunc saepe boves Lucae ferro male mactae
Diffugiunt, fera facta suis cum multa dedere.
Sed facere id non tam vincendi spe voluerunt,
Quam dare quod gemerent hostes, ipsique perire,
Qui numero diffidebant armisque vacabant.
Nexilis ante fuit vestis quam textile tegmen.
Textile post ferrumst, quia ferro tela paratur,
DE RERUM NATURA

Nec ratione alia possunt tam levia gigni
Insilia ac lusi, radii scapique sonantes.
Et facere ante viros lanam natura coegit
Quam muliebre genus; nam longe praestat in arte
Et sollertiis est multo genus omne virile.
Agricolae donec vitio vertere severi,
Ut muliebribus id manibus concedere vellent
Atque ipsi pariter durum sufferre laborem
Atque opere in duro durarent membra manusque.

Et facere ante viros lanam natura coegit
Quam muliebre genus; nam longe praestat in arte

At specimen sationis et insitionis origo
Ipsa fuit rerum primum natura creatrix,
Arboribus quoniam baceae glandesque caducae
Tempestiva dabant pullorum examina subter;
Unde etiam libitumst stirpes committere ramis
Et nova defodere in terram virgulta per agros.
Inde aliam atque aliam culturam dulcis agelli
Temptabant fructusque feros mansuescere terram
Cernebant indulgendo blandeque colendo.
Inde dies magis in montem succedere silvas
Cobeant infraque locum concedere cultis,
Prata lacus rivos segetes vinetaque laeta
Collibus et campis ut haberent, atque olearum
Caerula distinguens inter plagas currere posset
Per tumulos et convallles camposque profusa;
Ut nunc esse vides variò distincta lepore
Omnia, quae pomis intersita dulcis iornant
Arbustisque tenent felicibus obsita circum.
At liquidas avium voces imitarier ore
Ante fuit multo quam levia carmina cantu
Concelebrare homines possent aureisque iuvare.
Et zephyri, cava per calamorum, sibila primum
Agrestes docuere cavas inflare cicutas.
Inde minuatim dulces didicere querellas,
Tibia quas fundit digitis pulsata canentum,
Avia per nemora ac silvas saltusque reperta,
Per loca pastorum deserta atque otia dia.
Haec animos ollis mulcebant atque iuvabant
Cum satiate cibi; nam tum haec sunt omnia cordi.
Saepe itaque inter se prostrati in gramine molli
Propter aquae rivum sub ramis arboris altae
Non magnis opibus iucunde corpora habebant,
Praesertim cum tempestas ridebat et anni
Tempora pingeabant viridantes floribus herbas.
Tum ioca, tum sermo, tum dulces esse cachinni
Consuerant. Agrestis enim tum musa vigebat;
Tum caput atque umeros plexis redimire coronis
Floribus et foliis lascivia laeta monebat,
Atque extra numerum procedere membra moventes
Duriter et duro terram pede pellere matrem;
Unde oriebantur risus dulcesque cachinni,
Omnia quod nova tum magis haec et mira vigebant.
Et vigilantibus hinc aderant solacia somni,
Ducere multimodis voces et flectere cantus
Et supera calamos unco percurrire labro;
Unde etiam vigiles nunc haec accepta tuentur.
Et numerum servare recens didicere, neque hilo
Maiorem interea capiunt dulcedini fructum
Quam silvestre genus capiebat terrigenarum.
Nam quod adest praesto, nisi quid cognovimus ante
Suavius, in primis placet et pollere videtur,
Posteriorque fere melior res illa reperta
Perdit et immutat sensus ad pristina quaeque.
Sic odium coepit glandis, sic illa relicta
Strata cubilia sunt herbis et frondibus aucta
Pellis item cecidit vestis contempta ferinae;
DE RERUM NATURA

Quam reor invidia tali tunc esse repertam,
Ut letum insidiis qui gessit primus obiret,
Et tamen inter eos distractam sanguine multo
Disperisse neque in fructum convertere quisse.
Tunc igitur pelles, nunc aurum et purpura curis
Exercent hominum vitam belloque fatigant;
Quo magis in nobis, ut opinor, culpa resedit.

Frigus enim nudos sine pellibus excruciabat
Terrigenas; at nos nil laedit veste carere
Purpurea atque auro signisque ingentibus apta,
Dum plebeia tamen sit quae defendere possit.
Ergo hominum genus incassum frustraque laborat
Semper et in curis consumit inanibus aevum,
Nimirum quia non cognovit quae sit habendi
Finis et omnino quod crescat vera voluptas.
Idque minutatim vitam provexit in altum
Et belli magnos commovit funditus aestus.

At vigiles mundi magnam ac versatilis templum
Sol et luna suo lustrantes lumine circum
Perdocuere homines annorum tempora verti
Et certa ratione geri rem atque ordine certo.

Iam validis saepi degebant turribus aevum
Et divisa celebatur discreteaque tellus,
Iam mare velvolis florebat puppibus; urbes
Auxilia ac socios iam pacto foedere habebant,
Carminibus cum res gestas coepere poetae
Tradere; nec multo prius sunt elementa reperta.

Propterea quid sit prius actum respicere aetas
Nostra nequit, nisi qua ratio vestigia monstrat.
Navigia atque agri culturas moenia leges
Arma vias vestes et cetera de genere horum,
Praemia, delicias quoque vitae funditus omnes,
Carmina picturas, et daedala signa polire,
Ut shaping well-wrought statues acquirat knowledge.
Usus et impigrae simul experientia mentis
Step by step.
Paulatim docuit pedetemptim progredientes.
Sic honest-born before
Sic unumquicquid paulatim protrahit aetas
In medium ratioque in luminis erigit oras.
Namque alid ex alio clarescere et ordine debet
Highest point of development.
Artibus, ad summum donec venere cacumen.
NOTES.

1—54. No one can worthily praise Epicurus, the founder of this philosophy. The benefits he conferred on men are greater than those conferred by gods, such as Ceres and Bacchus, or by demigods, such as Hercules; because peace of mind is more important than external comfort or safety.

1. potis is an indeclinable adj.; quid potis est, l. 560; pote, which also occurs, is not the neuter, but a weakened form, as mage is of magis, amabere of amaberis.

dignum...pro: the simple abl. is more usual after dignus; but comp. Hor. Ep. i 7 24 dignum pro laude.

pectore, 'genius'; again in l. 5 pectus is the seat of intellect, in ll. 18 and 43 that of moral qualities.

2. repertis, 'discoveries'; often used as a noun by Lucr.

4. eius, i.e. Epicuri; see Introduction p. xiv; Lucr. reverences his master so much that he generally avoids mentioning his name; it only occurs once in the whole poem, iii 1042.

possit: consec. subj., as qui—ut is.

5. quaesita, 'acquired' rather than 'sought'; see l. 213.

praemia, 'prizes', 'valuable things'. liquit, 'bequeathed'.

6. cretus is the perf. partic. of cresco, used as if cresco were deponent; comp. adultus from adolesco. Similar phrases occur in ll. 60, 1116; also in Ovid and Virgil.

7. si, ut ipsa: si is not elided (this is called hiatus) and the syllable is shortened; so l. 74 qui in orbi. This hiatus is very common in Plautus and Terence and is even found in Horace (si me amas inquit) and Virgil (te amice nequivi). petit is intransitive.

8. Virg. Ecl. v 64 deus, deus ille, Menalca.

Memmi: Gaius Memmius, a Roman aristocrat to whom the whole poem of Lucr. is addressed. It seems probable that he was unworthy. of such an honour: Catullus, who was a member of his staff, when he was propractor in Bithynia, always speaks of him with contempt and dislike. His name occurs five times in this book.

9. princeps = primus; again, 1. 94. rationem, 'plan': a word often used by Lucr., and with different meanings, such as 'reason', 'reasoning', 'system', 'law', 'opinion'.

10. sapientia, 'wisdom' or 'philosophy'. Lucr. will not allow this name to any system previous to that of Epicurus.

12. tranquillo: neut. adj. used as noun. Human life is compared to a ship at sea. Notice the alliteration in this beautiful line.

13. enim is argumentative, 'if you doubt it', used like εἰπεί with imperative, for which see Aristoph. Wasps 73, 519, Soph. El. 352. divina...antiqua: such double epithets without copula are constantly used by Lucr.: e.g. 1. 24 Nemeaeus magnum.

14. namque, 'for instance'. Ceres corresponds to the Greek Demeter; Liber to Bacchus.

15. instituas, 'to have revealed'; κατέβειξε has the same meaning. Though the Augustan poets generally end a hexameter with a word of two or three syllables, Lucr. often has words of one, four, and five in this position.

18. poterat is impersonal. bene vivi, 'happiness'; in prose, beata vita; comp. Hor. Ep. i 11 28 navibus atque quadrigis petimus bene vivere. puro pectore: comp. our phrase, 'to make a clean breast of it'.

19. merito goes with videtur.

20. ex quo = ex quo orta.

magnas: conventional epithet of gentes; again l. 1161.

21. vitae: possessive gen.

22. Hercules was the ancient type of strength and valour and won a place in heaven by these qualities.

23. ratione, 'opinion'.

24. Nemeaeus: constr. as if it were Nemeae agreeing with leonis, and comp. Virgil's Tyrrenhusque tubae clangor. The argument is: even if Hercules had not killed all these wild beasts, we should not be worse off now. Eight of the twelve labours of Hercules are here mentioned.

25. obesset: the protasis, si viveret, is understood.
NOTES.

26. denique, 'besides' rather than 'lastly', as often in Lucr.
27. posset = valeret.
28. Geryon was the three-headed king of Hesperia whom Hercules conquered; Martial (v 65 11) calls him pastor Hiberus.

The line in italics was written by Munro to fill the place of a lost line of the original.

Harpiceres are the Harpies which ate human flesh and used their brazen feathers as arrows, as it was once believed that the porcupine used its quills. They lived near Lake Stymphalus in Arcadia and are therefore sometimes called Stymphalides.

29. tanto opere, 'so much', is usually written as one word; see l. 1056.
31. Thracis: epithet of Diomedes king of Thrace, to distinguish him from his namesake, the son of Tydeus who fought against Troy. Ismara, or Ismarus, is a mountain on the coast of Thrace; the Bistones were a Thracian people, and the Roman poets often use their name as = Thracian.

propter with this meaning often comes after the word it governs; see ll. 623, 738; but, ll. 35, 1393, it comes before it.
32. aurea...fulgentia: see n. to l. 13.

The Hesperides were fabulous women who guarded the golden apples somewhere in the west; hence their name.
33. acerba: adverbial use of adj. common in all Latin poets; Virg. Aen. ix 794 asper, acerba tuens; the sing. adj. is commoner than the plur.
34. quid denique, 'what possible harm', like quid tandem in l. 38; comp. Hor. Sat. i 4 80 quis denique?
35. Atlanteum: in these western parts the giant Atlas was believed to stand, supporting the burden of the sky on his shoulders.

pelage: Greek form of plural; so Lucr. also uses meli, 'songs'.
36. nostrer would be nostras, -atis, in prose. barbarus is used by Lucr. as = peregrinus, but by Plautus, translating from Greek originals, as = Romanus; so, Mostell. 628, multifaros barbarus is 'a porridge-eating Roman', puls being the old national food.
37. cetera de genere hoc is found in Horace, Sat. i 1 13.
38. *viva contains a second protasis, *si viverent.

ita, 'for', qualifies the whole sentence, as very often in Plautus. satiatem is used because satietatem cannot be got into the verse.

40. scatit: from scatere, a less common form than scatère; so Lucr uses servâre and fulgâre. It here takes a gen., instead of the usual abl., as if scatit were = plena est.

terrore: in this sense Martial twice calls the Nemean lion terror Nemeae.

42. est nostra potestas: lit. 'there is power belonging to us', i.e. 'we have the power'.

43. purgatumst: the enclitic est is common in Lucr. and earlier writers; so tumst just below.

N.B. quae proelia etc.: 'what battles and dangers must then find their way into us'. Here, as often, Lucr. uses the active gerund instead of the passive gerundive; for insinuare is here an active verb. Comp. i ii aeternas quoniam poenas in mense timendumst; this construction was dropped by later writers, though it was always kept in Greek, ωφελητον την πόλιν being as good as ωφελητεα ν πόλις.

44. ingratis is contracted from ingratiis and used adverbially.

45. cupidinis = cupiditatis; an archaic word.

47. superbia spurtitia: the a is left short before sp; see l. 79; the Augustan poets avoid placing a short vowel before sp, sc, st.

48. desidia, 'different forms of sloth'. 'all sorts of sloth!

49. subegerit is perf. subj., qui being = cum is; comp. cum suerit just below.

51. dignarier, the archaic form of dignari, is here passive, and followed by the inf. esse.

53. immortalibus: in pre-Augustan poets the final s is often ignored in short syllables. suerit is contracted from suererit. Epicurus wrote a book περι θεών.

54. The 'nature of things' is here what we call 'natural science'; it can have a wider meaning; see l. 199.

55—90. Following Epicurus I point out the absolute reign of law in the natural world; and, as I have already proved that the mind of man is mortal, so I will now prove that the world too must some day come to an end. I will also describe the birth-time of the world, and above all the motions of the heavenly bodies, as it is mainly owing to our ignorance of these that superstition has so strong a hold upon us.

55—75. This long sentence may be split up into three, in translating, of four, five, and twelve lines. In this case dum must not be translated.
55. rationes, 'reasonings'.
56. The order is: doceo quam sit necessum quaeque durare in eo foedere quo creati sint.
57. durare, 'to remain'; but, l. 1360, 'to harden'.
58. nec, i.e. quamque non, still after doceo.
59. quo genere etc.: 'herein it has been found above all that the nature of the mind'. in primis...primum is very emphatic. In Lucr. animus always is the mind or reason (λόγος), anima the soul or life (ψυχή). He is referring to his third book where he has proved this point at great length. See Introduct. p. xxiii. animi natura is merely a periphrasis for animus, like mundi natura for mundus; both occur frequently; see ll. 127, 132, 157, 239, 331, 365, 370, 834.
60. nativo, 'that had birth'. Lucr. uses nativus as = mortalis and opposed to acternus; so ἑρητός is often opposed to δίδος.
corpore creta: see n. to cretus, l. 6. Per. for. doceo and si creta. were 62. solere: the acc. and inf. as if reperta in l. 59 were repertum.
He means to say that appearances of dead men in our dreams are mere delusions and do nothing to prove the immortality of the soul.
63. videamur: the subj. here and in l. 681 seems to denote frequency, though regularly quoties hoc fit = ὅταν τοῦτο γίγνηται; probably the subj. is due to the semblance of oratio obliqua.
64. quod superest, lit. 'as to what remains', i.e. 'to continue'; a common formula of transition.
rationis, 'of my plan'. detulit, sc. me.
67. congressus materiae, 'union of matter', formed by the ceaseless strife and collision of atoms described in the second book.
68. fundarit: indirect question after ratio reddunda sit; so also extiterint, sint natae, cooperit, insinuavit below.
69. lunai: Lucr. uses this archaic form and that in -ae (see l. 76) indifferently as suits his verse. tellure, 'from the earth'.
animantes = animalia: see n. to l. 823.
70. Part of his plan is to disprove the existence of such fabulous creatures as Centaurs and Chimeras; see ll. 878 foll.
71. quoe: ό is for ο, as the origin of speech is not an alternative but an additional topic: also l. 776. Munro thinks this licence may be due to the ambiguity of quōque which might be a part of quisque.
72. vesci = uti: rather different in l. 857. per, 'in', 'in the way of'; so per iucum.
73. ille is often used by Lucr. to express vividly admiration or, as here, contempt.

*aivou metus, deosidaimoira, is the main cause of human misery, according to Lucr.; and to banish it is the sole aim of the study of nature.

N.B. insinuarit is here intrans., though not in l. 44; the in of the verb governs pectora.

74. qui in : for the hiatus see n. to l. 7. orbi is the archaic abl.; again, l. 707. Lucr. uses also igni, luci, parti, labi, in this book.

sancta and tuetur are to be taken together.

75. lacus are often coupled with lucii as holy places.

77. natura gubernans, piloting nature; another metaphor from a ship. Comp. l. 107, from which it appears that natura and fortuna are identical.

79. libera: see n. to l. 47. cursus: internal acc. after lustrare.

80. morigera, obliging enough; sarcastic. animantes: see n. to l. 823.

81. ratione, forethought, προορία.

82. qui, even those who. Part of the l. is quoted by Horace, Sat. i 5. 101 deos didici securum agere aevum.

83. interea, notwithstanding; again l. 394. Lucr. often uses eodem tempore in the same sense: see ll. 756, 765. ratione = modo.

85. aetherii in oris, in the regions of aether. In Lucr. aether is always the higher, unclouded sky, aer the lower abode of storms and clouds: see ll. 500—504. orae luminis, the regions of light, i.e. the world, is a favourite phrase of Lucr.

87. dominos acres, i.e. the gods; they are called domini superbi, ii 1091.

89. finita etc. in short on what principle each thing has its power defined and its deep-set boundary mark. With terminus, sc. finitus sit. The metaphor is from a land-mark dividing two properties; here the terminus divides for each thing the possible from the impossible.

90. sit belongs to finita above; Lucr. likes to keep separate the parts of these compound tenses; see ll. 177, 546, 583, 858, 1225, 1416.

91—109. To proceed to the demonstration I have promised, it is certain, however astonishing it may sound, that the whole world will one day be destroyed. You yourself may live to see it.
91. quod superest: see n. to l. 64. plura: adverbial use of adjective; so acerba l. 33.

93. Memmi: see n. to l. 8. Here the personal appeal invites special attention.

94. species = el6a, 'things so unlike in appearance'; l. 569, species = 'our sight'.

95. Ovid (Am. i 15 23) quotes from this line to pay a fine compliment to its author: carmina sublimis tunc sunt peritura Lucreti, exitio terras cum dabit una dies.

96. ruet, 'will go to ruin'; ruere is also transitive sometimes in Lucr., e.g. l. 1325. moles et machina, 'mass and fabric'; moles suggests size, machina complexity.

97. animi, 'in my mind', a locative like humi, ruri, domi; common also with adjectives like dubius, aeger. fallit is impersonal.

99. id is object to pervincere.

100. fit = solet fieri. ubi rem adportes = ubi res adportatur; but the Latin idiom requires the subj. in the second person, e.g. bonus seignior fit ubi neglegas (Sallust). We say 'when one brings'. ante is an adverb and goes with insolitam.

101. visu is contracted from visi.

102. indu and endo are archaic forms of the prep. in; the d survives in indicetio, compound of ego. Lucr. uses indugredi, indupedire, induperator, the last for metrical reasons, though the verbs can be separated by isesis from their prepositions, e.g. inque pedire.

via qua etc.: 'where a beaten path of conviction leads most directly'. The meaning is: anything which appeals to sight or touch is readily believed; just so Horace, A. P. 180 segnius inritant animos demissa per aurem, quam quae sunt oculis subjecta fidibus; Tennyson, Enoch Arden, 'things seen are mightier than things heard'.

103. templa mentis, 'quarters of the mind'; so Lucr., iv 624, speaks of the mouth as linguai templum, Plautus, Mil. Glor. 412, of the sea as Neptunia templum, templa being = loca in old Latin.

104. dabit fidem: in prose faciet fidem.

106. in, 'in the course of'.

107. Comp. l. 77. fortuna fulcrum est, 'piloting nature'.
ratio, 'reasoning'; res, 'the reality'.

succeedere...victa: translate by two co-ordinate verbs. fragor is defined by Seneca (Nat. Quaest. ii 27 3) as a sound subitus et vehemens.

108. ratio, 'reasoning'; res, 'the reality'.

109. succeedere...victa: translate by two co-ordinate verbs. fragor is defined by Seneca (Nat. Quaest. ii 27 3) as a sound subitus et vehemens.

110—234. The editors point out that these lines interrupt the argument, which is to prove the precarious existence of the world, and are out of place here. There are many such passages, especially in the last two books; they are rough drafts which Lucr. did not live long enough to fit properly into his text. A number of the verses are copied from his earlier books.

110—145. You must not think it profane to deny the divinity and permanence of the external world. The mind cannot exist outside the body; indeed it can exist only in one special part of the body itself. Therefore earth, fire, water, and air cannot have life and consequently are not divine.

110. qua prius adgrediar quam de re=sed prius quam adgrediar de hac re. fata, 'decrees of fate'.

114. ne_rear is: ne with the 2nd pers. of the pres. subj. makes a final clause, not a prohibition, always in Lucr. and generally in writers of the best period; in Greek the same rule is invariable. But Horace at least once (Sat. ii 3 88) and very early and late poets (e.g. Plautus and Martial) use ne facias as=ne feceris or noli facere.

116. corpore divino: abl. of description. 'with divine body'.

117. put es: subj. after ne l. 114. Gigantium: they were punished for their impious attack on heaven by being struck by thunderbolts or imprisoned under mountains; Hor. Od. iii 4 73 iniecta monstris Terra dolet suis.

119. disturbent moenia mundi: 'displace the walls of the world', i.e. by saying it must perish. disturbent and velint below are subj., because they are in dependent clauses of oratio obliqua.

121. notantes, 'blaming'; used technically of the censors.

122. quae refers back to l. 116, the last 5 ll. being parenthetical, and includes the things enumerated in l. 115. The MSS. have distant here and videri, not videntur, below; this construction is so harsh that I have admitted the conjecture of Madvig.

123. The order is: et videntur indigna quae sint. With indigna, sc. usque adeo again.

N.B. 124.* notitiam, 'a notable instance'. putentur=putari possint.
NOTES.

125. quid sit = quale sit illud quod est.
126. quippe etenim recurs ll. 240, 449, 1062, 1169; the expression is pleonastic, as both quippe and etenim mean 'for'.

127. non est ut putetur = non pote\(\text{t}\) putari. esse, 'to exist'.
128. consilium, 'judgment'; animi goes with consil. as well as with natura; for animi natura see n. to l. 59.

129. quicquid = quidque, as often in Lucr.: see ll. 264, 284, 304.
130. longiter; so uniter l. 537, duriter l. 1402. 'far'.
131. quod si, 'but if': quod is the conjunction, not the relative, and is thus used also before nisi, contra, quoniam (l. 138).

132. posset enim multo prius, 'a much more likely supposition'.
133. tandem, 'after all'; a rare meaning; Plaut. Mil. Glor. 1053 nimis viliti tandem, 'after all it is very cheap'. 'atque', 'that is'.
134. quod: see n. to l. 134. constat = est; again, l. 144. quoque, 'even'.
135. videtur, 'is seen'; videri often requires, and usually can bear, this meaning in Lucr.
136. secrum: two syllables by synizesis.
137. anima atque animus: see n. to l. 59.
138. animalem: fem. adj. agreeing with formam.
139. ignis: see n. to orbi, l. 74.
140. As subject to durare, sc. animam atque animum; Lucr. denies both these to the material elements of the world, differing from the Stoics who maintained that the world had a soul.
141. aetheris oris: see n. to l. 85.
142. As subject to constant (= sunt), sc. the things enumerated in l. 115. divino sensu is equivalent to divino corpore of l. 116.
143. They have not even life; much less are they divine.

144. The gods do not dwell in abodes which we can see; their abodes are, like themselves, too subtle to be perceived by our senses. Nor did the gods create the world for our sakes. They could have no motive for doing so, as their life never admitted of any increase of happiness; nor would they have known how to do so, before nature showed them the way; atoms, of themselves, after countless experiments, fell at last into the positions necessary to make the world as we see it.

145. non est ut possis = non pote\(\text{t}\); comp. l. 126.
146. Epicurus taught that the gods dwelt in metakosma, 'spaces between worlds', the universe (omne) being made up of countless worlds such as ours. See Introduct. p. xxv.

148. tenuis, 'fine', 'subtle', 'impalpable': it is two syllables, the u being consonantal. deum is gen. plur.

149. animi mente, 'the reasoning of the mind'. videtur is passive, as often; ἑωτερικὰ λόγῳ is the Greek equivalent of mente videtur.

150. suffitig: the perf. should be noticed where the context requires the pres.; fugio and its compounds are so used elsewhere, e.g. Virg. Aen. ii. 12 horret luctuque refugit.

151. The order is: debet contingere nil quod nobis tactile sit. sit because quod = tale sit. contingere = tangere.

The nature of the gods can touch nothing we can touch; therefore they do not live in habitations visible to us.

153. etiam quoque is pleonastic, like quippe etenim l. 126.

154. de corpore eorum, 'after the fashion of their bodies'; the full phrase is de exemplo corporis eorum.

155. This promise is nowhere fulfilled, one of many signs that the poem is unfinished.

156. dicere is the subject to desiperest, l. 165. voluisse, decere l. 158, fas esse l. 160, are all governed by dicere. As subject to voluisse, sc. deos.

157. mundi naturam: see n. to animi natura, l. 59.

159. putare is governed by decere.

160. sit: subj. of dependent clause in oratio obliqua.

ratione: see n. to l. 81.

161. fundatum perpetuo aevō, lit. 'founded on unending time', i.e. 'founded to last for ever'; comp. ossibus fundatum, l. 927.

163. ab imo summa is a compressed phrase for tota ab imo usque ad summa.

164. adstringere et addere take up again the original subject dicere, l. 156, the predicate being desipere below.

166. largiri: archaic form of largiri, like dignari l. 51.

167. 'emolumenti is partitive gen. after quid; comp. signi, l. 918.

168. novo: partitive gen. after quid, like emolumenti above. tanto post goes with cuperent, ante (= antea) with quietos.

172. antecesso: three syllables by synizesis.

174. credo shows that the sentence is ironical. vita, sc. deorum.
NOTES.

175. genitatis oris: "the first birth-time".

176—180 form a digression. Lucr. has been saying that the gods could gain nothing by the creation of men; he now goes on to say that men could have no quarrel with the gods, if they had never been created.

creatis: the acc. could stand here as well as the dat.; see creatum, l. 180.

177. The order of the words is at first sight strange as the metre would allow debet enim natus quicunque est; but natus gains emphasis thus, and the separation of natus and est is quite in the manner of Lucr.; see n. to l. 90.

178. donec: as long as.

180. in numero, sc. viventium, 'included among the living'.

181. gignundis is archaic for gignendis, like reddunda, l. 66.

182. notities is intended to represent the technical Epicurean term præconception of mankind, i.e. idea of what men were like. See l. 1047 and Introduct. p. xxiv. If no men existed, there could be no images (αὐτά) of them, and consequently no conception (πρακτής) of what they were like.

183. Comp. l. 1049. ut is consecutive; facere goes with vellent.

184. principiorum: these principia (ἀρχαί), or primordia rerum (στοιχεία), are the atoms of Epicurus, the ultimate and indivisible elements of all matter; see Introduct. p. xxii. N.B. katalexis has now been supplied.

Lucr. uses principiorum as the gen. of primordia, just as he uses arbusta for the plur. of arbor, to suit the requirements of his metre: see n. to l. 671.

185. quidque...possent: an indirect question, which is in fact a second subject to cognita est.

186. natura: in the Epicurean philosophy nature and chance are identified; comp. l. 77 with l. 107.

187. ita is followed by ut, l. 192.

188. plagae are the blows inflicted by atoms on each other.

189. concita goes with ponderibus.

190. omnimodis (= omnibus modis) seems to be formed by false analogy from multimodis (= multis modis).

191. congressa: nom.

192. deciderunt, sc. primordia. quoque goes with tales in l. 192.

meatus, 'courses'.
194. qualibus = quales sunt ii quibus.

195—234. In any case the world is so far from perfect that it is impossible to attribute to it a divine origin. A great part of it is uninhabitable; the inhabitable part is cultivated with great labour, and often without result. Think too of the wild beasts, the diseases, the early deaths, and of the helpless condition of the human infant compared with the offspring of other animals.

This paragraph is in the poet's noblest style.

195. si iam, 'even if it were the case that'; si iam (and ut iam) are used with the pres. subj. to state a hypothesis provisionally, for the sake of argument. Here the iam suggests that Lucr. is not really ignorant. el ἄπα is often used in this sense; Thuc. iii 56 el ἄπα ἡμάρητα quae sint: indirect question.

196. rationibus, 'arrangements'. ausim, archaic for audeam.

197. reddere is short for rationem reddere; see l. 66.

198. divinitus, θεόν, 'by the gods'. by divine power.

199. stat = constat = est. praedita is more commonly used of good or neutral qualities. culpa, 'faultiness'. defects.

200. quantum...inde = a tanto quantum.

201. silvae ferarum: so we speak of 'a den of lions'.

204. inde porro (ἐτέρα), 'next', answers to principio (πρῶτον μὲν), l. 200; it is different from inde in l. 201.

205. casus, 'falling'.

206. arvi, 'consisting of land fit to cultivate'.

NOTES.

211. cimus: from cire, cire being the common form. As object to cimus and subject to nequeant below, some word like fruges must be supplied.

212. nequeant: an irregular form of condition, the rule in Latin requiring the same mood, as well as tense, in protasis and apodosis.

213. *et tamens, "and after all"; see n. to l. 1096.

214. quaeita: see n. to l. 5. acquired "rather than sought?"

217. Note the repetition of v and t; comp. l. 12.

219. terra marique: the local abl. without in is found in this phrase even in prose.

220. anni tempora: the autumn was particularly dreaded by the Romans as a time of fevers.

222. tum porro is pleonastic, either word being sufficient; comp. inde porro, l. 204.

223. humi is locative; see n. to l. 97. inans has here its original meaning of \( \gamma \pi \nu \alpha \sigma \) comp. infantia, l. 1031.

224. vitalis, "for life". in luminis oras: see n. to l. 85. regions

226. ut acquamst, sc. eum facere.

227. cui=quod ei and therefore takes the subj. tantum malorum is object to transire, and restet is impersonal.

228. variae, "of different kinds".

229. crepitacillis: Martial, xiv 54, has this distich on the crepita-cillum:

\[
\text{si quis plorator collo tibi vernula pendet,}
\text{haec quatiet tenera garrula sistra manu.}

230. almae, "fostering", the word being derived from alere; Lucr. speaks of alma Venus in the second line of his poem, and of liquor almus aquaticum, li 390.

233. quis=quo, "wherewith"; the antecedent is plur. as often; comp. Plaut. Aul. 498 vehicula qui vehar 'carriages for me to drive in'; qui, not quo, is the original abl., as quis is plainly of the third declension, not the second.

234. daedala rerum, "cunning in works". This form of \( \delta \alpha \dot{\alpha} \lambda \epsilon \sigma \) is used by Lucr. (1) in a passive sense, as an epithet of tellus, carmina, signa, (2) with a genit., as here and in the phrase verborum daedala lingua.

235—246. If the parts of anything are mortal, the whole must be so too. But it is plain that the elements of the world are mortal; therefore the earth and sky must some day perish.

In sense this follows directly after l. 109, the digression being concluded.

236. animae, lit. 'breathings'; vapores, 'heats': this is the only meaning of vapor in Luc.

237. haec rerum summa: see n. to l. 194. videtur is passive.

238. nativo ac mortali, 'that was born and must die'; see n. to l. 60.

239. eodem corpore constare. mundi natura: see n. to l. 59.

240. ferme. as a rule': fere is identical in meaning.

241. consumpta regigni: see n. to l. 109.

242. quoque item is pleonastic, as either word would have sufficed: comp. etiam quoque l. 153, inde porro l. 204, tum porro l. 222.

243. *principiale,' of beginning'. futuram, sc. esse.

247—260. But if I must prove that the elements are mortal, look first at earth and consider how it is blown away in dust by the winds and eaten away by the rivers; it is in turn replenished, as it is the tomb of all things.

247. *in his rebus', 'herein'. corrupuisse illud me mihi, lit. 'that I have snatched this for myself', i.e. 'that I have assumed without proof'; arripere is used by Cicero in this sense.

248. *perire: the common constr. after non dubitare, 'not to doubt', is quin and the subj., the inf. being used after non dubitare, 'not to hesitate'.

249. rursus goes with gigni as well as with augescere.

250. principio is taken up by quod superest, 'next', l. 261.

251. multa pedum vi=vi multorum pedum. Comp. Hor. Sat. i 4

141 multa poetarum veniet manus.

252. nubes, 'wreaths'.

253. ad diluvium revocatur, lit. 'is reduced to washing away', i.e. 'is washed away'; the phrase recurs, vi 292. With this use of revocatur comp. redibat, l. 1141. diluvii is the same word as our 'deluge'.

254. radentia rodunt: see n. to l. 109.

255. pro parte sua, 'in its turn', év pépet. *alid is archaic for *aliud; see n. to l. 1305.
NOTES.

258. redditus, 'has restitution made to it'; a strange use of the word. dubio procul is an adverb. videtur is passive.

259. omniparens, used as a noun, is the subj.; eadem is not an epithet, but part of the predicate.

260. bibia = an ethical dat. of the person interested in a statement: 'so you see that the earth' etc.; see ll. 294, 805, 1209.

261—270. So water is constantly welling up from springs, and pouring from rivers into the sea; but much is constantly carried off by the sun and wind, and much sinks into the earth, where it deposits its salt before finding its way back into the rivers.

261. quod superest : see n. to l. 64. furthermore!

262. latices: either internal acc. after, or subject to, monare.

263. nil opus est verbis, sc. declarare from declarat below. 'It needs no words to prove.'

264. undique goes with decursus. primum quicquid aquae, to &el τρωτον υδωρ. For quisquis = quisque, see ll. 131 and 284, 304 below.

265. nil: acc. of nihil used adverbially; comp. hilum l. 358.

266. retexens, lit. 'undoing its fabric,' i.e. decomposing it. The metaphor is from weaving.

267. virus, 'the salt' of the sea-water.

So Seneca (Nat. Quaest. iii 5) says of the sea-water, occulto itinere subit terras colaturque in transitu mare.

271. dulci, i.e. not salt. fresh

272. pede, 'course': we speak of a stream running, but we can hardly speak of its 'foot,' though Jeremy Taylor could.

273—280. The air too is constantly changing. It is continually increased by emanations from material objects; and it must give back as much as it receives, or else all objects would have become air by this time.

273. corpore: abl. of part concerned.

274. privas = singulas: so in dies privos, l. 733.

275. In order to account for sensation, Epicurus taught that excessively fine films or images (simulacra) are constantly being thrown off from the surface of bodies and conveyed to the mind by the medium of the senses. See Introduct. p. xxiv.

277. retribuat...forent: an irregular condition, the rule in Latin requiring the same tense, as well as mood, in protasis and apodosis; D.
retribueret is what the sense naturally requires. For a different irregularity see l. 212.

278. *iam, 'by this time'.
279. cessit, sc. aer.

N.B. 280. *finere, 'to ebb', is said both of the images and of the bodies which throw them off.

281—305. The same is true of fire. The sun is constantly sending out new light to supply the place of what is cut off by clouds. Lamps also and torches keep up their brightness by a constant succession of light, and the case is the same with the moon and stars.

281. *liquidi, 'clear-streaming'.
282. *inrigat, 'floods'; the metaphor of fons luminis being kept up. candor is properly the white heat of glowing metal.

284. *primum quicquid fulgoris, τὸ ἀεὶ πρῶτον φῶς. See n. to 131.

ei, i.e. soli; for the dat. comp. tali, l. 173. ei is always a spondee in Lucr., and either a spondee or one long syllable in such genitives as rei, diei.

285. *licet cognoscere possis: pleonastic, as either licet cognoscas or potes cognoscere would suffice.

N.B. 286. *succedere, 'to pass beneath'; the original meaning of the word.

287. inter quasi rumpere = quasi interrumpere. This separation of the verb and the preposition (which is called *imesis) is universal in early language; examples may be found on any page of Homer.

289. qua and cumque make up one word.
290. ut noscas, i.e. inde noscis.

292. posse: inf. after noscas, l. 290. in sole, 'in the sun-light'. videri is passive.

294. *tibi, 'you see': ethical dat.; see n. to l. 260.
295. *lychini is the Greek *lykoi with a vowel inserted, as in Alcmena, mina, to make the word easier to Roman mouths.

clarae, pingues: for the double epithet see n. to l. 13.

296. pingues, 'resinous'. multa caligine: abl. of attendant circumstances, sometimes called absolute.

297. ardore ministro: abl. of means. In two lines Lucr. has four ablatives with a characteristic indifference to ambiguity.

299. instant: this rhetorical figure (epanalepsis), by which the same word ends one line and begins the next, recurs l. 950. rupta is nom. sing.

300. The order is: usque adeo propter ante exitium ei (luci) celatur celeri flammeae origine ab omnibus ignibus.

303. suborti; fresh supply.
304. primum quique quid: see n. to l. 131. *The first flame that appears to
305. ne credas: final sentence; see n. to l. 114.

306—317. The power of time prevails against the strongest things such as stones, rocks, and metals. When we see these decay before our eyes, we must infer that they have not existed from infinite time past.

306. ab aevise: time is personified; hence the preposition.
308. fessa goes closely with fatiscit.
309. numen, ‘sacredness’; so numen habere, ‘to be sacred’.
310. posse: inf. after cernis, l. 306.
311. virum: contracted gen. plur.: so Chaldaea, l. 727.
312. The text is uncertain; I give the reading of Munro’s first edition.

313. non, sc. videmus? silices, ‘masses of basalt’; *silice sternere,
‘to pave’, the Romans using the stone for this purpose.
315. neque, not non, is regularly used before enim. The sense is:
‘finite time, I say; for if they had been there from everlasting, they would remain fixed for ever, and not fall down as we see them do’; see n. to l. 376.

316. quae=sit ca, the sentence being a protasis.
317. tormenta aetatis: just so Shakespeare (Sonnet 65) speaks of ‘the wreckful siege of battering days’.

318—323. If it be true that the all-embracing ether begets all things and takes them back into itself, then ether must be subject to change and therefore mortal.

318. tuere, but tuere, l. 92: in Lucr. tuie is always ‘to see’, *tueri either ‘to see’ or ‘to maintain’. hoc is the ether.
320. quidam: particularly the Stoics.
321. constat=est as in l. 144.

323. Compressed for: deminui debet alendo et augendo, recreari debet cum recipit res.

324—350. Again if the world has existed from everlasting, why does not history go further back? We see too that improvements are constantly being made in the arts and sciences, which seems to prove them to be of recent origin. But if you hold that civilisation has advanced as far before and then been swallowed up by some convulsion of nature, then you must allow that a world, which is liable to such convulsions, is liable also to complete destruction.

324. genitalis origo: see n. to l. 175.

326. bellum Thebanum: the expedition of Adrastus, king of Argos, against Thebes, in order to restore to his throne Polynices, the exiled son of Oedipus. This was the subject of the Thebais, a lost epic poem which the ancients ranked next to the Iliad and Odyssey.

funera Troiae: 'the destruction of Troy', as told in the Homeric poems.

N.B. 328. cecidere, 'have vanished'; comp. ii 1165 suspirat arator... incassum manuum ecedisse labores, Hor. Ep. ii 1 51 leviter curare videtur quo promissa cadant.

330. summa=haec rerum summa, i.e. our world. See n. to l. 194.

331. natura mundi: see n. to animi natura l. 59.

332. etiam...nunc go together, as in l. 17. expoliuntur, 'are reaching perfection'; a strict pres.

333. nunc etiam: the reverse order, as just above, is commoner; but comp. l. 20. augescunt, sc. saeculam.

335. ratio, 'system'. natura rerum ratioque is a hendiadys.

336. nuper: Epicurus was born in Samos in 342 B.C., three hundred years before Lucr. wrote.

primus cum prius is emphatic, like in primis primum, l. 59.

337. possim is consecutive subj., qui being = talis ut.

338. ante hac: two syllables by synizesis: in the same way the first two syllables of cooperuisse, l. 342) coalesce.

339. hominum saeclo, 'the generations of men'; saeculum is seldom 'age' in Lucr., generally 'race'.
341. *ex, ‘after’.
343. *tanto quique, ‘by so much, however much’, i.e. ‘by just that amount’. *quique is the abl. of quisque. Comp. Livy iii 40 extr. *dilectum primo quoque tempore haberì, ‘at the first opportunity, whatever it be’, i.e. ‘at the first possible opportunity’.

344. *exitium, ‘utter destruction’.
347. *darent: we should expect *deissent. Lucr. commonly uses *dare with *ruinas, *sonitum, *crepitum, *fragorem, where a prose writer would use *facere.

349. *inter nos, lit. ‘among ourselves’, i.e. we men, as distinguished from inanimate things.

351—379. Anything that is eternal must satisfy one of three conditions. Either it must be impenetrable to blows, as atoms are; or it must be untouched by them, as void is; or there must be no room outside of it, into which it can pass, as is the case with the universe as a whole. But our world does not satisfy any one of these conditions and must therefore perish. You must also admit that a world which must some day perish cannot have existed from infinite time past.

352. *solido cum *corpore: *cum is superfluous, as there is an epithet; comp. ll. 364, 864.

354. *intus is properly used of *rest within a place, *intro of motion; so *intro ire, but *intus esse.

355. *corporea *matertii, ‘bodies of matter’, i.e. atoms: the first two books are mainly devoted to a systematic explanation of the properties of atoms and void, the two great constituents of the universe. See Introduct. p. xiv.

356. *dure: see n. to l. 57.
357. *inane, *erkev, ‘void’; vacuum, *locus, *spatium, are other terms for the same. Void is exempt from blows because it is too impalpable to be affected by them.
358. *ab ictu, 'in consequence of a blow'; comp. ab igni l. 604. fungitur, 'is acted upon'; Lucr. commonly translates the technical terms πᾶσεν by fungi, ποίειν by facere. hilum is used adverbially like its negative nihil l. 265; the abl. hilo occurs l. 1409.

359. *nulla...circum, 'there is no extent of space around'.'

360. quo=ut in eim. quasi apologises for the oddness of the idea.

361. summarum summa: see n. to l. 194.

362. què=aliquè; we should rather expect ulla.

364. The existence of void was proved in the first book, chiefly by two considerations: first, but for void, all motion would be impossible; second, the presence of void is necessary to explain difference in weight between bodies equal in bulk.

366. *est ut inane, 'is it like void'.

368. corruere: active, a rare use; ruere is active in l. 1325.

369. cladem pericli, 'dangerous disaster'; the gen. serves as a kind of epithet; comp. murmur minarum, l. 1193, Catull. 23 ii casus alios periculorum, Aesch. Pers. 438 συμφορά πάθους.

370. natura loci=locus, a periphrasis common in Lucr.; see n. to l. 59. spatium, χώρα, is another name for inane, implying the motion of bodies through it.

372. falsa perire: see n. to l. 109.

375. *immane: acc. neut. of the adj. used adverbially. respectat, looks towards them'.

376. The same argument as ll. 315—317: if these things are to be destroyed at some future time, they cannot have existed from infinite time past; in the language of Lucr., if they are mortalia, they must also be nativa.

377. neque enim: see n. to l. 315.

380—415. You might guess the final destruction of the world when you note the perpetual warfare between fire and water, each striving to gain the mastery and destroy the earth. Legends tell that each prevailed once, fire, when Phaethon was run away with by the horses of the sun, water, at the time of a great deluge. And science agrees with legend though it assigns different causes.
381. membra: i.e. fire and water.
pio nequaquam = impio, 'civil' war. An old Roman formula speaks of pium piumque duellum.

382. allis is arcaic for illis; it is found in Virgil.

383. vel cum should be answered by vel cum umor, but there is a change of construction at l. 386.

384. exsuperariunt is fut. perf. (pultl the masterly).

385. neque adhuc = sed nondum. patrarunt is a probable correction of the MS. reading patrantur.

386. tantum, 'so much': ultra, 'besides', not content with keeping the fire down; ulro is very common in this sense in Tacitus.

387. diluaviare: pres. infin., instead of future, common in old Latin after verbs of promising, hoping etc.; so confidunt posse, l. 390, Plaut.
Mil. Glor. 229 hoc si unus recipere ad te dicis.

388, 389. See II. 266, 267.

390. prins quam possit: it seems that prins quam and ante quam in Lucr. take the subj., unless quam comes before prins or ante;
comp. iii 973 quam nascimur ante, vi 979 quam adgreder...prins.

391. Note the assonance of certamine, cernere, certant.

392. interea, 'nevertheless', like eodem tempore; see n. to l. 83, 'by the way'.

393. cernere: archaic for decernere; with a different sense, l. 782.

394. superat is a contracted form of superavit, as the context requires and the quantity proves; there are two similar forms in Lucr., inritat i 70, disturbat vi 587; in all three cases the -at is followed by a vowel.

395. avia, like obvius in I. 402, must not be translated as a mere epithet. Phaethon induced his father Helios to let him drive the chariot of the sun for one day, and nearly set the world on fire.

396. aercre: abl. of place where, not of place whence; so todo acre
l. 254, todo orbi l. 1166, 'per', 'over'.

397. magnanimum, 'aspiring'; perhaps sarcastic.

398. repenti: this adj. (to be distinguished from repens, 'crawling') is very rare; the adv. repetente is common; but repetinus is the usual form of the adj.

399. returbavit: so (Plaut. Mil. Glor. 160) Pericleomenus tells his slaves, 'if you see anyone on our roof', hae deturbatote in viam.

400. aeternam: as Lucr. is engaged proving the sun among other things not to be eternal, this epithet can only be justified on poetical grounds, unless he is actually translating from a Greek poet.
404. suum iter, 'their right path'; suum = proprium and does not refer to sol, the subject of the sentence, by a licence common to all the poets.

`recravit cuncta` to be taken together.

NB. 405. scilicet, 'forsooth'; contemptuous.

Graum: gen. plur.

NB. 408. plura, i.e. more than usual.

410. nut, 'or else', εί δὲ μή.

411. quondam, i.e. in the time of Deucalion, the Noah of Greek mythology. superare coortus: see n. to l. 109.

413. ratione = modo. aversa recessit: see n. to l. 109. ser the turned aside & written, marly?

416—431. I will now describe the formation of the earth, sky, and sea, and the motions of the heavenly bodies. The world was not purposely formed by conscious atoms; it is the chance result, after endless experiments, of their blind motions and clashings.

416. ille conjectus, 'yon concourse'; vivid. Comp. l. 67.

417. fundarit: indirect question after ponam. descendit

418. ex ordine, 'next in order', ἐφεξῆς; ordine often = 'from beginning to end'.

NB. 419. conspicio, 'by design'. primordia rerum: see n. to l. 184. 'alone'.

420. suo is one syllable, being pronounced suo.

421. darent: the direct question is quos demus motus? where demus is deliberative; so darent is doubly subjunctive. For dare with motus and similar words, see n. to l. 347. *

422. concita goes with ponderibus.

425. omnimodius: see n. to l. 190, from which passage ll. 423—426 are repeated.

427. volgata, 'spread abroad'.

428. omne genus is acc. used adverbially as in l. 437; 'of every kind'; comp. homo istuc aetatis, a common Plautine phrase. coetus and motus are both acc. plur.

429. ea: the subject, which has previously been atoms generally, is suddenly restricted to a particular concourse of them.

430. saepe: worlds such as ours are innumerable, and the creation of one such often happens.
432—448. In the original chaos there were no separate objects, no sun or moon, no earth, sky, or sea, only a medley of warring atoms: gradually the parts of the world began to separate.

432. *hic, 'then'; again, l. 1002; it seems not to differ from tum.
433. *mundus = caeli, as often.
435. *nostris rebus, 'the things we see': videri is passive.
436. but only a strange stormy crisis and medley: so Ovid (Met. i 7) calls chaos rudis indigestaque moles.

437. *omne genus is adverbial, going with principiis; id genus and quod genus also are so used; see n. to l. 428. 'On every kind'.

438. quorum goes with discordia, and out of it eorum is to be supplied with all the accusatives governed by turbabat.

441. *sic, 'straight off', 'at once', oúvris; comp. the use of sic, l.

442. *motus dare: see n. to l. 347. 'mutually harmonious'.

443. inde loci lit. 'thence of place', i.e. 'in the next place'. Notice how all the prepositions, with which the verbs are here compounded, imply separation, dis- being used four times and se- five times; the former denotes the separation of several, the latter of two things.

447. patet: the construction suddenly changes, the infin. giving place to a consec. subjunctive; see n. to efficerent l. 454.

448. aetheris ignes are the heavenly bodies.

449—494. The heavy atoms met together in the middle of chaos and by their close union squeezed out the smaller and lighter atoms. These rose up and formed the ether, which walls in the world, and the heavenly bodies, whose atoms are lighter than those of earth, heavier than those of ether. When these had withdrawn, the hollows which the sea now fills, were flooded with salt water; and as condensation of the earth constantly went on owing to the heat of ether and the sun, therefore more light atoms of ether and salt atoms of sea-water were constantly squeezed out.

449. quippe etenim: see n. to l. 126.
450. perplexa, sc. inter se. 'Elaborately entangled'.
452. perplexa coibant: see n. to l. 109. 'Translated by 200-ordinate verbs."
453. tam, for tanto; also l. 487; quanto is often followed by iam in Lucr., instead of tanto.
70

Lucretius. Book V.

454. efficerent: consec. subj. Lucr. will not admit anything like design in the formation of the world; consequently the final subj. is inappropriate here. 'The walls of the great world' are the ether, mundus being used as in l. 433.

456. minoribus: see n. to l. 53.

457. rara, 'porous', not 'scattered'.

459. levis: transl. by the adverb for convenience, and notice the meaning different from levibus above.

460. 'much in the same way as'; again, l. 1030. The construction is a little irregular: videmus should be followed by an acc. and inf., but at l. 465 the sentence takes a different turn.

461. aurea...matutina: see n. to l. 13.

464. ut, 'as'; ut 'when', is probably not Lucretian.

465. quae, the mist from the water and smoke from the ground, in alto, 'on high'; again, l. 584.

466. corpore concreto: because clouds are substantial compared to mist and smoke.

467. subtextunt etc.: 'as clouds they weave a covering beneath the sky'; nubila is in apposition. Comp. vi 482 aestus...subtexit caerula nimbis.

468. circumdatus, 'sweeping round'.

469. partes, 'directions'.

470. avido: comp. avidi montes l. 201.

471. exordia, 'rudiments'; see n. to l. 331.

472. interutrasque, 'in the middle', i.e. between earth and ether; an adverb formed like foras, alias; comp. interea.

476. ita sunt ut, 'though they are..., yet they...'; the limitative use of ita ut.

477. mundi totius includes earth, sky, and sea.

478. quod genus is adverbial, like omne genus, l. 428. 'just as'

479. sint ea quae mov., sunt a kweita, 'some are in motion'.

480. retractis, 'withdrawn'.

482. fossas: κολλών τόπον in the original (see Plut. de plac. phil. i 4) which Lucr. seems to be translating.

483. circum: adverb. aestus, 'heats'.

454-483: Detailed analysis of the text, focusing on various grammatical and lexical points, including annotations and comparisons to other translations.
NOTES.

485. "verberibus...limina, 'by constant blows on its outer surface'. In artum goes with cogebant.

486. condensa is for condensata which is never used.

487. corpore, sc. terrae.

489. illa, 'of which I spoke'.

490. vaporis: see n. to l. 236.

491. densebant: each reinforcement of particles squeezed out from the earth made ether more substantial. templae: see n. to l. 103.

492. montibus: dat. commodi; comp. artibus, l. 1457.

493. neque enim: see n. to l. 315. The level was unequal because rocks could not sink at all and other things sank an unequal amount.

494. pariter tantundem is pleonastic.

495—508. So the earth sank to the bottom, separate from the sea and other lighter parts of the world. Of all parts the ether is the lightest and soars above the rest, untroubled by the storms which go on beneath it.

495. terrae pondus, 'the heavy earth'; so argenti pondus, l. 1242.

496. constiluit, 'became solid'. mundi, in the same sense as in l. 433. quasi apologises for the strange expression limus.

497. gravis, 'by its weight'.

498. For the distinction between aether and aer, see n. to l. 85.

499. liquidis: see n. to l. 281.

500. alis alia, sc. sunt.

502. turbantibus, 'troubled'; here and l. 504 the verb has a neuter sense; so l. 831 vertere = verti, l. 1422 convertere = converti.

503. haec omnia, 'all before our eyes', i.e. the troubled air below ether.

505. impete, 'motion', archaic for impetu; see n. to l. 200.

506. uno nisu is co-ordinate with modice. with one uniform effort.

507. Pontos is the Pontus Euxinus or Black Sea; comp. Seneca Nat. Quaest. iv 2 29 ob hoc Pontus in infernum mare adsidue fluit rapidus...in unam partem semper pronus et torrens; Juv. iv 43 torrentis ad ostia Ponti. There is a constant current from the smaller sea into the Mediterranean.

508. This smooth gliding line well expresses the sense.

509—533. Next as to the motion of the stars; if the sky revolves, the axis of its sphere must be kept steady by an air blowing on each pole, and the motion of the stars is due to a third air, which blows, either above the sphere in the direction in which the stars move, or below the sphere in the contrary direction. If the sky does not revolve, the motion of the stars is due either to heats inside themselves, or to an air from without, or to their own volition. It is impossible to say which of these causes operates in our world; but one of these mentioned it must be.

This paragraph interrupts the narrative, and there is no place in the book where it fits in naturally, though it ought properly to come in with the description of sun and moon. It appears to have been a subsequent addition which was never properly connected with the rest.

509. There is no special mention of the planets here or elsewhere in the book.

510. Lucr. regards this as an open question though he speaks, l. 1436, of mundi versatile templum.

511. ex utraque part, ‘at each pole’. polum is the axis, not the pole, of the sphere of heaven. aera is the subject to premere.

512. utrimque, ‘at both ends’. The two airs serve to keep the axis of the sphere steady; a third is required to put the sphere in motion. It is important to realise that the stars are included in the sphere; comp. l. 1205.

513. alium, sc. aera.

514. quo volvenda micant=quo volvuntur micantia. volvenda =volventia of l. 931, the gerundive being used as pres. particip.; so secundus, ‘following’, from sequor. This use of volvendus recurs l. 1276, and twice in Virgil (Aen. i 269, ix 7).

aeterni: see nn. to ll. 402, 476.

515. alium, sc. aera fluere. subvehat: final.

516. The wheel here spoken of, still common in the East, is intended for irrigation; it is made to revolve by the current, and draws water out of the river by means of the haustria, ‘scoops’, attached to it. These scoops are mentioned here only because they are fastened to the wheel as the stars are to the sphere of heaven. fluvios is the subject to versare.

517. est uti possit=potest; pleonastic; comp. l. 146.

519. inclusi, sc. in signis. rapidi: nom.

520. viam, ‘a way out’. ignes, sc. signorum.
NOTES.

521. Summanus was an obscure deity (quisquis is est, says Ovid) who caused night-thunder; hence Summania templar are the nightly sky; for templar see n. to l. 103.

522. aliunde = ἀλλοθέν ποθεν, 'from some other place'; i.e., the air is not, like the heats, shut up in the stars themselves.

523. versat agens, 'drives and whirls'. Here again Lucr. seems inconsistent in attributing volition to the stars; we may account for it as we have already accounted for such epithets as aeternus and vivus (ll. 402, 476).

524. euntes is nom. plur.

525. pascentes: the food of the stars is fire. Comp. i 231 unde aether sidera pascit? Seneca (Nat. Quaest. vii 21 2) accounts thus for the motion of a comet: ignium modo alimentum suum sequitur.

526. quid sit eorum, 'which of these (explanations) holds'; an indirect question after ponere certum.

527. possit = potis sit, 'is possible'. omne, ὃ ἔστω, is the summa summarum, the entire universe.

529. sequor disponere, 'I go on to distinguish'; a rare use of sequor = pergo.

531. hoc = hac rerum summa, our world.

532. vegsat: an active verb. signis: dat. commodi. earum, sc. causarum.

533. progredientis: the adjectival or attributive genitive; rash assertion is not the attribute of one who etc.

534–563. The earth remains at rest in the middle of the world because the weight of its lower parts is less than that of the upper. Indeed its substance beneath is different and more akin to air. From its long connexion with the air, the weight of the earth is not felt any more than a man feels the weight of his own limbs. The air sustains the earth without effort just as the soul sustains the body.

535. pondus, sc. terrae.

536. conventit is impersonal. 'it is proper.'

naturam, 'substance', is object to habere, terram being supplied as subject. This substance of which the earth is composed below must be lighter than earth itself in order to account for the earth resting in the middle of the world. Apparently Lucr. conceived the earth to be a more or less flat surface both above and below.
The stability of the earth was a great problem to the ancients, owing to their ignorance of the nature of attraction; some believed that the earth was constantly falling through space (Seneca Nat. Quaest. vii 14 4) though the motion was imperceptible.

537. uniter: so longīter l. 133, durīter l. 1402; but the gen. and dat. sing. of unus make this form less strange. aptam: particip. of archaic verb apēre, 'to fit', the only part used; to be distinguished from aptus particip. of āpisci (see n. to l. 808).

538. vivit: see nn. to vivit l. 476, aeternam l. 402.

539. non est oneri, sc. auris terrā. oneri, lit. 'for a burden', is a predicative dat.

540. pondere: abl. of description.

543. imposta = imposita; so we say imposition but impostor, both derived from imponere.

545. magni: locative of price: réfert and interest take also a gen. of the person concerned, e.g. magni réfert Ciceronis; but instead of the gen. of the personal pronouns, the abl. sing. fem. of the possessive adj. is used, e.g. meā (not mei) réfert.

546. est belongs to allāta below; see n. to l. 90. aliena is part of the predicate; 'the earth is not an alien body suddenly brought in' etc.

548. pariter, sc. cum aurīs. 'together with'.

549. eius, i.e. mundi. videntur, sc. esse certae partes nostri.

551. The 'things above the earth' are the air.

554. As subject to haerent, sc. terrā et aer.

555. uniter apta, 'framed into one': see nn. to l. 537.

556. magno pondere: abl. of description, going with corpus; 'how heavy our body is, which' etc.

557. tenuissima: see n. to l. 148. animai, 'of the soul'; see n. to l. 59.

559. iam, 'actually', goes with saltu pernici; see n. to l. 1066.

560. poitis is neuter, as in l. 719; see n. to l. 1. animi, 'of the mind'; see n. to l. 59.

561. quantum valere possit: pleonastic for quantum valeat.

563. nobis, i.e. corporibus nostris.

564—591. The disc of the sun cannot be much larger nor his heat much less than they appear to our senses; for we observe that the size of fires on earth does not diminish to our view so long as we can see their light at all and feel their heat. The same is true, for the same reason, of the moon and stars.

The argument seems to us false and the conclusion ludicrous. This belief was peculiar to the Epicureans. Seneca, a Stoic, writes thus (Nat. Quaest. i 3 10): solem, quem toto terrarum orbe maiorem probat ratio, acies nostra sic contraxit ut sapientes viri pedalem (a foot long) esse contendercent. And Cicero, who was a contemporary of Lucr., ridicules the theory in almost the same words (Acad. ii 82): quantulus nobis sol videtur! mihi quidem quasi pedalis. Epicurus autem posse putat etiam minorem esse eum quam videatur. See Introduct. p. xv.

564. nimio = multo; common in Plautus in this sense.
566. quibus and cumque make up one word. ignes: nom.
567. adicere: iacio when compounded (-iicio) loses its initial i, though the preposition (in this case ad) remains long; comp. obiciens l. 755. vaporem: see n. to l. 236.
568. illa, sc. spatia. intervallis: abl. of cause.
569. nil: see n. to l. 265. ad speciem, ‘to the eye’; here species = oψis, in l. 94 it = ειδος.
571. loca, sc. corporum nostrorum.
574. nil adeo, ‘nothing whatever’; adeo often emphasises the word it follows, but with negatives it is rare; nil adeo recurs vi 1170; nec adeo, Virg. Ecl. ii 25, Aen. iv 96. vere, ‘in their real dimensions’, goes with videri.
577. quidquid id est, ‘however that be’; again, l. 1252.
580. species confusa, ‘blurred in appearance’; a different sense of species from l. 569.
581. minuit, sc. videatur. necessae est commonly is followed by the subj. (here videatur, l. 584) without ut.
583, 584. must be seen in the sky by us on earth exactly as it is defined by its outlines and of the size it actually is. The meaning would be clearer if we had necesse sit notata utcumque nobis videtur. ut and cumque make up one word. est belongs to notata; see n. to l. 90.
584. quanta quanta = quantacunque, just as quisquis = quicumque.
585. quoscumque: the antecedent is eos to be supplied as subject to posse, l. 590.
587. tremor, sc. eorum. cernitur, 'is perceived'.
588. perparvum quiddam: internal accus. after mutare (= mutari); comp. nil, l. 569.
589. alteram utram: commonly written as one word, alterutram. filum, 'size', is subject to videtur.
591. parte: abl. of amount of difference, as quo and pauxillo are above.

592—613. It is possible to explain the great heat of so small a body as the sun in any of three ways. Either all the heat of the world streams to that one spot; or perhaps the heat is due to the air when fired by the sun; or perhaps there is round the sun a great deal of heat which emits no light.

593. ille sol, 'yon sun'; so ille coniectus, l. 416.
594. quod (the relative) = tantum ut and is therefore followed by the consec. subj. compleat. rigando, 'by flooding them'; comp. inrigat l. 282.

596 is omitted in the text as it is only l. 584 repeated by mistake.
597. hinc, i.e. e sole. unum, = τὸν µῦνον, not τινά.
598. scatere: see n. to I. 40. lumen is object to erumpere, which is usually intransitive. Comp. I. 952.

600. coniectus eorum, 'the mass of them thrown together'.
601. capite, 'fountain head'. hic is the pronoun, not an adv.
603. campis: local ablative.
604. etiam quoque: pleonastic; comp. l. 153. non magno, 'although not great'. ab igni: see n. to ab ictu l. 358.
605. percipiat, 'may take possession of'; a rare meaning of the word. Comp. iii 28 me...voluptas percipit atque horror, for which Cicero would have said, percipio voluptatem.

606. ita: to be taken with ut below.
608. quod genus: see n. to l. 428. segetes stipulamque: acc. after accidere, though accidere usually is followed by in or ad with acc.
611. fervoribus: abl. of description.
613. tantum, ‘merely’, qualifies aestifer; the ignis gives no light.

614—649. There are two ways in which it is possible to account for the annual course of the sun in heaven and for the fact that he performs in a year the same journey which the moon performs in a month. Either, as Democritus held, the heavenly bodies nearest the earth go slowest, because they are least affected by the revolution of the sky, so that the stars move faster than the sun, and the sun than the moon. Or the motions of all the heavenly bodies may be due to currents of air, blowing first in one direction, then in another.

For an explanation of the technical terms used in this paragraph, see plan of the celestial sphere on p. xxvi.

614. ratio, "explanation." There are several possible explanations of the sun's annual motion as there are of his heat.

615. partibus, 'positions.' ogocerotis (Greek for capricorni) goes with flexus below.

616. flexus, 'turning-point,' = metas below; the metaphor is from a race where the chariots turned at the meta for the return journey.

617. solstitiales: there are two solstices in the year, when the sun is furthest from the equator in winter, and again in summer; see p. xxviii; but Latin writers often confine the term to the latter, as here, using bruma or hiemps as the opposite to solstitium; comp. Virg. Georg. i 100 humida solstitia atque hiemes orate serenas.

618. lunaque: i.e. et quo pacto luna etc.

619. in quo cursu may be transl. 'in traversing which'.

621. vel cum primis, lit. 'even with the first,' i.e. 'very probably'.

622. "the revered judgment of the sage, Democritus'.

Democritus, the 'laughing philosopher', was born at Abdera in Thrace about 460 B.C. His learning was astonishing for his time, especially in physics. Lucr. refers to him again in the same respectful terms, iii 371.

623. sint: subj., because oratio obliqua has been introduced by ponit. propter: for position, see n. to l. 31.

624. caeli turbinis: see n. to l. 510.

626. imminui after evanescere is a hysteron proteron, i.e. we should expect the order of the verbs to be reversed; comp. l. 535.

627. posteriora signa are those signs of the zodiac which at any given time have not yet passed the sun, though they will shortly do so.

628. seruida signa are the signs of the zodiac generally, which are nearer the revolving sphere of heaven and therefore move faster than the sun.

629. et magis hoc lunam, sc. relingui docet. hoc, i.e. sole.

D.
630. abest...proinquat: indicative in spite of the oratio obliqua; Lucr. is anticipating the oratio recta into which he passes at l. 632.

631. *posse, sc. lunam. *tendere cursum, ‘to keep up’. *keep pace!

634. circum is the adverb.

635. The moon, owing to her nearness to the earth, goes so slowly and the signs of the zodiac so fast, that they all pass her very rapidly; but to our eyes it seems as if she were passing them in the contrary direction.

636. reviso more commonly takes a simple acc.

637. *fit...ut possit—potest; pleonastic. mundi—caeli. transversis, ‘crossing the sun’s path’.

638. alternis: adverb.

639. qui=talis ut.

640. flexus: see n. to l. 616.

641. et qui: as antecedent to qui, sc. alter.

645. aeribus: causal abl. alternis agrees with partibus.

647. supernis is dat. governed by diversas; the words may be expanded thus: in partes contrarias eis partibus in quas superna eunt.

648. qui is the ablative; see n. to l. 233. *qui minus, lit. ‘how the less’, i.e. ‘why not as well’.

650—655. Night comes on, either because the sun’s fires are exhausted by their long journey, or because the same force as made him rise now makes him set beneath the earth.

651. de,*after’: Plaut. Mostell. 697 non bonust somnus de prandio. ultima caeli: see n. to viai cuncta l. 739. ‘the utmost parts of heaven’.

652. *impulit,*has struck’. efflavit: comp. the phrase efflare animam, ‘to die’.

653. *iter for itinere; Lucr. once (vi 339) has itiner for the nom., exactly the reverse of later usage, which has iter, itineris.

655. orbem, ‘orb’, but ‘orbit’, l. 648; in each case the context must determine the meaning.

656—679. The regular recurrence of dawn may be accounted for in two ways. Either the same sun, returning below the earth, sends his light before him; or a new sun is born every day by the streaming together of fires at a fixed time every day. If the latter explanation be the true one, there is no reason to wonder at the regularity of sun-rise; for there are many instances in nature of a regular recurrence of phenomena.

656. Matuta, or Mater Matuta, the goddess of dawn, identified by some Latin writers with Juno, by others with Ino Leucothea, a marine goddess. orae aetheris: see n. to l. 85.

657. pandit, 'opens up'.

658. sub terras: acc., because the sun is in motion. cf. 654.

ille is in apposition with the subject sol, and serves to give it emphasis; a favourite idiom of Cicero.

659. anticipat governs caelum, which is understood as object to accendere.

660. consuerunt: three syllables by synizesis; see n. to suo, l. 420.

661. sempeter: i.e. every day.

662. quod genus: see n. to l. 428. Idaeis: a range of mountains in Phrygia. Other ancient writers mention this strange legend.

663. orienti is a participle, not an epithet.

664. inde: temporal. 'Then.'

665. in his rebus: see n. to l. 247. Herein

666. arbusta is used by Lucr. for árbóres which his verse will not admit, but not arbustis for arboribus; see l. 786; so he uses principiorum as the gen. of primordia, l. 184.

667. cadere imperat: imperare commonly takes ut and subj., iubere the simple inf.

668. impubem, 'the boy'.

669. pariter (going with máli) = pari parte, 'in equal length'; comp. i 87 insula...ex utraque pari malarum parte profusast, 'the fillet fell down in equal lengths from each cheek'.

670. mundi: after origine. cessere, 'have fallen out'.

671. conseque, 'in due sequence'. quoque is here used like kal in apodosis, e.g. ös ὤς ἐδοξεν ἀντὶ, καὶ ἐποιησε. redeunt, sc. res.

680—704. There are also several ways of explaining why days are long and nights short in summer, while the reverse is true in winter. First we may suppose that the sun's daily path is divided into two parts, viz. the part below the earth and the part above; and that these two are never equal, except at the equinoxes. This will explain why a long day must be followed by a short night, and vice versa; for however much be subtracted from the sun's path beneath the earth, viz. the night, just as much must be added to his path above it, viz. the day, the whole length of his path being constant. All this you may see in a map of the heavens. Again, the long nights of winter may be due to a thickness of the air in certain regions which prevents the sun from rising. Lastly, if we assume that a new sun is born every day, alternate slowness and quickness in the streaming together of fires will account for the alternate length and shortness of the days.

See plan on p. xxi.

681. "lucis, 'days'; soles is used in the same sense.

sumant: see n. to l. 63; it seems that Lucretius uses the subjunctive here because he is discussing a hypothetical case.

682. sol idem: opposed to the daily created sun of another theory.
683."imparibus, 'of unequal length'; aetheris oras includes the ether below the earth.

684. partes, 'two parts': διὰ τέσσερα ἄνωτα τμήματα τὴν ὀδόν.
685."reponit, 'adds in compensation'.
686. eius, i.e. orbis. tanto plus: tantundem would be more accurate. "relatus, 'when he comes round', i.e. from beneath the earth or above it.

687. signum caeli, i.e. sign of the zodiac, the sign being the Ram at the vernal equinox, and the Scales at the autumnal.

688. nodus anni, 'the node of the year', is the intersection of the ecliptic (the sun's apparent annual path in the heavens) and the equator, at the equinoxes; see plan on p. xxi.

689. medio cursu is abl. absol.; with cursu, sc. solis; medio governs fluxus. The meaning is: when the sun's daily course is due east and west.

690. 'heaven keeps his two goals apart at an equal distance'; i.e. the distance between his rising and setting is exactly equal to that between his setting and rising, and consequently the day is exactly equal in length to the night. metae here are the points where the sun rises and sets, not, as in l. 617, the solstices.

691."signiferi orbis, 'the starry circle', i.e. the zodiac, so called from the animals (τυχο) after which the constellations are named.

692. obliquo lumine, 'with slanting light'.
693. "ratio, 'science'.
NOTES.

695. *notarunt, 'have mapped out'.

697. *sub terris: abl., because the sun is stopped; comp. acc. in l. 658.

700. *dum veniat: *dum expressing (as here and l. 976) expectation generally takes pres. or imperf. subj.; *dum expressing *purpose always takes subj.; *dum, 'whilst', takes pres. ind.

701. *radiatum, 'with rays shooting from it', not merely 'beaming'.

702. *insigne, 'ensign', 'badge'; used as a noun: again, l. 1138.

703. *certa, a 'particular' but not a fixed quarter.

704. *parte is governed by *de of the verb.

705—750. The phases of the moon may be explained in various ways. She may derive her light from the sun, so that she is at the full when she is right opposite him, but gradually loses her light as she approaches him, and is quite dark when between the earth and the sun. Or her light may be her own, and the phases may be due to an opaque satellite of her own which is constantly getting in her way and shutting out her light from us. Or it may be true, as the Chaldaeans teach, that she is a sphere of which only one half is bright; the revolution of such a sphere would bring about the phases we see. Or, lastly, a fresh moon may be born every day, each with a different phase, in regular succession; we see many things come round in regular succession, as for instance the four seasons.

The account Lucr. gives first is the true one; see p. xxviii; it is quite incompatible with his own views as to the size of the sun and moon.

707. *ad speciem: see n. to l. 569.

709. *super and *edita form one word. It is the case that the moon, when full, rises about sunset.

710. *retro quasi condere lumen, 'reversing as it were her course, to hide her light'; the expression is exceedingly condensed.

711. *debet, 'she must', i.e. on this theory.

712. The moon, like the sun, travels through the zodiac but not in the same orbit. *signorum orbis=signifer orbis of l. 691.

713. *faciunt, 'make her do'; as subj. to *faciunt, supply *ii.
714. cursus viam, ‘the path of her orbit’; comp. iter vias, l. 1124.
715. est quare possit means no more than potest.
716. volviter = volvi; comp. dignarer, l. 51.

 formas, ‘phases’.
718. omnimodis; see n. to l. 190.
719. potis est; see n. to l. 560.
721. parti; archaic abl.; see n. to orbi l. 74.
723. donique; see n. to 708. partem, ‘half’.
725. ignibus aucta, ‘illuminated’; comp. the phrase augeri filio (Cic. ad Att. i 2 1; Tac. Agr. vi 3).
724. ad speciem; see n. to l. 569.
725. retro goes with contorquet.
726. glom. atque pilai = globi pilai of l. 720; it is a hendiadys.
727. Chaldaeum; gen. plur. The Chaldae (vulgarly called matematici) were the successors of Berosus, a priest of Belus in Babylon about 250 B.C.; they were soothsayers and astrologers, and therefore disliked by the scientific astronomers, the astrologii of l. 728.
728. artem, ‘the system’. The astrologi gave the right explanation of the moon’s phases, which Lucr. puts first (II. 705—714), though he will not allow it greater probability. contra, ‘in opposition’, adverb; it often = ‘in exchange’.
729. pugnat, ‘fights for’.
730. The order is: aut (quasi) sit cur hoc minus illo ausis amplectier.
731. cur nequeat is an indirect question, depending on docere l. 735.
732. semper, ‘every day’.
733. privos; see n. to l. 274.
734. parte is strangely used in the sense of loco.
735. vincere = convincere; comp. Virg. Georg. iii 289 verbis ea vincere, Hor. Sat. i 3 115 nec vincet ratio hoc.
737—747 describe a kind of masque or pageant of the seasons, which are used as an example of the regularity of natural phenomena.
737. it, ‘goes on its way’.
738. The ‘winged harbinger of Venus’ is Cupid.
739. quibus, i.e. Veneri et Veneris praemunito. ante, ‘in front of them'. With viae cuncta, comp. ultima caeli l. 651, caerula mundi l. 771.

The order is: first the West Wind, then Flora his wife, then Cupid, and last Venus and Spring. The Latin name of Zephyrus is Favonius; Pliny and Columella say that this wind always began to blow 'on Feb. 7th and marked the beginning of spring.

740. Notice the assonance in this fine line which has somewhat of the effect of rhyme. Lucr. is thinking especially of the beauty and fragrance of the rose which was the spring flower of the Romans; comp. i 174 vere rosam, frumenta calore, vites autumno fundi suadente videmus.

741. inde loci: see n. to l. 443. unā: adverb.

742. Harvest being in summer, Virgil (Georg. i 66) speaks of aetas pulverulenta.

743. autumnus: the season of fruit and especially of the grape; Martial uses the word as = ‘fruit’, and also = ‘wine’. Euhius Euan: both words (which may be retained in translating) are Greek names of Bacchus, and are derived from ἐνοῖδα, the cry of the Bacchanals; comp. Eur. Bacch. 157 εὖν εὖν ἀγὰλλομεναί θεόν.

744. tempestates, ‘seasons’; so l. 1395.

745. altitonans, ‘loud-roaring’. Volturnus is the Greek Eurus and blew from the quarter where the winter sun rose, according to Seneca, Nat. Quaest. v 16 4.

746. bruma is contracted from brevima (= brevissima), ‘the shortest day’. pigrum, ‘numbing’; the word is used of stagnant water, and of a sullen expression.

747. hanc is governed by sequitur.

748. certo tempore, i.e. every day.

749. rusus = rursus.

751—770. Eclipses of the sun may be explained by supposing that the moon shuts off his light from us; or else it may be some invisible body which gets between; or lastly the sun’s rays may be quenched by passing through air that is hostile to them. And you have a similar choice of explanations to account for eclipses of the moon.

751. item quoque: comp. etiam quoque, l. 604.

754. a terris, ‘on the earthward side’, viz. of the sun; comp. ab nervis l. 1332.
caput is the moon's own head.  ei, i.e. soli.
755. caecum, 'dark', 'opaque', not 'sightless'.
756. tempore eodem = tamen; so interea, ll. 83, 394.
aliud corpus is subject to putetur, id is object to facere.
pusetur is after cur, l. 753; for the construction, see n. to l. 1045.
758. languidus must be taken as part of the predicate, as if the text were languescere et dimittere.
759. recreareque: the Augustan poets do not attach que to a short e.
761. interstingui, 'to be quenched for a time'; so interquiescere, 'to rest for a time'.
762. He proceeds to deal with lunar eclipses, giving first the true explanation and then two alternatives, all which he asserts to be equally probable. vicissim, i.e. as the moon hid the sun's light.
763. et oppressum etc.: 'and moreover herself to keep the sun suppressed', i.e. to prevent him from lighting up the moon. super = insuper.
764. menstrua, sc. luna, 'the moon in her monthly course'. rigidas, 'clearly defined'. coni umbras, 'the conical shadow', viz. of the earth; the gen. serves as an epithet; see nn. to ll. 369, 1193.
Lucr. seems here to say that the moon passes through the earth's shadow every month; this would only be true if the moon's path and the sun's were in the same plane, so that once in each month the three bodies would be in a straight line; see p. xxviii.
765. tempore eodem: see n. to l. 756. succurrere, 'to pass beneath'; usually, 'to help'.
766. orbem, 'orb'. The sun is supposed to be below the earth, at the time when the moon is eclipsed.
767. guod = tale ut. radios, sc. solis.
768. et tamen, 'and after all'; see n. to l. 1096.
769. per governs loca; inimica makes the separation less harsh. propriis, i.e. not derived from the sun.

771—782. Now that I have explained the motions of the heavenly bodies and their eclipses, I go back to describe the primeval earth and its first products.
771. guod superest: see n. to l. 64. caerula mundi: comp cuncta viai l. 739.
772. quicquid: see n. to l. 131
773. cursus is governed by cieret.
NOTES.

776. quove: see n. to l. 71. officio: Lucr. elsewhere uses a personal passive of officere, though the verb does not take an acc.

777. neque opinantes: the common form is necopinans, in one word.

778. lumine, 'eye'; keeping up the metaphor of conivenent and convisunt.

780. nunc redeo: the digression began at l. 509.

781. Before quid, sc. et doceo. luminis oras: see n. to l. 85.

782. crerint (creverint) = decerint; in l. 393 cernere = decernere in a rather different sense. Comp. Virg. Aen. xi 560 quae nunc dubiis committitur auris.

783—820. The earth brought forth grass and trees first of all and then living creatures of all kinds. Neither sky nor sea had anything to do with the first creation of men; mother earth herself brought them forth, first birds, and then men who sprang from the earth and were fed by a moisture like milk, issuing from the ground. At that time there was no severe weather to trouble the first-created men.

783. principio, 'in the beginning'.

785. fulserunt: this aorist, and others in the context, seem to imply that all this came to pass very quickly.

786. arboribus: for nom. Lucr. uses arbusta: see n. to l. 671.

787. inmissis habenis, 'with unbridled luxuriance'; the metaphor is imitated by Virgil, Georg. ii 364; comp. δυνατος χαλωφ, Soph. Antig. 109.

788. primum, i.e. as soon as beasts and birds are born.

789. pennipotentum, 'of the strong of wing', i.e. birds; this is one of the many Lucretian compounds which Virgil did not care to use.

791. inde loci: see n. to l. 443. mortalita saecula here includes the lower animals as well as men, though it usually = mortales and excludes the mutae pecudes et saecula ferrarum; so ll. 805, 988, 1169, 1238.

794. terrestria is not a mere epithet but = quia terrestria sunt. lacunis, sc. maris.

795. linquitur: impers. Of the four elements one, fire, can have no claim, and Lucr. has dismissed the claim of two others; the only remaining hypothesis is that earth is the general mother.
It was long believed that horse-hairs sealed up in a bottle of water became eels, but modern science seems to have exploded this theory.

800. aethere, sc. novo.   adulta is neut. plur.
801. alitum: said to be a lengthened form of alitum, gen. plur. of alēs. variae, 'of different kinds'; but, Petron. 28, pica varia, 'a pied magpie'; Hor. Sat. i 8 42 varia colubra, 'a spotted snake'.
802. exclusae: comp. Hamlet 5 i 310 'the female dove, when that her golden couplets are disclosed'. The 'couplets' are the two young pigeons.

tempore: temporal abl.; so aestate below.
803. terti, 'smooth and round'. Comp. iv 58, where Lucr. writes tunicas for folliculos.
804. victum vitamque, 'a living and life'. The two words are often so joined; see ll. 1080, 1105.
805. tibi, 'you must know'; ethical dat.; see nn. to ll. 260, 294.

mortalia saecla: see n. to l. 791.
807. hoc, 'therefore', lit. 'by this'; so τῷ is often used in Homer. dabatur, 'offered itself'.
808. apti, 'clasping'; particip. of apisci, to be distinguished from aptus, particip. of apere, for which see n. to l. 537; the latter would govern a dative.
809. aestus is the heat inside the wombs caused by the growth of the infants.
810. fugiens and petessens ought strictly to be gen. plur.; the latter is an archaic frequentative from petere.
811. ibi is used for ad eun locum, i.e. ad uteros.
812. cogebat, sc. terram.
815. impetus ille alimenti, 'that current of nutriment'; ille, i.e. which served to feed the child before it was born.
817. abundans is feminine.
818. ciebat: here of second conjugation: see n. to l. 211.
819. viribus: abl. of description.
820. The children were feeble, but so were the winds and hot and cold weather.
821—836. Thus mother earth gave birth to men and all kinds of animals and birds. But at length she ceased bearing, by the law of eternal change in all things; or at least the things which she bears now are no longer the same.

821. etiam atque etiam, 'again and again I say'.

823. animal: the only place where Lucr. uses the sing. of this substantive; he uses instead animans (fem.) and both animalia and animantes as plural.

825. variantibus formis = varias, the common epithet of birds; see n. to l. 801.

826. debet, 'she is bound'.

827. spatio... vetusto: so Aristophanes (Frogs 347) speaks of etna παλαία.

829. ex alio, 'after another'; comp. ex in such phrases as τυφλὸς ἐκ δεδορκότρος.

830. sui is gen. of the pronoun. migrant, 'change their place'.

831. vertere = verti; so convertere l. 1422, turbare l. 504, mutare l. 588, volventia l. 931, are all used intransitively.

833. contemptibus, 'its low estate'.

834. mundi naturam: see n. to l. 59.

835. alter is used for alius; comp. autre in French.

836. The full sentence is: quod potuit ferre terra, nunc nequit ferre, ut possit ferre quod non tulit ante; i.e., the earth ceases to bring forth certain things that it may be able to bring forth certain others.

837—850. The earth gave birth also in the beginning to all kinds of monsters; but these were not fitted to exist and nature destroyed them before they came to maturity.

838. coorta is neut. plur.

839. androgynum: usually hermaphroditum, a compound formed from the names of the two Greek deities.

nec utrum = non utrum or neutrum; comp. Mart. v 20 11 nunc vivit necuter sibi. nec is an old form of negative; so necopinans (see n. to l. 777) = non opinans.

840. partim = nonnulla, 'some of them'; again, ll. 1083, 1143, 1310, in the same sense.

viduata simply = sine, like privata, l. 317. The gen. manuum instead of the abl. manibus is a Greek construction.
841. voltu = oculis.

844. quod foret usus, ‘what they had need of’; usus est commonly takes abl., sometimes, as here, acc. of reference, ‘that in respect of which there was need’; see n. to l. 1053.

847. cupitum aetatis florem: so in Pindar ἑσάθεμοι φῦ and τερπνᾶς καρπὸς ἕβας express the same thing.

848. per Veneris res, ‘in marriage’.

849. This is the only hypermetric line in Lucr.; i.e., its last syllable is cut off before the first of the next line; such lines are less rare in Virgil, but unknown to Homer.

rebus is dat. commodi.

850. propagando here, but propagando l. 856.

possint, sc. res. procudere, ‘to continue’; the metaphor is from forging metal.

855—877. Such wild animals as have not become extinct owe their preservation either to peculiar courage, craft, or speed; the lion, the fox, and the deer are familiar examples. The domestic animals owe their safety to our protection which we give because they are useful to us. All animals, which could not protect themselves and were useless to man, have become extinct.

855. animantium = animalium; see n. to l. 823.

857. vesci, ‘feed on’; for a different sense, see l. 72.

vitalibus auris, ‘the breath of life’.

858. aut denique: comp. Hor. Sat. i 2 133 ne nummi pereant ar.

est goes with tutata below; see n. to l. 90.

859. tutata reservans: see n. to l. 109.

861. manent, ‘continue to exist’.

863. dolus, sc. tutatus est.

864. fido cum pectore: see n. to l. 352. Dogs accompanied the kings in the Odyssey and the Aeneid, and the death of the faithful Argos is one of the most pathetic scenes in Homer (Od. xvii 290—327); Plato finds in the dog the qualities proper for the guardians of his ideal state (Rep. 376); comp. too Martial’s epitaph (xi 69) on Dexter’s dog, Lydia, domino fidissima Dextro.

865. veterino, ‘burden carrying’, connected by the Latin grammarians with veho; hence our ‘veterinary’. semine: abl. of origin.

866. bucerus is βουκέρως with Latin terminations.
NOTES.

869. pabula parta: acc., governed by secuta sunt. labore, ‘toil’, viz. to get food; for we make them undergo other toil.

870. praemia, ‘as reward’. causa (= διάφραγμα) governs utilitatis.

871. quid is dat. plur. horum, ‘of these qualities’.

872. possent is consec. subj.

873. quarē = quamobrem.

874. praesidio nostro, ‘under our protection’.

875. silicet, ‘you must know’; the original sense of the word, which is merely sci licet, lit. ‘know! you are allowed’; comp. ilicet, videlicet. praedae lucroque: predicative datives; see l. 539.

876. The vincula are their own natural limitations which made it impossible for them to survive.

This ‘survival of the fittest’ is one of the central ideas of Darwinism.

878—924. But there never were and never can be creatures which unite in one form the limbs and natures of two different animals. Take for instance the Centaur or man-horse: such a creature can never have existed, as the maturity of the horse coincides with the infancy of man and the maturity of man with the old age of the horse. So too of the Scylla, half-woman, half-fish, and of the Chimaera, a combination of the lion, goat, and dragon. It is true that the early world produced many things, but it never could produce creatures that combine two or more incompatible natures.

879. bino, ‘twofold’; the distributive bini is occasionally used in the singular as an adj. with this meaning. Comp. unis l. 897.

880. compacta, ‘things put together’, contains the subject to queunt.

881. hinc illinc, lit. ‘from this, from that’, i.e., ‘from the two halves’.

non... potissit: i.e. non potis sit satis par esse, ‘cannot be sufficiently alike’. potissit is subj. of potis est.

883. circum is separated from actis by tmesis; see n. to l. 287. impiger is part of the predicate.

884. haudquaquam, sc. flore).

885. ubera mammcarum lactantis, ‘milk of the breast’.

886. senecta is an adj.
888. *tum demum, τότε ἡδή, ‘only then’. *puero illi, ‘for that boy’, i.e. the boy mentioned above.

890. *ne forte...credas: see n. to l. 114. *veterino: see n. to l. 865.

892. The Scylla is described by Homer (Od. xii 86—100); but he does not make her *desinere in piscem, and all he says of dogs is that her voice was like that of a new-born puppy; but Catullus (60 2), Virgil (Aen. iii 426), and Ovid (Met. xiv 60), agree with the description of Lucr. *semimarinis: i.e. the lower part of her body was that of a fish.

894. *discordia is an adj.

896. *proiciunt, sc. *robora. See n. to *adicere, l. 567.

897. *simili Venere, ‘with like passions’. *unis: the plur. of *unus is rare, as one might expect, but classical.

898. *conveniunt: the impers. constr. is much commoner in this sense, *convenit vobis or *inter vos, not *convenitis. *sunt, sc. *eis; a co-ordinate clause is substituted for a second relative clause; this is the normal construction in Greek; e.g. οὗτος ὅποιον καὶ ἐκέλευσα αὖτίνῳ *χαλψεν, ‘whom I saw and to whom I said good-morning’. *per artus, ‘throughout their frames’.

901. *cum, ‘since’.

902. *genus omne, ‘any kind’.

903. *visceris, ‘of flesh’; in Lucr. this word, both sing. and plnr., does not mean ‘entrails’, but all between the skin and bones; comp. Plaut. Mil. Glor. 30 *per corium, *per viscera, *perque os (the bone) elephanti transmineret bracchium.

904. *qui is abl.: see n. to l. 233. *unī agrees with *chimaera, as do *prima, *postrema and *media below.

905. *prima leo, ‘in front a lion’. *media ipsa, lit. ‘in the middle, itself,’ i.e. a *χλωμα or goat. The line is translated from Hom. Il. vi 181, πρῶτε ζέων ῥυθεὶς δὲ δράκων μέσην δὲ *χλωμα. In the legend Bellerophon, the master of the horse Pegasus, killed this formidable creature.

907. The ablatives absolute go with *gigni.

909. *novitatis: gen. of definition; so *munere belli, l. 1308.

911. *dicat, sc. *licet, ‘may say’. *aurea is part of the predicate, ‘with gold’.

912. *arbusta = *arbores; see n. to l. 671. *suēsse is contracted from *suevisse.

913. *impelē, ‘strength and size’; see n. to l. 200.
NOTES.

914. pedum nisus ponere, ‘to tread firmly’.
916. quod, ‘the fact that’.
918. signi: partitive gen., or gen. of divided whole; so loci in the phrase inde loci, inde being = ab eo.
919. inter se goes with mixtas. compacta, ‘formed into a single frame’.
921. laeta, ‘luxuriant’; a constant epithet of fabula and grama.
922. complexa is here passive, as perplexa always is, from complecto; complecti is commonly deponent.
923. omnes, sc. res.

925—987. Men were much more hardy then than now. They did not know agriculture of any kind, but ate the acorns and berries which the woods supplied and drank the water of the mountain streams. They did not know the use of fire or of clothing, nor had they any idea of acting in concert with one another. They used to hunt wild beasts and sleep naked on beds of leaves. As they had always been accustomed to see night succeed day, they were not frightened by the darkness, but rather by the wild beasts which often drove them from their caves and beds of leaves.

Bagehot, Physics and Politics, p. 15, says ‘Perhaps it is the most valuable, as it is clearly the most certain result of prehistoric ethnology, that it has dispelled the dreams of other days as to a primitive high civilisation’. We see that Lucretius did not share those dreams.

926. durius, ‘more hardy’. quod is the relative, and takes the subj. (creasset) because it = quippe quod.
927. ossibus, ‘upon bones’; so fundatum aevo l. 161.
928. aptum, particip. of apère, agrees with genus.

929. Take quod (= tale ut) as first word in the sentence; facile is adv. modifying caperetur; for the order of words, comp. nec facere ut possent l. 843, and nec ipsa sponte sua possent ut vivere l. 871. This sense of caperetur is seen in such a phrase as oculis captus, ‘blind’.

930. labi: see n. to orbī l. 74.
931. volventia = volvenda of l. 514; this particip. is often used as if volvere were intransitive; comp. the verbs quoted in n. to l. 831.

934. scibat is an archaic form for sciebat which the metre will not admit; so accibant, l. 996. Owing to the character of the narrative, there are a very large number of imperfects here; and the form in -ebam very often involves a cretic (- - -).
935. defedere, ‘to dig down’, hence ‘to plant’. The line is repeated almost exactly, l. 1366.

936. veteres is opposed to nova in the line before.

938. donum, ‘boon’.

939. curabant corpora, ‘they would refresh their bodies’, i.e. eat.

942. plurima, ‘in great number’, is part of the predicate.

943. decursus aquai: evidently a favourite phrase; comp. l. 263.

947. claru is nom. sing. masc.; transl. by adverb.

948. *nota...silvestria: see n. to divina antiqua l. 13.*

949. *quibus e: for the order, comp. inimica per, l. 770.*

950. *lubrica agrees with saxa. Notice the alliteration.*

951. *umida saxa: comp. ll. 298, 299; this kind of repetition is common in all poets; see especially M. Arnold’s Sohrab and Rustum.

952. *partim, ‘some of the water’. plano is an epithet of campo.

953. *igni is the archaic abl.; see n. to orbi l. 74.*

957. There is similar alliteration, l. 217.

958. commune bonum spectare, ‘to consider the common weal’, i.e. to take thought for the whole community.

959. *moribus, ‘customs’. *inter se goes with uti.

960. *quod praedae=quod praedae quod; *praedae is gen. of divided whole, or partitive gen.; comp. signi, l. 918.*

961. *sibi valere, ‘to be strong for himself’, i.e. to use his strength for himself. doctus: participle.

964. *quamque, sc. feminam.

965. *glandes, arbita, and *pira are in apposition with pretium.
968. missilibus saxis with showers of stones.

969. magnus pondere clavae clavā magni ponderis; comp. levisoma canum corda.

970. suscitatis dat. of sus, suis. suscitatis is the same word as ‘suscitatis’ coming through the Ital. suscitatis; so Milton speaks of a golden hill.

971. nudabant: the MSS. have nudabant, which must be wrong, as Lucr. has just said that the men wore no clothes.

972. circum is the adverb.

973. For this idea, that the first inhabitants of the earth must have feared the sun would never rise a second time, see Blanco White’s fine sonnet which begins:

Mysterious Night! when our first parent knew
Thee from report divine and heard thy name,
Did he not tremble for this lovely frame,
This glorious canopy of light and blue?

975. respectabant = expectabant; comp. vi 1233 funera respectans.

976. dum...inferret: see n. to dum veniat, l. 700. dum expectationem.

977. a parvis, ek παλιν, from childhood. Generally takes acc. or voc. subst.

979. non erat ut fieri posset: non poterat fieri; see l. 126. miravér (= miravi) is used as a noun, and is subject to posset, so is differire; comp. Hor. Ep. i 7 27 reddes dulce loqui, reddes ridere decorum.

980. differire, misgiving; followed by acc. and inf., l. 1157.

981. curae (sc. eii) is predicative dat., like oneri l. 539.

982. infestam is predicate. quietem, ‘their time of rest’; per reportem, ‘in sleep’, is a common phrase in Suetonius; or perhaps ‘their place of rest’; as Lucr. (i 405) speaks of intectae fronde quietes.

985. adventus = propter adventum; causal abl.

986. intempestae noctis, vix erat ωκρος  waiver, at dead of night. The epithet is thus explained by Varro, a contemporary of Cicero and the most learned of the Romans: cum tempus agendi est nullum.

987. hospitibus saevis: i.e. the boars and lions.

988—1010. Men did not die then in much greater numbers than now. It is true that more men were seized and devoured by wild beasts, and those who escaped with wounds did not know how to cure them; but no great armies or fleets perished in a single day. The sea was not a source of death as no one ventured upon it. Want may have killed some, as luxury does now; and some swallowed poisons unawares which we now use as medicines.

988. nimio plus, 'more by much'; it commonly means 'too much', as in Hor. Od. i 33 1 ne doleas plus nimio. mortalia saecla: see n. to
l. 791.

989. labentes, 'ebbing'; for the alliteration and also for the matter, comp. Gray's 'nor cast one longing lingering look behind'.

990. magis, sc. quam nunc.

991. haustus, 'torn', a rather strange but quite common use of haurire; comp. ll. 1069, 1324.

993. vivo busto, i.e. the animal's maw. viscera: see n. to l. 903.
Notice the alliteration, which has a pathetic effect.

996. accibant: see n. to scibat l. 934. Orcus or Dis is the Latin deity who corresponds to Πλοῦτων, the god of the lower world.

997. donique: see n. to l. 708; the plpf. after donec is unexampled in Lucr. vermina, 'gripings'.

998. villent, 'needed'; viz. for cure.

999. virum: gen. plur.: sub signis ducto, 'marching beneath their standards'. milia should always be spelt with one l, the rule being that when a long vowel is followed by l, one l is withdrawn where an i follows, (unless this i be merely the mark of a case, e.g. villa villis);
so mille but milia, villa but vilicus, Messalla but Messalina.

1000. Comp. l. 95.

1002. hic=tum; so l. 432. temere incaesse frustra, 'without aim, purpose, or result': a very pleonastic expression, as all three words express nearly the same idea.

1003. saevibat: see n. to scibat, l. 934.

1005. in fraudem, 'to his hurt'; this sense of fraudus is common in old legal formulas where sine fraude esto=άθών εἶναί in Greek laws.

1006. improba ratio, 'the reckless art'. cæca, 'hidden'.

1007. tum deinde, 'at that time too'.

1008. contra: adverb. mersat, sc. membra. ship into rein.

ii 152 nec miserorum fallunt aconita legentes.

1010. 'now doctors prescribe and administer it with more skill'.
The reading in the text is that of Professor Palmer for mutant sollertius

ipsi of the mss. All medicines are poison; and Lucr. is contrasting the skill of doctors, in graduating a dose of what would be fatal in large quantities, with the ignorance which led uncivilised men to poison themselves. dare and uti are both technically used of doctors. From διδόναι, which is used like dare, comes our 'dose'.

1011—1027. Next they came to use huts, skins, and fire which softened their bodies, while family life and the caresses of children made them less harsh and cruel. The next step was friendship among neighbours, and agreements which, if not in all cases, at least in many, were respected.

1011. ignemque: the discovery of fire is described in detail below (ll. 1091—1104); after finishing his first sketch of the narrative, Lucr. seems to have thought more should be said on so important a subject. Darwin says 'the discovery of fire, probably the greatest, excepting language, made by man, dates from before the dawn of history'.

1014. primum is an adverb.

1015. curavit=effect; often so used by Lucr.

1016. non ita iam, οὐκέτι θηρῶς, 'no longer as before'. non iam=οὐκέτι, nondum=οὐπώ.

1018. ingenium fregere superbum, 'broke down the haughty temper'.

1020. inter se goes with iungere. Compare the account given in Plato (Rep. 358 ε) of the origin of justice: ὅκει λυστελεῖν ξυνθείναι ἀλλήλοις μὴ ἀδικεῖν μὴν ἀδικεῖται.

1021. commendarunt, sc. homines supplied out of finitimi; 'men asked protection for'.

1022. balbe, 'stammeringly', properly applies only to the pueri; comp. Hor. Ep. ii 126 οσ tenerum pueri balbumque. significarent, sc. pueri et mulieres.

1023. imbecillorum: misereri takes a genitive, miserari an accusative.

1024. omnimodis, 'without exception'; for the formation of the word, see n. to l. 190.

1025. bona magna= bene magna; comp. pleno bene, l. 708. caste=interemerat.
Language arose from a natural instinct to denote different things by different names. Children try to speak before they are able to do so, just as young animals instinctively exert their peculiar powers. It is not true that some one man invented the names of things and taught everyone else; no single man could have conceived such an idea, nor would others have been willing to learn from him. There is nothing in the origin of language to surprise us, if we reflect that even animals express different emotions in quite different tones; this may be observed in dogs, horses, and birds of many kinds.

This question was much discussed by the ancients, whether the names of things were arbitrarily fixed or arose naturally, whether they were due to θέως or φως. The view of Lucretius is shared by Darwin.

1029. *mittere, lēvā, 'to utter'; the inf. after subegit is unusual for it and subj., though normal after cogere. *utilitas seems to be used like χελα, in the sense of 'need'. *expressit, 'wrung out of them'.

1030. Comp. l. 460. videtur is passive.

1033. *vin: the acc. after *utor and its compounds and such verbs as *fruor, *fungor, *potior, is an archaism.

*quod ( =quatens) is one syllable by synizesis.

*abuti = *uti; comp. *ἀναχρῆσθαι. *abuti often = καταχρῆσθαι.

1036. *σκύλωι is the Greek equivalent of *catuli.

1039. *aliquum: see n. to l. 801.

1040. *tremulum, 'fluttering'.

1041. *aliquem, 'some one man'.

1042. *inde = *ab *eo, 'from him'.

1045. *tempore *eodem = *tamen and goes with *putentur, not with *facere; comp. ll. 756, 765, where the construction is exactly the same, being *asynthetic, i.e. there is no particle (such as *sed) to connect the two contrasted verbs, *posset and *putentur.
NOTES.

1047. \textit{notites}, "pre-conception", is a translation, not very accurate, of \textit{προλπήσις}; see n. to l. 182.

1049. Comp. l. 183. \textit{scītē}: the last syllable can be lengthened because it is in \textit{arsis}, i.e. the emphasis falls on it; in hexameters the arsis is on the first syllable of each foot; so Virgil ends a line with \textit{gravidus autumno}, and begins one with \textit{liminaque laurusque}.

1050. \textit{victosque domare}: see n. to l. 109.

1053. \textit{quid sit opus facto}, lit. "in respect of what there is need of doing", i.e. "what is needful to be done"; \textit{opus est} usually takes the abl. of a noun; but, if the thing needed be an action, the abl. of a perf. particip. is used. For the acc. \textit{quid}, see n. to quod foret usus l. 844.

1056. \textit{tantoperest}: see n. to l. 29.

1057. \textit{vigeret} is subj., because \textit{cui = quippe cui}.

1059. \textit{cum}, "since". \textit{denique} may here be translated "even".

1061. \textit{est, sc. eis. gliscunt, 'are ripe'}; comp. iii 480 \textit{iurgia gliscunt}, Plaut. Capt. 558 \textit{gliscit rabios}.

1062. \textit{quippe etenim}: see n. to l. 126.

1064. \textit{riētā}, "open mouths"; \textit{riētus}, -ūs is the common form of the word. \textit{fremunt}, "growl".

1066. \textit{et, 'than'}, is for \textit{atque} or \textit{ac} after \textit{alio}; \textit{ac cum} would not sound well. \textit{iām}, "actually", qualifies \textit{latrant}. \textit{omnia}, "all the place".

1068. \textit{pedibus} goes with \textit{iactant}.

1069. \textit{suspensis}, lit. "carefully balanced", i.e. \textit{gentle}; comp. \textit{suspenso pēde}, "on tiptoe". \textit{imitantur haustus}, "they pretend to bite"; \textit{teneros} is part of the predicate, and may be transl. by an adv.

1070. \textit{adulant} = \textit{salvovor}.

1071. \textit{et} is used after \textit{alio} as in l. 1066, "other than".

1072. A graphic description. \textit{plorantes} is nom. plur.

1074. \textit{iuvencus} is used as an adjective.

1075. \textit{pinnigeri... amoris}: comp. l. 737 \textit{Veneris praenuntu pennatus} et: see n. to l. 1066. *sic, casually'; *ovrov is similarly used: the *sic of l. 970 is rather different. alias is the adverb.

Comp. l. 801, and see nn. there.

*salsum is used as a noun; comp. *tranguillum, l. 12.

*victum *vitamque: see n. to l. 804. *in living *a *life.

1081. It seems very probable that a line is lost after *voces; 'they utter different cries at different times' is a sentence complete in itself, which cannot be properly connected with the following line. The lost line may have begun with *et *quom, (which would account for its disappearance), and have described some peaceful cry of sea-birds: e.g. *et *quom progeniem *parvam *nidosque revisunt.

1083. *partim; 'some birds'; see n. to l. 840. *tempestaticum. *the weather'. *una: adv.

1087. *sensus, 'feelings'.

1088. lamen is out of place, as it really goes with *emittere; *dmos is sometimes similarly placed, e.g. Aesch. *Theb. 699 *pelou *νουκ*ίν *καλπερ *οδ *στεργων *δμφ.

1091—1104. Men may have got fire first from the lightning or from the rubbing of trees against one another; they learned to cook their food by observing the effect of the sun's heat upon things growing in the fields.

It is evident that this paragraph and the two which follow are subsequent additions of the poet: they do not fit in properly here and are inconsistent with what goes before and comes after; see n. to l. 1011.

1091. *in *his *rebus, *‘herein' ; so l. 247. *ne *forte *requiras: see n. to l. 114.

1092. *ignem: see n. to l. 1011.

1093. *inde=ab *eo, i.e. a *fulmine.

1095. *fulgeres: see n. to *scatil, l. 40. *caeli *plaga *must be distinguished from *poniti *plaga, l. 481. *the *level *of *ocean.

1096. *et... *tamen; 'and all the same', i.e. if we leave the lightning out of account, there is another explanation to our hand; *et *tamen is thus used, ll. 213, 768, 1125, 1177. *cum: conjunction.

1097. *rectual, *‘is tossed'.

1101. *utrumque, i.e. either lightning or the friction of trees.
NOTES.

1102. *inde, *next'.

1103. Supply mortales as object to docuit, and again as subject to videbant.

1105—1135. Day by day men acquired civilisation by the teaching of the most intelligent among them. Kings built cities and divided property. At first beauty and strength were highly regarded, but these had soon to give way to wealth, though the philosopher despises riches. Men struggled for honour and wealth and often came to ruin in the struggle; let them continue along that dangerous path, as they will not judge things for themselves but are content to accept the estimate of others.

The finest poetry in the book, perhaps in the poem, is contained in this paragraph and the three following.

1106. *rebu' is abl., the Latin idiom being, to change one thing with another; the abl. is instrumental. benigni may be translated by an adv.

1107. *corde visibant, *were of vigorous understanding'; cor is commonly the seat of intellect rather than of affection; see l. 882.

1109. praesidium may be 'a place to rule in', the original meaning from praesidere; perfugium, 'a place to take refuge in'.

1111. pro facie cuiusque=cuique pro facie; facies, 'beauty'.

1113. see 'wealth'. inventast, 'was devised'; repertum, 'was discovered', viz. in the earth.

1115. *sectam sequuntur; 'follow in the train'.

1116. creti: see n. to l. 6. *perfh. Par. of esse used as if esse were deponent, of adultus from adolesco.

1118. vivere parce is the subject of the sentence; the verb sunt is plur. by attraction due to the plur. predicate divitiae.

1119. neque enim: see n. to l. 315. *parvi is used as a noun; 'for never is there lack of a little'; i.e. you can always get a little, if you are content with that.

1120. claros voluerunt se: comp. Hor. Sat. i 84 non uxor salvum te vult. We use this constr. more with a particip. than an adj.: 'I wish myself dead', but 'I wish to be famous'.

1122. *opulentiam by their wealth'.

1123. *succedere, 'to mount up'; in a different sense, l. 286.
iter viai: comp. cursus viam, l. 714.

et tamen, 'and after all', i.e. even if they reach it; see n. to l. 1096.

deicit ictos: see n. to l. 109. 'Tuber & dasbus'.

This invidia bears some resemblance to the Nemesis, or envy of the gods, in the old mythology which Lucr. utterly discards; but see n. to l. 1233.

Tartara tætra; 'noisome Tartarus'; the infernal regions are mentioned to suggest the distance and disastrous nature of the fall.

vaporant; 'are blasted'; the verb is usually active.

quae and cumque make up a single word.

iam emphasises multo; so ἄον is used with adjectives.

sine...sudent: sine is pres. imperat. of sinère: comp. Plaut. Mil. Glor. 54 siavi viverent, 'I spared their lives. sanguine sudent: so in French, *suer sang et eau, 'to exert oneself excessively'.

If men did not follow one another like sheep, they would see that the objects they pursue are not worth having: sapiant, men get their knowledge.

Comp. Hor. Ep. i 16 19 vereor ne cui de te plus quam tibi credas.

Ambition is no new thing, says Lucretius.

Thus kings were slain, and anarchy prevailed until magistrates were appointed and codes of law drawn up. Men submitted more readily to the restraints of law, because the former system of unlimited revenge gave birth to feuds which poisoned all the peace and happiness of life.

Kings were slain because their greatness attracted the stroke of envy as has just been said. Perhaps Lucr. is thinking of the expulsion of kings from Rome, and below (ll. 1143, 1144) of the consuls and decemvirs.

Comp. Shirley's Ode:

Sceptre and crown must tumble down,
And in the dust be equal made
With the poor crooked scythe and spade.

*insigne, i.e. the crown; used as a noun, as in l. 700.

cruentum is part of the predicate, 'in blood'.
NOTES.

1139. honorem, 'prerogative'.

1140. metuam: nom. sing. neut. of the rare participle of metuo.

1141. 'So things were brought to uttermost degradation and disorder'; res, 'the state of things'; so a∂rā is used by Thucydides. redibat is a part of the idiom and does not mean 'were brought back'; comp. revocatur, l. 255, and iii 910 ad somnum si res reedit atque quietem.

1142. turbae, 'disturbance', is common in Plautus.

1143. partim= confused; see n. to l. 840.

1144. constituere is not infinitive. vellent: final subj.

1145. defessum colere is a rare const. for defessum colendo.

1147. artus, 'stringent'; the opposite of artus is laxus, 'roomy', 'large', 'indulgent'.

1148. ex ira, 'from rage'.

1150. colere aevum=vivere, as in l. 1145.

1151. inde=ab eo, i.e. from excessive revenge: praemia, 'prizes', 'valuable things', not 'rewards'; see ll. 5, 1450.

1152. quemque, i.e. all who commit violence and wrong.

1153. unde=a quo. Comp. Hesiod Op. 265 ol aβτoκακά τείχει ἀνηρ ἄλφω κακά τείχων, perhaps the earliest classical equivalent of our proverb that honesty is the best policy.

1154. degere, sc. eum.

1156. divum genus: yet Epicurus and consequently Lucr. taught that the gods take no notice of the good or evil actions of men; see Introduct. p. xxv.

1157. perpetuò goes with fore clam; id is 'his guilt'; clam would be occultum in prose; comp. Cic. De Fin. i 50 quamvis occulte fecerit, numquam tamen id confidet semper occultum fore.

1158. quippe ubi, 'since'; quia, quod, cum, and quando are often preceded thus by quippe without its seeming to affect the sense.

1159. protraxe: contracted from protraxisse.

1160. in medium dedisse, 'to have published abroad'.

1161—1193. It is easy to account for that fear of the gods which has covered the earth with temples and rituals. Men saw, when awake and still more in sleep, beings of wonderful size, beauty, and strength. As these were ever present, and seemed exempt from fear of death, men attributed to them immortality and perfect happiness, and made them to dwell in the sky, not being able otherwise to account for the order of the seasons and the other wonders they beheld in the heavens.

1161. deum: gen. plur. magnas gentes: see n. to l. 20.
1162. pervulgarit: the indirect question depends on rationem reddere, l. 1168.
1163. solemnia sacra, 'fixed ceremonies'; this is the original meaning of solemnis which is connected with annus; 'solemn' being a secondary meaning.

1164. sācra, but sācra above; so iv 1259 liquidis et liquida crassis.
1165. unde=a qua causa; see l. 1161.
1166. toto orbi, 'over all the earth'; so aethere toto, l. 398.
1167. cogit, sc. mortales. celebrare, 'to throng them'; see n. to l. 1381.

1168. non ita difficile, 'not very difficult'; so non ita pridem, 'rather lately'. This line may be taken first in translating the sentence.
1169. quippe etenim: see n. to l. 126.

1170. animo vigilante, with waking mind, i.e. when awake.

Lucr. seems to be inconsistent here: for he said before (l. 148) that the nature of the gods was too fine and impalpable for our senses to perceive it. Comp. also vi 68—78.

1171. magis, sc. videbant.

1172. For the idea that the gods ought to utter lofty words suitable to their beauty and power, comp. the defence Aeschylus is supposed to make for his long words, Aristoph. Frogs 1060 κάλλως έλκός τούς ἡμιθέους τοῖς ρήμασι μελζόσι χρήσθαι, καὶ γάρ τοῖς ιματίοις ἡμῶν χρώνται πολὺ σεμνότεροιν.

1175. dabant, sc. deis homines.

1176. There was no time when these splendid visions ceased to appear; consequently men believed that the beings seen were immortal.

1177. et tamen, 'and without that'; i.e. even if the visions had ceased to appear. omnino, 'on general grounds', repeats the same idea. viribus auctos: see n. to ignibus aucta, l. 723.

1178. convinci=vinci; so Shakespeare, Macbeth I 7 64 'his chamberlains will I with wine and wassail so convince', i.e. overcome.
NOTES.

1179. fortunae is 'in happiness', the usual meaning of the plur. in Lucr.; comp. i 106; in Cicero fortuna often = 'wealth'.

1180. * vexaret * is the subj. of a reported reason; comp. Cic. Off. ii 22 laudat Panaetius Africanum quod tam abstinens fuerit.

1181. * multa et mira, * polllα καλ θαυμαστά. videbant efficere, 'men saw the gods do'.

1182. *ipsos * is rather strangely used to contrast the easy performance of the gods with the difficulty of the tasks. inde ab efficiendo. Compare the address to Iacchus, Aristoph. Frogs 400 δειξον ὥς ἄνευ πόνον πολλὴν ὀδὸν πεπαλευς.

1183. *caeli rationes * is 'the system of heaven'; in a rather different sense, l. 196 ἐρᾶν ἀρχήματα.

1186. *perfugium sibi habeant * they had recourse to', 'they took refuge in'; *perfugium * is acc. in apposition with *tradere * and *facere *, which are both used as nouns and governed by habeant.

1188. *deum * gen. plur. templα 'realms', not 'temples'; see nn. to ll. 103, 948. Epicurus (see n. to l. 147) taught that the gods did not live in the heavens but in spaces between worlds, μετακόσμια, which Cicero translates by intermundia.

1189. videtur, 'is seen'.

1190. serenα 'austere', denoting the purity and coldness of the starlight; Keats speaks of 'the earnest stars'. The whole line is quoted by Bentley (Phalaris ix) as an example of expression at once simple and sublime.

1191. nubes 'meteors'.

1194—1240. Men have made themselves miserable by imagining that the gods rule in heaven and are capable of anger. True piety consists not in superstitious rites but rather in a mind at peace. It is true that when we behold the wonders of the sky, we begin to doubt whether they may not be due to the power of the gods; and the dreadful thunder causes all men and especially the sinner to tremble for fear of punishment. So every captain prays the gods to deliver him from the perils of the sea, and often his prayer is unavailing.
The perils to which greatness is subject, and destructive earthquakes—all these things make it natural that men should think little of their own power and magnify that of the gods.

1195. adiuvavit, 'gave also'; comp. ii 604 adiunxere feras.

1197. minores nostri, 'our posterity', just as maior noster = 'our ancestors'.

1198. velatum: the Romans prayed with the head covered, the Greeks with it bare. videri is passive.

1199. vertier ad lapidem, 'to turn towards a stone', a satirical description of the way in which Romans approached the image of a god: after praying they turned to the right, so as to front the image, and then prostrated themselves; comp. Plautus, Curcul. 69 A. quo me vertam nescio. B. si deos salutatas, dextroversum censeo; Plutarch, Camill. 5 καθάπερ ἔστι Ρωμαίοις ἐνα ἐπιευξάμενος καὶ προσκυνήσαν ἐπὶ δεξία ἐξελίττετο. Plutarch makes the prostration come before the turn.

lapidem seems a contemptuous word for a statue; or it may refer to the term (boundary-stones) which were worshipped by the Romans.

1203. magis is a weakened form of magis; see n. to potis, l. 1.

1205. templum: see n. to l. 103, and comp. Aesch. Pers. 367 τέμενος αὐθέρσ. The order is: et aestera fixum super micantibus stellis. Lucr. seems here to take the view that the sky does not revolve.

1206. venit in mentem viarum: this impers. constr. followed by the gen. is found in Cicero, e.g. De Fin. v a venit mihi in mentem Platonis, 'I think of Plato'; this gen. may be compared with that after reminiscor and obliviscor.

1207. oppressa: acc. plur. neut.

1208. caput erigere: so ὀμακρύνειν is often used metaphorically.

1209. nequae depends on cura which = metus.

1210. solliciti agrees with motus. laborem, 'strain'.

1211. rationem egestas, 'the difficulty of explaining'.

1212. equanam: the indirect question depends on rationis.

1213. quoad: see n. to l. 1033. (= quaeque) one syllable by myrris.
1215. *salut. *existence'; so salvo Marone, 'while Virgil lived'.
1217. is identical with l. 379.
1218. cui is interrogative.
1219. *contrahitur, 'shrink into itself'; just the opposite is animus diffunditur, 'expands with joy'.
1220. *correpunt, 'huddle up'; like contrahitur, but stronger. Comp. Seneca Nat. Quaest. vi 2 6 quid dementius quam ad tonitrua succidere et sub terram correpare fulminum metu?
1221. murmura, viz. of thunder.
1223. *corripient membri, 'shrink into themselves'; comp. contrahitur, correpunt above.
1225. poenarum solvendi: we should expect either the gerund, poenas solvendi, or the gerundive, poenarum solvendarum; but sometimes, as here, the gen. of the gerund is followed by a noun in the gen., apparently to avoid such cumbrous phrases as *agrorum condonandorum; comp. Plaut. Capt. 852 nominandi istorum copia, ibid. 1008 lucis tuendi copiam. grave is an epithet; sit adultum (see n. to l. 90) is the verb; comp. l. 1416.
1227. induperatorem: see n. to l. 102.
1229. divum pacem, 'the favour of the gods'; comp. ventorum paces below, 'propitious winds'.
1230. animas: see n. to l. 236. So Jason, when starting on the quest of the golden fleece, ζῆνα καὶ ὠκυνίορος κυμάτων βισάς ἀνέμων τ' έκάλει, νύκτας τε καὶ πόντον κελέθους ἀματά τ' εὐφρονα καὶ φιλαν νόστου μοῖραν (Find. Pyth. iv 194); and the Athenians, when starting against Syracuse, εὐχάς τὰς νομίζομενα πρὸ τῆς ἀναγωγῆς ἐποιοῦντο (Thuc. vi 32). And in the last case the prayers were unheard.
1232. nilp, abl. of amount of difference, goes with minus.
1233. The 'hidden power' is the secret working of nature, the for- tūna of l. 107, the invidia of l. 1126.
1234. The rods and axes were the insignia of the highest offices and are therefore used as *'greatness'.
1235. *lusibrio, lit. 'for a mockery'; predicative dat.
1237. dubiaeque: que is used in the sense of we; we was used for que, l. 71; dubiae may be transl. by an ady. Comp. Seneca Nat. Quaest. vi 12 oppidi pars ruit dubiumque stant etiam quae relict lingering. He is speaking of the eruption and earthquake which destroyed Pompeii and Herculaneum in 79 A.D.

1238. mortalia saecla = homines; see n. to l. 791.

1239. *relinquantur = 'admit'.

1240. gubernant: consec. subj., quae being = tales ut.

1241—1280. Metals were first discovered when the earth was thoroughly heated by forest fires, which may have been kindled by lightning or by men for various purposes. The heat melted the metals in the ground; and when these had cooled, their glitter attracted attention, and the shapes they had assumed suggested to men that they might smelt metals for their own purposes. Gold and silver did not prove so workable as copper and so were neglected for it. Just the opposite is true now. Everything has its day.

1241. quod superest: see n. to l. 64. *

1242. argentum pondus, = 'heavy silver'; so terrae pondus, l. 495.

1244. fulmine: the abl. may be either causal or absolute.

1246. *formidinis ergo, = 'for the sake of (i.e. to inspire) terror'; an archaic use of ergo, found once in Virgil, Aen. vi 670.

1248. *pandere, = 'to clear', *ψιλόν; *ψιλή γῆ, arable land, is opposed to τεφρωτευμένη, land for olives and vines.

1250. venari ( = venari) is used as a noun and is the subj. to ortum est.

1251. saepire, sc. ortum est.

1252. quidquid id est: see n. to l. 577. *revenat = that be.

1255. venis: abl. of place whence.

1257. cum videbant = διορεί δοευ; but later writers imitate Greek usage in these general conditions in past time, as Mart. ii 69 4 *cum cenaret (= διορεί δειπνολ), erat tristior ille, domi.

1259. *leporis, = 'prettiness'.

1260. The order is: et videbant (ea) formatā esse figurā similī atque vestigia lacunarum (quae) cuique (metallo) fuerant.

1261. lit. 'as the outlines of the hollows had been to each', i.e. 'to the outline of the hollow in which each (lump) had been'; similis is followed by atque, just as ὅμως by kal.
NOTES.

1262. penetrabat eos, it struck them'; a rare use of the word. liquefacta...decurrere: see n. to l. 109.

1264. prorsum, 'absolutely', qualifies quamvis in acuta.

quamvis in acuta: the whole phrase is: in fastigia tam acuta quam vis. The plur. of quamvis is sometimes used, and also the plur. of other tenses, e.g. in speeches to a jury, quam voletis multos producam testes.

N.B. 1265. murorum fastigia, 'tapering points'.

1266. procedendo, 'by hammering out'; there is a change of subject, as it is not the metals but men that do the hammering. Comp. l. 1369, and i 312 anulus in digito subter tenuatur habendo, i.e., 'by our wearing'. In these constructions the gerund is not passive, as is sometimes said; see n. to novando, l. 194. by constant wearing:

1267. levia is predicate. levia sedare: plain smooth

1268. pertundere: this compound takes the sense of the preposition rather than of the original verb; pertusum vas, 'a jar with a hole in it'; pertusa laena, 'a coat in holes'. perque forare: a case of tmesis.

1269. argentum: abl. of instrument.

1270. primum goes with parabant above. violentis, 'masterful'; the epithet hints at the uses to be made of copper.

1271. potestas, sc. argenti et auri.

1272. pariter, i.e. as well as copper.

1275. iacet, 'is neglected', a common sense of the word; iacere is opposed to valere, Cic. Off. iii 46. successit: see n. to l. 1123. mounted up 1276. volvenda: see n. to l. 514. tempora rerum, 'the seasons of things'.

1278. Comp. ll. 832, 833.

1281—1307. The first weapons used were the hands, nails, and teeth, sticks, stones, and fire. These gave place to copper which was used for all purposes of war and peace until copper in turn gave place to iron. Next men learnt to mount horses in warfare and then to yoke two and four horses in a chariot. Lastly the Carthaginians taught elephants to take part in battle. Thus gradually the means of fighting have been perfected.

1281. ferri natura, 'the substance which is iron', is a mere periphrasis for ferrum; see n. to l. 59.

1284. silvarum fragmina is in apposition with rami.
1285. postquam primum=etel râxiôra; quom extemplo is the usual phrase in Plautus. cognita is neuter, according to rule, after the two subjects flamma atque ignes, of which one is masculine and one feminine, both referring to things not persons.

1287. prior: adj. for adv.

1290. miscebant, they stirred up. vasta, 'gaping'. serebant, lit. 'they sowed', i.e. 'dealt around'.

1291. ollis: archaic for illis.

1294. *species, elôos, 'the fashion'. est belongs to versa; see n. to l. 90.

1296. Those who first used iron swords had a great advantage over the rest; but when everybody used them, everybody had an equal chance.

1297. arma' rum consendere, 'for a man with a sword to mount'; the inf. is used as a noun (and so moderatier, vigere, and temptare below), and is subject to prius est, 'is an earlier invention'. (discover.)

1298. vigere, i.e. to use the sword, the left hand being taken up by holding the bridle.

1300. bis binos, sc. equos; so bis bina quot sunt, 'how much is twice two?'

1302. boves Lucas, 'Lucan king', i.e. elephants, which the Romans called by this name, because the first elephants they saw were employed by King Pyrrhus in Lucania when he brought an army to conquer Italy. 281 B.C.

turritae = turrisero; so auritus, 'furnished with ears'.

1303. anguimanus is acc. plur. fem., the compounds of manus being declined like manus; comp. Cic. De Nat. De. ii 122 manus etiam data elephanto est. An elephant's 'hand' sounds strange; but 'trunk' is really stranger, being a mere corruption of 'trump'; the French word is trompe.

1305. aliud=aliud; aliud ex alio would not scan; so Lucr. uses the archaic form. Catullus (66 28) has alis for alius.

1306. esset: final subj., quod being = ut id.

1308—1349. Some tried to use wild animals in war; but these attacked their own side just as much as the enemy, as even elephants sometimes do. So only the desperate had recourse to such dangerous expedients.

1308. ^t^ munere belli, 'the service of war'; belli is gen. of definition like novitatis nomen l. 909; comp. §yla bardiou.
1309. sunt belongs to experti; see n. to l. 90.
1310. partim = nonnulli; see n. to l. 840.
1312. moderari his: here moderari governs the dat., but, l. 1298, the acc.; both constructions are common.

1314. nullo discrimine, i.e. making no distinction between friend and foe.

1315. crisiae are not the lions’ manes but some head-gear with which they were supplied to make them appear more formidable.

1316. fremitu, sc. leonum.
1317. perterrita equorum pectora, ‘the terror of the horses excited by...’.
1318. convertere, sc. equos.
1319. adversum, evarlov, is an adv.

venientibus ora petebant: though English prefers the gen., it is the idiom of Latin and many other languages to use a dat. of the person when parts of the body are in question; thus caput ei abscisum est is, in French, on lui trancha la tête.

1320. et nec opinantes, sc. alios; see n. to l. 777.
1321. deplexae, twining round them; a very rare word.
1322. morsibus, ‘savage jaws’; just so osculum is used of a mouth which kisses rather than bites, by Lucr. iv 1081, Mart. xi 91 7.

1324. hauribant: for the form see n. to l. 934, for the meaning n. to l. 991. subter: adv., as almost always in Lucr.
1327. For the repetition (epanalepsis is the technical name) see n. to l. 951.
1329. dabant ruinas: see n. to l. 347.
1330. transversa exibant, ‘by swerving tried to avoid’.
1332. fab nervis succisa, ‘with their tendons severed’, i.e. hamstrung, the regular sense of suceedere. With ab nervis (= a parte nervorum) comp. a terris l. 754. videres, ‘one might have seen’; see n. to adportes, l. 100.
1334. domi domitos: notice the assonance or play on words, a constant feature in old Latin poetry; see n. to l. 392.
1335. in rebus agundis: ‘in the heat of action’.
1336. The ablatives are causal.
1337. reddicere 'to rally'.
1339. boves Lucæ; see n. to l. 1302.
1340. fere facta 'cruel sufferings'.
1349. vacabant 'were without'; governing the abl.; this word is extremely common, with the dat., in post-Augustan Latin, especially in two senses, 'to have time for', and 'to devote time to', i.e. to study; both occur together in Mart. xi 16 nec musis vacat, aut suis vacaret, 'he has no time for poetry; if he had, he would write poetry of his own'.

1350—1360. There was no weaving before iron was discovered, iron being necessary to make the implements of weaving. At first weaving was done by men until the reproaches of the husbandmen forced them to leave it to women.

1350. nexilis vestis would be a garment of skins tied on the body.
1352. ratione alia, i.e. without iron.
1353. insilia; the meaning is uncertain, and the epithet levia does not suit 'treadles' which is given in the lex. perhaps heddles, of which there were two in the ancient loom to separate the threads of the warp or vertical yarns.
NOTES.

fusi: the fusus is no part of the tela or loom, but was used along with the colus to make the yarn.

radii and scapi are both connected with the loom: the radius was used to press together the threads, the scapus to tie the threads of the warp to, at the bottom of the loom. It should be remembered that the ancient loom was vertical, the weaver standing at his work.

1356. follertius, 'more ingenious'.
1357. vitio: predicative dat.
1358. ut is consecutive, not final.
1359. pariter, i.e. cum agricolis.
1360. durarent; for a different sense see l. 57.

1361—1378. Nature herself taught men to sow the fields and to plant and graft young shoots. One kind of tillage after another was tried, and more land daily brought under cultivation.

1361. specimen: 'model'.
1364. pulli is more commonly used of the young of animals; so in French, poulet is a chicken, poulain a colt; Lucr. uses pullus for both (ii 927, iii 764).

suber: see n. to l. 1324. 'underneath' ad.
1365. unde=et ab hoc. 'libitumsti, 'they got a desire'. N.B.
1366. defodere: see n. to l. 935. 'to tear'.
1367. dulcis agelli, 'the plot they loved'; 'sweet' is seldom a useful epithet in English, except of things that can be smelt, tasted, or heard.

1368. fructus is governed by mansuescere.

1369. indulgendo, sc. terrae, 'by their treating the land well', did το ειπεργετείν: there is a change of subject; see n. to novando l. 194, procudendo l. 1265.

1370. succedere: see n. to l. 1123. 'spread up, spread'
1371. haberent is final subj.
1374. caerulea, γλαυκέ, 'grey-green'.

inter is separated from currere by tmesis; see n. to l. 287. 'plura, 'a strip'.

1377. omnia, 'all the ground'. intersita ornant: see n. to l. 109. ornant, sc. homines.

1378. arbustis, 'plantations'; see n. to l. 671.

1379–1435. The earliest music was an attempt to whistle in imitation of birds. Then the sound of the wind blowing through reeds suggested to men to make the pipe which you may hear shepherds play on the hills. This music, together with dancing and rustic festivities, gave much pleasure when it was new, and served to solace such as could not sleep, though it would not give satisfaction now. The old simplicity of life soon passed away; skins and acorns and beds of leaves fell into contempt, though they had once been so prized. We now prize gold and purple instead, and poison the happiness of our lives by ambition and greed.

1379. imitariet (= imitari) is used as a noun and is the subject to fit; see l. 1297 for similar examples.

1381. concelebrare, to practise frequently; l. 1167 celebrare = ‘to throng’, and so concelebrare is used, i 4. aurasque invare, with pleasure to the ear; the phrase may be compared with ipsique perire, l. 1348, as both express a result of the main action, though the result is stated as if co-ordinate, by what is called parataxis.

1382. sphyri: gen. sing. eava calamorum: see n. to viae cuncta l. 739. sibila: sibilus makes this irregular plural; see n. to l. 1397.

1383. agrestes is a noun here.

1384. canuntum, ‘of the players’; canere is constantly used of playing as well as of singing.

1386. otia dia = otia sub divo, ‘peaceful places beneath the open sky’; so, i 22 dias in luminis oras, dias = aetherias; but, ii 172, dia voluptas = divina voluptas.

1387. 1388. 1389 are identical with ll. 1454. 1455, and are omitted in the text, having been inserted here in the MSS. by a blunder.

1390. ollis: see n. to l. 1291. Archeae pro illis.

1391. sunt cordi, ‘are dear’; cordi is locative, lit. ‘at heart’; a very common phrase in all periods of Latin, usually with another, personal, dat. ; Hor. Od. i 17 13 dis pieitas mea et musa-cordi est.

1392. inter se, ‘in groups’.

1393. propriet: see n. to l. 31.

1394. non magnis: comp. non magno l. 604. incunde habebant = curabant; see n. to l. 939. Corpus cumabant: we would repeat their bodies.

1395. tempestas, ‘the weather’; so l. 744. ridebat: for the indic. expressing frequency, see n. to l. 1257.
NOTES.

1397. ioca, plur. of iocus; so loca from locus, sibila from sibilus.
1400. floribus is abl. of instrument. after plexis, 'plaited with flowers'.
1401. "extra numerum", 'out of step'; the opposite of in numerum.
1402. "duriter, 'clumsily'; see n. to uniter, l. 537. terram pede pellere: comp. Hor. Od. iii 18 15 gaudet invisam pepulisse fessor ter pede terram.
1405. hinc = ab hoc, i.e. from music. solacia somni: 'consolations for the want of sleep'; so the watchman on the roof of Agamemnon's palace sang to himself as ὑπνοῦ ἀντίμολον ἄκος (Aesch. Agam. 16, 17).
1406. ducere, flectere, and percurrere are used as nouns in the nom. case, in apposition with solacia.
1407. multimodis: see n. to omnimodis, l. 190.
1408. 'and even now watchmen keep the tradition they have received from them'; unde = a quibus and goes with accepta. vigiles may be the sentinels in a camp or the watchmen in a town; in imperial Rome there were 7000 vigiles, their chief duty being to extinguish fires.
1409. recens is the adverb. hilo: abl. of amount of difference; the acc. occurs l. 358.
1410. interea = tamen; see n. to l. 83. 'dulcedini fructum, 'enjoyment of delight'; the phrase occurs before, ii 971.
1412. praesto: adverb.
1413. in primis is often written as one word.
1414. illa is acc. plur. neut.; reperta is nom. sing. fem., agreeing with res. posterior may be translated by an adverb.
1415. 'sensus': our feelings. 'ad', in regard to'.
1416. coepit, sc. esse; comp. Juvenal iii 114 et quando coepit Graecorum mentio. relicta sunt is the verb; for the separation of the words, see n. to l. 90.
1417. strata herbis is an epithet of cubilia. frondibus aucta: comp. ignibus aucta, l. 723.
1418. pellis: gen. sing. contempta, 'into contempt'.
1419. 'quam quavis eam... repertam, 'was so envied formerly when discovered'; invidia is abl. of attendant circumstances.
1420. gessit (= ἐφθανε), sc. eam.
et tamen, and after all, i.e. though they had committed murder to get it; see n. to I. 1096. sanguine is causal abl. after dispersisse.

convertere = converti: see n. to vertere, I. 831.

que, and in this. magis goes with in nobis, not with quo.
auro signique is a hendiadys, meaning 'figures embroidered in gold'. apta is the particip. of apere; see n. to I. 537.
dum, 'provided that'. plebeia, sc. vestis. tamen is to be taken with defendere; for its position, see n. to I. 1088.

habendi finis, 'the right limit of possession', i.e. to what point it is desirable to go on acquiring property.

omnino, 'in general'; comp. omnino, I. 1177. quoad: see n. to I. 1033. Lucr. means that pleasure pursued beyond a certain point ceases to be pleasant.
in altum, 'into the deep sea'; els πέλαγος; comp. the metaphorical use of μερτώπος.
aestus, 'billows'.

The motions of the sun and moon taught men to observe the seasons of the year.
vigiles is perhaps a noun as in I. 1408, 'watchful guardians'.
circum: adverb.
ratione, 'plan'; rem, 'the system'.

At length men began to live in walled cities, to divide up the land, and to sail the sea. States made alliance with one another; letters were invented, and then history began to be written.

iam qualifies the whole sentence, not merely validis.
degebant aevum = vivebant; comp. colere aevum, I. 1150.
divisa colebatur: see n. to I. 109.
velixpolis, 'sail-winged'; applied by Virgil to the sea, Aen. i 224; a good instance of the elaborate art with which Virgil refines on the simplicity of Lucr. flores: a bold metaphor, but less bold than a similar one in Aesch. Agam. 659 ἄραμεν ἀνθόνυ πέλαγος Ἀλγαῖον νεκροῖς.

res gestas, 'the deeds of heroes', κλέα ἀνθρώπων, such as Achilles sang in his tent to the lyre (II. ix 189): the history of most nations begins with such records; see the Introduction to Macaulay's Lays.
NOTES.

1445. elementa; 'the letters of the alphabet'. N.B.
1446. prius, i.e. before the invention of writing.
1447. ratio, 'reasoning'. Comp. ll. 324—329.

1448—1447. Thus by degrees practice and experience suggested to men all useful inventions and afterwards all the fine arts and luxuries of life. There has been a gradual but steady progress until perfection in them all has been reached.

1449. 'vias', 'roads'; an important part and instrument of civilisation which the Romans thoroughly understood.

1450. praemia, sc. vitae; see n. to l. 1151. funditus; 'without exception', usually has omnes after it in Lucr.; but see ll. 497, 1435.

1451. daedala signa polire, 'the shaping of well-wrought statues'; polire is used as a noun in the acc. case. daedala is used in its passive signification; see n. to l. 234.

1453. progredientes, sc. hominis, a second acc. after docuit.

1454. unumquidque; see n. to l. 131. cæl. several thing.

1455. in medium, 'in sight of all men'; so l. 1160.

1456. alid = aliud; see n. to l. 1305. ex alio and ordine are treated as co-ordinate adverbs, 'after another and in due order'.

1457. artibus is dat. commodi, but may be translated, 'in the arts'. venere, sc. artes.
